Has the G. O. P. Gone Wet?
No Rain Lasts Forever,
New Sudden Freezing Idea.
Mr. Swope Has a Plan.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE REPUBLICAN party wonders about the meaning of Dwight W. Morrow's landslide. President Hoover promises Mr. Morrow "every available support in his campaign" and the White House predicts that Mr. Morrow will be New Jersey's next Senator.

MR. MORROW himself, having satisfactorily attended to his New Jersey job, will attend to something else. He returns within a week to his post in Mexico, and will not come back until just before election day.

WALL STREET wiped its eyes and smiled yesterday. Sad-hearted speculators concluded that it was not going to rain forever, and found comfort in a story on the radio told by Mr. Morrow.

"A farmer's son asked: 'Do you think this rain will ever stop?'

"'I think it will,' replied the father, 'I never knew but one rain that didn't stop.'

"'Which rain was that?' asked the boy.

"'This rain,' replied the father.

NEWS IMPORTANT to storekeepers, farmers and the public, describes new process of freezing foods suddenly, at an extremely low temperature, 49 degrees below zero, preserving their quality marvelously and indefinitely. Violently sudden freezing prevents formation of crystals and breaking of liquid cells.

MEAT, separate steaks, chops, fish, oysters, vegetables, fruits, are instantaneously frozen in transparent packages. California and Florida might try this sudden freezing process in preserving orange and lemon juice.

Concerning the new process, invented by Clarence Birdseye, farmers and merchants may obtain information by writing to Mr. Chester, president of the General Foods Company, 250 Park avenue, New York City.

In every General Electric works, on a vote of 60 per cent or more of its employes, a trust fund will be organized to meet abnormal conditions of unemployment.

Workers will contribute 1 per cent of their earnings, the company contributing an equal amount. The company guarantees 5 per cent on the funds accumulated, until such time as unemployment shall make it desirable to utilise the fund for the benefit of idle employes.

The employes will contribute half, the company half, the workers will get all, the company none, a fair arrangement.

MUSSOLINI said, in fine classical Italian:

"We can lick France, or anybody else."

And sincerely believes it.

France said nothing, but replied with a gigantic increase in defense appropriations, including the new and more powerful submarines and airplanes.

An Italian newspaper claims that France is "arming with fury against Italy," and says there is no menace in Mussolini's recent speeches.

The feeling between Italy and France is not good, and it is just as well that we have not yet guaranteed to supply men and money for any war over there.

Engraved on the old bell in Lugano, you read:

"The sound of this bell vanishes tempests, repels demons, and summons men."

Sacred bells were relied on to drive away hailstorms, demons that rode on the wind, thunder and lightning.

Imagine the surprise of three persons killed, and sixteen fatally injured in Europe when lightning struck the swinging bells of a church in which they had taken shelter.

KING GEORGE and Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales, and guests from Windsor Castle were present at the Ascot races on Wednesday, when, close to them, Walter Holbein, a bookmaker, was killed in the betting ring by a bolt of lightning. Good churchmen in Scotland will say it was punishment for gambling and a warning to the King to keep away from racetracks.

BUT KING GEORGE, modern and enlightened, knows that the broker was not killed by a shot from Heaven, but by vagrant electricity, returning from the clouds to the earth. He knows that church bells do not drive away lightning, whatever they may do to demons, since great cathedrals and humble little churches are provided with lightning rods, each copper spike pointing upward, emphasizing the fact that nature plays no favorites. The King and Queen went to Ascot again yesterday.

IT IS PLEASANT to have other men or railroads working for you.

The New York Central Railroad owns 460,340 shares, equal to 95.56 per cent, of stock in the "Big Four" Railroad. The "Big Four" now raises its yearly dividend to $10 a share and will pay the New York Central $920,700 a year.

Even in these tearful times there are pleasant spots.

N. Y. MANIAC SUSPECT SEIZED

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—Smarting under the caustic comment of an insane slayer, metropolitan detectives got their first "break" in the widespread hunt for New York's maniac murderer today when they arrested Joseph Clarke, 34, in a rooming house here.

New York and Philadelphia detectives raided his rooming house on Tenth street this morning.

ESCAPED PATIENT

He recently escaped from the Creedmore State Hospital for the Insane at Creedmore, L. I., they said.

The suspect does not answer descriptions broadcast thus far of the "phantom slayer" who claimed two lives in Queens Borough, N. Y., wounded another man last night, and who marked 14 other persons for death.

GRILLED

The quizzing began to center on "the pretty blonde nurse" when further mention of the mysterious woman was found in a package of 200 mimeographed letters seized in the room where Clarke was arrested.

These letters bore a Brooklyn, N. Y., return address, and were addressed to New York residents. Detectives refused to reveal either the address of the New York persons or the return address in Brooklyn.

NOTABLES MENTIONED

One letter was addressed to the District Attorney of Queens County, and asked that habeas corpus action be started against the state institution at Creedmoor, L. I.

The letters were vague and incoherently jumbled in their phrasing, referring to many stage and

BYRD THANKING GREETERS

Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd at City Hall, New York, speaking to an immense throng and into a dozen microphones as he and his men were welcomed home from the Pole.

WASHINGTON ACCLAIMS BYRD

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Acclaim such as seldom is accorded heroes who gain their fame in peaceful pursuits came today to Richard Evelyn Byrd and his companion of 14 months in the Antarctic.

With New York's overwhelming demonstration still fresh in mind, he came here to receive further honors, this time from the President, and to get the special medal struck by the National Geographic Society for his conquest of the South Pole by air.

With Byrd, on the special train for his party of 80, were Mrs. Byrd and the Byrd children, who had waited patiently in their New England home.

The train pulled in at 9 o'clock and the party went direct to the Willard Hotel, where headquarters was established.

FULL DAY AHEAD OF HIM

A full day awaited Byrd, who was to be received by the President, his commander-in-chief, and hear from Mr. Hoover praise for the explorations in hitherto little known Antarctica. Byrd was to be the luncheon guest of the Geographic Society, make a round of official calls in the afternoon and receive the medal from the hands of President as a climax of the reception at the capital.

The President greeted the Byrd party in the White House at 12:30 p. m. Byrd later spent some time at the Navy Department, renewing friendships dating from his Annapolis days, then paid tribute to his friend and companion on the North Pole flight, Floyd Bennett, now at rest in Arlington.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO BENNETT

Byrd placed wreaths on the graves of Bennett, Wilkes, an American explorer of the Antarctic 90 years ago, and Pearly, discoverer of the North Pole—all Navy men.

Tonight, the modest hero must stand in a crowded auditorium and listen to his praises from the

By F. A. WRAY.
International News Service.

HOYLAKE, England, June 20.—Bobby Jones reached the zenith of his golfing career today when he captured the British open golf championship, to keep company with the British amateur title, which he won recently at St. Andrews.

Jones' 291 strokes for 72 holes of play was sufficient to carry off the title.

"This is the hardest I ever have played."

Jones thus qualified as the only American ever to win the British amateur and British open titles in the same year, and the only player in the history of golf to win the world's four major titles—the American open and amateur and the British open and amateur competitions.

This was his third time to win the British open championship, he having been British open champion in 1926 and 1927. He is the first man to hold the British amateur and open championships since John Ball accomplished the feat in 1890.

Bobby Jones

The Georgian won in spite of two shaky rounds today. He took 74 strokes in the third round, when he carded a 6, and 75 in the afternoon when he had a 7 on his card. His first two rounds of 70 and 72 pulled him through.

Leo Diegel and Archie Compston threatened until Compston ruined his chances with 43 strokes for the first nine in the afternoon and Diegel remained in the hunt until the sixteenth hole when he took a 6.

SHARE HONORS

Diegel, P. G. A. champion of the United States, matched Jones' 75 in his final round for a 72-hole total of 293. It was thought that he was assured of undisputed possession of second place, but Macdonald Smith, another American pro, turned in a brilliant 71, one under par, in his final round to match Diegel's 293 total and share runner-up honors.

The Americans thus captured the first three places in the championship, and Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., youngster, added to the

SUMMER HERE; POOLS TO OPEN

Pittsburgh's 10 river swimming pools will celebrate the first official day of summer tomorrow by opening for the season. Life guards for the pools will be sworn in this afternoon by Director of Public Safety James M. Clark following a series of tests given 15 applicants earlier today.

Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said summer begins at 11:54 p. m., daylight saving time tomorrow, which, by seconds, is the longest day of the year, marking the farthest point north reached by the sun. Clear skies and moderately warm weather are predicted.

X Y Traffic Plan Passed By Council

Unanimously and without discussion City Council late today passed an ordinance authorizing the so-called "XY" plan for rearrangement of Liberty and Penn avenues at the Eleventh street intersection in connection with the construction of the Pennsylvania Railroad terminal.

The plan calls for only one street level, as provided in the "T" plan, which it modifies.

Fireworks Blasts Out Front of Store

HAZELTON, Pa., June 20.—(INS.)—The entire front of the Joseph Mitchell cigar store here was blown out today when fireworks in the display window were accidentally ignited as a customer lighted his cigar.

Firemen were called to extinguish the fire which followed the explosion.

Philadelphia Opens Fight To Modify Blue Laws

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(AP.)—Councilman William W. Roper today announced that a special councilmanic committee of five, of which he is chairman, will begin next week to hold hearings and study plans for modification or repeal of the 1794 state blue laws.

In urging immediate action on his resolution Mr. Roper, who is football coach of Princeton University, declared the sentiment of people had been shown in opposition to prohibition as well as to the closed Sunday.

He said:

"I think I can safely say every person who does anything on Sunday not of necessity is breaking the law. It seems to me 75 per cent of the residents of this city and state break the blue laws. Who does not! Why the poor man who can't afford to."

Councilman Morris Apt quoted figures purporting to show the increase of week-end visitors over a period of years in cities where there are no Sunday closing laws, and said Philadelphia shows a falling off of 12 per cent.

EDGEWOOD GOES ANTI-BLUE LAW

Results to date in the borough of Edgeworth will be published tomorrow.

The Pennsylvania Sunday, handed down by law from Colonial days is too severe for the modern generation, in the opinion of a majority of Edgewood voters registered in the Blue Law poll of Allegheny County by the Sun-Telegraph.

The indication of sentiment in this residential borough is given by the ballots of 248 of its voters, constituting nearly 25 per cent of the number voting at the recent primary election. They cast two votes for repeal to each vote for enforcement, while a number favor modification. The Edgewood vote to date is divided:

	Men	Women	Total
Enforcement	57	14	71
Modification	29	7	36
Repeal	115	26	141

Repeal is favored over enforcement by a 5-to-1 majority in the county poll to date, comprising 48,808 ballots, divided as follows:

	Men	Women	Total
Enforcement	4,909	2,367	7,276
Modification	2,811	1,230	4,041
Repeal	23,621	11,201	37,822

Distribution of ballots to every subdivision of the county is nearing completion. Only nine boroughs remain to be canvassed. Tarentum, Thornburg and Turtle Creek are the latest boroughs embraced in the poll.

N. J. Vote Deplored By W. C. T. U. Head

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, June 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Ella Boole, president of the National W. C. T. U., returning to the United States from a tour of Porto Rico, said she regretted the nomination of Dwight W. Morrow as Republican candidate for Senator from New Jersey.

She added, however, that even if Morrow were elected he would merely take the place of ex-Senator Edge, an anti-dry, and would not change the balance in Congress.

Stocks Yield Under Bear Attack

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP.)—Share prices again dropped heavily on the New York Stock Exchange today, as the market appeared exhausted from its sharp rally yesterday, and bears found the list vulnerable to short selling. By early afternoon, the more active issues showed losses of $2 to around $10 a share.

The reduction of the Federal Reserve rediscount rate to 2½ per cent, and a reduction brokers' loans of $211,000,000, caused a brief upsurge of prices in early trading, which carried stocks up $1 to $7, but these advances were quickly lost.

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP.)—Wheat prices dropped to the lowest level of the season today in a gradual decline attributed chiefly to quoted statements by Alexander Legge, Farm Board chairman, that the board's expenses promise to exceed previous estimates by $100,000,000. July wheat sank to 93¾c, the lowest since 1914, and September touched 97c a bushel.

Bobby's Record Just One Victory After Another

Bobby Jones' record:

British amateur champion, 1930.

Now holds three major titles; first man in the history of golf to do so.

Only man ever to hold the Open championships of both Great Britain and the United States, doing so twice—1926 and 1930.

First since John Ball in 1890 to win both British Amateur and British Open in the same year.

ARMSTRONGS ON HONEYMOON

The 63-year-old newlywed County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, and his thrice-wed bride departed by motor from Philadelphia today for a honeymoon in New York, Boston and the Berkshire Mountains.

The honeymooners, who slipped quietly out of Pittsburgh to be married yesterday in Philadelphia, declined to be interviewed.

Mrs. Armstrong, until yesterday Mrs. Ethel Wilson, of 600 South Negley avenue, has twice been a widow.

Meantime the newly-weds, friends revealed, have been making plans for their home in Pittsburgh. They will return in a month to take up their residence in Commissioner Armstrong's old

Mexican Mining Situation Critical

MEXICO CITY, June 20.—(AP.)—A statement that the Mexican mining industry is in a desperate condition was made by Luis Leon, secretary of industry, commerce and labor.

Senor Leon said the readjustment of railroad rates was necessary to help the struggling industry, and added that unless relief was given virtually all mines would have to close down and thousands of men would be thrown out of work.

Chicago Man Heads Circulation Managers

WEST BADEN, Ind., June 20.—(AP.)—J. N. Eisenlord of the Chicago Daily News, was elected president of the International Circulation Managers' Association at the closing session of the thirty-second annual convention today. Asheville, N. C., was awarded the 1931 convention.

Bobby Jones' Home Town Frenzied Over Triumph

ATLANTA, June 20.—(AP.)—Bobby Jones' mother and father sat quietly at their home here today and received news of their son's latest victory, but his home town reacted noisily.

Newsboys were swamped by the crowds who themselves took up the boys' cries of "Bobby wins." Business was virtually suspended, while staid business men pounded one another on the back and talked only of the great golfer, first in the heart of his city.

Throughout the morning telephones in newspaper offices were busy. Bobby's friends here admitted they were slightly worried when he dropped behind this morning and when news came that he had forged ahead again the city gave vent to its excitement with cheers.

Robert P. Jones, his father, came to his office early, but slipped quietly away and went home to be with his wife. He told friends:

"Of course, we are very happy and very proud."

FUNDS BILL APPROVAL LIKELY

'Gag' Rider to Measure Fails In House; Prohibitionists, Foes Both for Continuing

By WILLIAM S. NEAL,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission will be given a free hand to report on the merits of prohibition, and $250,000 to conduct its investigations for another year, in the second deficiency bill which is expected to pass the House today.

This was assured when leading House drys rejected proposals that a "rider" be written into the bill specifically prohibiting the commission from discussing the merits of the dry law when it reports again to Congress.

EXPECT ANTI-DRY STORM

Thus far the commission has confined its efforts to finding means of making dry law enforcement more effective.

This policy is expected to be continued, although Chairman George W. Wickersham has admitted some members of the commission believe if they come to the conclusion that the Volstead act cannot be enforced they should so say.

Representative Cramton (Rep.) of Michigan, House dry leader, said he was content to vote the $250,000 appropriation without changing the language of the law establishing the body. He maintains the commission should avoid discussing the merits of prohibition, and is convinced it will not embarrass President Hoover by extending its scope.

Approval of the appropriation was expected to be accompanied by speeches of anti-drys flaying the commission as useless.

CHALLENGE BY ANTI-DRY

Representative Linthicum (Dem.), of Maryland, head of the "anti-dry bloc," said he would not oppose the fund.

"The deeper any investigating body goes into the question, the more it will help convince the public the law cannot be enforced," he said.

Representative Black (Dem.), of New York, another anti-dry, assailed the commission in a speech on the House floor during which he asserted the commission had failed to go to the heart of the question.

He invited Chairman Wickersham to examine confidential reports of Prohibition Administrator Doran on Maj. H. Maurice Campbell, administrator in New York; Andrew McCampbell, at Buffalo; Edwin S. Ross, in New Jersey, and Col. Herbert, formerly administrator in Baltimore.

He charged that denaturing formulas promulgated by the Treasury were devised by many big industrial alcohol plants, and asserted that diversion of industrial alcohol to bootleggers is being conducted in wholesale fashion. He named New Jersey as the center of the bootleg industry.

The $250,000 fund appeared to have easy sailing in the House, but is expected to be carefully scrutinized in the Senate.

HUNT FOR FAZIO AGAIN FAILS

A search for Philip Fazio, Clairton beer baron, in Cumberland, Md., has proved futile.

Fazio, for whom search was being instituted for questioning over his alleged accusation of having paid $350,000 graft to politicians during his seven years of bootleg operations, was reported to have been in Cumberland Monday, in company with a woman, presumably his wife.

Detectives say they learned Fazio and the woman left Clairton for Brownsville and from there took a trolley car for Uniontown.

County Detectives James O. O'Brien and James J. Reddington spent last night in Cumberland in an unsuccessful search for Fazio there. They left photographs of him with railroad police, street car inspectors and city police.

Fazio could not be extradited because he has not been indicted on liquor law violation charges, which grew out of his trial in the murder of William J. Gregory, of which he was acquitted.

Germany's Minister Of Finance Resigns

BERLIN, June 20.—(AP.)—President Hindenburg today accepted the resignation of Dr. Moldenhauer as minister of finance and asked Premier Bruening to take over that office, pending developments.

Moldenhauer's resignation had been awaited for several days. His successor may be Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former head of the Reichsbank.

EAST ST. BRIDGE NOT SAGGING

The old sing-song chant, "London Bridge Is Falling Down," has no counterpart in the fate of the new East Street Bridge, North Side, notwithstanding that some folk over there spread the alarm that the great cantilever arch over East street was sagging and slipping.

East Street Bridge is O. K. Its concrete abutments rest on bed rock, its structural beams fit accurately and it goes into bridge history as one of the city's finest improvements. All this is on the statement of John D. Stevenson, chief engineer of the City Bureau of Bridges, and structural steel experts.

There is an apparent sag on the east end of the bridge which was observed by people in the neighborhood when the arch was joined and immediately the report was spread that the abutments had gone awry, that the floor was sinking and that the whole thing was all wrong. But on the statements of the builders and engineers it is all right.

Two Men Killed By Wire Contact

ROCKFORD, Ill., June 20.—(INS.)—Fred Deffenbaugh and Oliver Conley, electrocuted when Deffenbaugh seized a 2,300 volt wire by mistake and Conley went to his rescue, were both dead here today.

Deffenbaugh was unable to release his grasp on the wire and Conley, a fellow worker, attempted to pull him away. A group of workmen working under Deffenbaugh, witnessed the tragedy, unable to assist the men.

Louisville and Toledo Now Outrank Denver

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—Denver lost in the census lineup this year. Although its 287,728 population was an increase by 12 per cent over the 1920 count, the city was passed by Louisville, 307,803; Toledo, 290,787, and Houston, 289,428.

HAS DELUSIONS; DETAINED

Suffering from the delusion that someone is seeking to kill him, John H. Wilson, 38, who said he was a traveling salesman for dry-goods from New York, was being detained by Homestead police today. He informed police that his home was in Connecticut but that he didn't remember the name of the town.

Last night the man ran into the parsonage of the Rev. H. E. Shade, Ninth Avenue and McClure street, Homestead, minister of the First Baptist Church, seeking a hiding place. Later he entered several residences in Munhall, police said. Two physicians examined him today and pronounced him mentally deranged.

'DRY LAW MADE ME KILL,' SAYS GIRL SLAYER

Dayton Given Life Term For Murder of One-Time Pittsburgh Woman Writer

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—"Prohibition has put me where I am, at least partly. There is no doubt of that."

Such was the reaction today of Dexter Churchill Dayton, 26, formerly of Kansas City, who was sentenced yesterday to life imprisonment for choking to death a girl he desired for his wife, Marjorie O'Donnell, former Pittsburgh newspaperwoman.

Dayton had left his widowed mother in Kansas City and came here two years ago to be a salesman. He participated in the darker side of Washington's limited night life, began drinking "bootleg" liquor, met Miss O'Donnell and other nice girls, fell in love, but continued drinking. Miss O'Donnell was employed in the office of the National Geographic Society.

KNEELS BY GIRL'S BODY

The murder was committed in a room Dayton had taken at the Roosevelt Hotel after a one-sided drinking orgy. The girl's body was not found for nearly two days, after the youth half-befuddled with liquor, telephoned the hotel clerk what he had done.

When police arrived they found Dayton kneeling at the side of the bed on which lay the girl, dead from strangulation. He was praying.

A note was found which explained Miss O'Donnell had refused to marry him and that he had decided on murder and suicide. The last line said he lost his nerve and could not carry out the suicide after he had pulled the trigger of his gun and it failed to discharge.

Dayton's plea to a second degree murder charge after he had been indicted for first degree murder, was accepted by the court after a plea by his counsel, Daniel S. Ring, and District Attorney Leo Rover had agreed. They are convinced Dayton's act was not premeditated.

MOTHER COLLAPSES

Mrs. Edith Dayton, mother of the slayer, who has been here since his arrest, collapsed when confronted by news photographers as she left the court house. Attaches of the marshal's office revived her.

Dayton appeared to be in a daze when led into court by a deputy marshal.

Back in the district jail at Dayton, speaking in a listless voice, observed:

"Justice, I guess, but hardly clemency. They gave me life—it's a long time; better, though than the electric chair, the sentence was just. I have no fault to find except with myself.

"I can only hope what has happened may do some good. Maybe someone will take this tragedy as an example."

Convict Chicago Thug In Baltimore Holdup

BALTIMORE, June 20.—(AP.)—Willie Niemoth, Chicago gangster suspect, was found guilty in Criminal Court today of complicity in the $47,000 payroll holdup at the Henry Sonneborn & Co. clothing plant here in 1926.

He had been brought here from Chicago, June 3, after resisting extradition for nearly four years.

Two Sent to Jail For Branding Girl

CALCUTTA, June 20.—(AP.)—Two Europeans were sentenced to six months' imprisonment each by the Howrah district magistrate today for branding a young Nepali servant girl with a red hot poker.

The two, who gave their names as C. D. Mortimer and Mrs. Monica Ryan, said the girl had failed to do her work.

SCHNEIDER OUT UNDER BOND OF $10,000

Accused Constable Faces Impeachment in Addition To Holdup Escape Charges

Facing removal from office through impeachment proceedings started by District Attorney Andrew T. Park, Constable John Schneider, of the First Ward, will be given an opportunity next Friday to deny accusations against him.

Judge Harry Rowand set Friday as the day for the accused constable to present defense to the charges of malfeasance, intemperance and unfitness for his position.

In addition, Schneider, who is at liberty under $10,000 bond, faces hearings on three other charges brought against him by Park's office—with being an accessory after the fact in the escape of Harry Andreini, robber suspect held by detectives, from the court house; as an accessory after the fact in the holdup of Regis Carr, of 509 West Lacock street, and as an accessory after the fact in the shooting of City Detective Florence Brunner.

POLICEMAN SUSPENDED

Charged with neglect of duty, Traffic Policeman Fred Smith today was suspended by order of James M. Clark, director of public safety. Smith, it is alleged, released Andreini at Schneider's request when Andreni was said to be a fugitive from justice after the Carr holdup. Smith's hearing before the Police Trial Board has been set for Wednesday.

John J. Varady, Andreini's counsel, said this morning after a talk with his client that Andreini absolved Schneider from any connection with the Carr holdup.

Varady had been refused permission yesterday to talk to Andreini and he started habeas corpus proceedings.

When police allowed him to talk to his client this morning Varady withdrew his application for the habeas corpus writ. Varady said Andreini told him police were trying to "frame" Schneider.

IMPLICATED SCHNEIDER

Andreini, held by detectives in connection with the holdup of a messenger for the South Hills Trust Company on Mt. Washington Monday, implicated Constable Schneider in his alleged confession of crimes.

He is said to have admitted to detectives that Schneider was able to influence a city policeman to release him after the officer had taken him into custody.

Schneider late yesterday blamed his troubles on politics. When asked for an explanation he referred reporters to Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh, who two weeks ago replaced Schneider as leader in the First Ward.

Carr was taken to the detective bureau last night and faced Andreini in a standup of prisoners. Detectives say he positively identified Andreini as the man who had held him up in his home.

Eighty-Pounder Becomes U. S. Citizen

Henry Boers Williams, three feet, three inches tall and weighing 80 pounds, today received his certificate of citizenship in the United States. He took the oath before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in the Federal Bulding this morning.

This new citizen was born in Cologne, Germany, in 1895 and arrived in New York in 1922. During the seasons when he is not with the John Robinson Circus, he lives at 802 Cedar avenue, North Side, with Eugene Steiner Williams, manager of the nine Williams Midgets.

RETURN IN MONTH

Mrs. Armstrong's first husband was Eugene Lewis, son of the late Mrs. Rosanna D. Lewis, of Darlington road. During the war Lewis enlisted in the Navy and died in the service.

Several years later she met Claude R. Wilson, president of the Continental Coal Company, and became his bride. Mr. Wilson died about eight years ago.

The parents of Mrs. Armstrong were Mr. and Mrs. James G. Strohn. She was born near Harmarville, where she has a sister, Mrs. Edith Federkeil, now living.

At the sister's home today, John E. Campbell, a cousin of Mrs. Armstrong's father, said that she had never given the slightest inkling of her intended marriage.

LIKE FATHER TO THEM

"I sort of became a second father to them," he said. "We had always been close and we were working together for the Rodgers Sand Company when their father died.

"The girls were always just like daughters to me and I think that much of them."

Several years after the death of her first husband, Campbell related:

"Ethel met C. E. Wilson and soon after became his wife. She worked with him in the office even before he died. And then when he passed away, she stayed on in the coal office, looking after her interests and managthem as well as any man."

KEPT SECRET WELL

Of her social life he said:

"She was almost always too busy to bother about society, but she was never too busy to come out to see us.

"Why, just last Sunday she was here, but she never gave us even the slightest inkling of her intended marriage.

"She said she was going away—up to Canada, I believe, to a fishing camp, but we didn't suspect anything when she told us and we were most certainly very much surprised when we heard about the wedding yesterday."

GUNMAN'S BODY FOUND IN PIT

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP.)—While efforts were proceeding with a reorganized police department to clear up the assassination of Jake Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, and free Chicago of gang domin tion, a new gangster slaying came to light today.

Lorenzo Juliano, 40, questioned by police in connection with eight murders and 12 bombings in the last three years, reached the end of the hoodlum trail.

His body, shot through the breast and found wrapped in canvas, was in an automobile which had been shunted into a deep clay pit near Blue Island, Southside suburb.

Daughter Entertains Vanderbilt and Bride

NEWPORT, R. I., June 20.—(AP.)—A Vanderbilt family reunion is starting with the Harvard-Yale regatta. Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Church is entertaining at her home tomorrow for the first time her father, William K. Vanderbilt; his bride, the former Rosamond Lancaster Warburton, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl E. T. Smith. Mrs. Church is Mrs. Smith's sister.

BROKER NEAR COLLAPSE AS QUIZ OPENS

Ran Shoestring Up to 15 Millions; Big Liabilities Alleged by Creditors

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP.)—Harold Russell Ryder, credited with having run a shoestring to $15,000,000 by trading on the stock exchange, was reported near collapse today as a county grand jury began investigation of the brokerage firm of which he was a member.

The firm, Woody & Co., was suspended yesterday by the exchange. Eugene I. Garey, counsel for creditors, said an audit of the books indicated liabilities of $3,000,000 and assets of not over $500,000.

Friends told of a drudge-to-playboy transformation in Ryder. For years he lived in an unpretentious Brooklyn apartment. Last fall he moved to Park avenue, began to entertain lavishly and became a well-known figure in Broadway night clubs. In the clubs he was known as "Night Ryder of Broadway" because of his lavish expenditures.

He also had a serious side, for last April he gave $200,000 to Union College of Schenectady for an electrical laboratory. The cornerstone of Ryder Hall was laid last week.

ROBBED GRAVE IN FIRE FRAUD

HARRISBURG, June 20.—(AP.)—The charred body found in a buried automobile near Hershey two years ago had been removed from a grave in an effort to perpetrate an insurance fraud, state police announced today after questioning Charles Kaldes, who was arrested in New York a week ago.

State police said that Kaldes, who was returned to this city last night in custody of Lieut. M. B. Bennett, had confessed that the whole affair was an attempt to defraud an insurance company of $25,000. The charred body in the car was at first identified as that of Kaldes.

Society Woman Dies In Crash; 2 Injured

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(INS.)—Mrs. Arthur Ringgold Spencer, of Villanova, prominent in society circles in this district, is dead, and two other prominent society women were suffering painful injuries today as the result of an automobile accident at Harmonville, between this city and Norristown.

The injured are Mrs. Grace D. Turk Devereux, widow of Alfred Plumstead Devereux, the polo player, and Mrs. Mildred Biddle Cadwalader, wife of Dr. William B. Cadwalader, of the University of Pennsylvania, all of Villanova.

B. and O. Treasurer Hurt in Collision

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(AP.)—Edward M. Devereux, treasurer of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and Mrs. Devereux, of Baltimore, were injured when their automobile collided with another car.

They were taken to Bryn Mawr Hospital, where physicians reported Devereux had suffered fractured ribs and several cuts, and Mrs. Devereux had cuts and bruises. Their son, Edward Jr., escaped uninjured.

Lindberghs Home After Brief Flight

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., June 20.—(INS.)—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were safe at home in the mansion of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow today after a two and one-half hour flight from Teterboro airport. They flew to Hartford, Conn., in their new low-winged monoplane in which they recently established a new coast-to-coast record flight.

Hint Prosecutions In Fairfax Disaster

BOSTON, June 20.—(AP.)—Federal hearings on the Fairfax-Pinthis disaster ended today with the warning from United States inspectors that if they found the evidence showed probable negligence, unskilfulness or recklessness on th part of any of the Fairfax officers, the accused would be tried in court.

Father Again Gives Blood To Fight Mystery Malady

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP.)—Blood from his father was transfused for the second time into the veins of Kenneth McKittrick, 8, early today as a final parry to save him from the mysterious malady which brought death to a sister and three brothers.

Physicians and scientists awaited the results of food tests today to determine the nature of the poisoning and its source. Contaminated water and a slow gas leak found in the children's bedroom also were suggested.

When Kenneth became steadily weaker his father, Benjamin McKittrick, submitted to his third blood transfusion in 48 hours—the first one having been made in an unsuccessful attempt to save the life of another son, Donald, 3.

The three other children, Evelyn, 5, Raymond, 2, and Paul, an infant, died a week ago. The sixth child, Eugene, 7, was said last night to be afflicted with whooping cough, but physicians were watching him for symptoms of the malady.

Son Takes Doctor's Pills; Pumped From Stomach

Bobby Losa, 4-year-old son of Dr. L. P. Losa, of 109 Nineteenth street, Homestead, firmly resolved in the Homestead Hospital today not to take any more of his father's pills.

Bobby's condition was good, his nurses said, but he didn't like being subjected to use of a stomach pump.

With his sister, Helen, 3, and Robert Tarasovic, 3, living next door, Bobby was playing around his father's automobile in front of their home last night while Dr. Losa ate his dinner. He had neglected to lock the car.

Climbing into the machine, Bobby and his sister found their father's medical kit, which they opened. Bobby sampled two of the pills and was about to try some more when their playmate ran to the door of the Losa home and cried: "Bobby's taking medicine."

Dr. Losa ran out and after a hasty survey hurried to the hospital with Bobby and Helen. It was found that Helen had swallowed none. Those swallowed by her brother made him ill, but caused no serious effects. Several boxes of poison tablets were among those with which the children had played.

RETURNS TO NEW YORK

Admiral Byrd will return to New York tomorrow and on Tuesday he will make a trip up the Hudson River on the United States destroyer Bainbridge to Albany to be awarded the state's medal of honor for his Polar achievements.

The explorer spoke in New York last night, before leaving for Washington, at a dinner of the Merchants' Association. He praised his companions on the Antarctic trip and left the recital of the scientific details of the exploration to Lawrence Gould, second in command and chief geologist of the Byrd party.

Admiral Byrd disclosed that 12 men had volunteered to remain at at Little America to operate a weather station but he refused to be responsible for their safety and did not leave them.

DECLARES MORALE HIGH

The men felt the monotony at times but gener lly the morale was high, he said.

Admiral Byrd will complete his public engagements on July 12 with a visit to St. Louis. He appeared tired and said he hoped after visiting St. Louis to take a long rest.

Capt. O. G. Bailey, New York representative of the expedition, said he estimated the cost of the Byrd trip as $800,000.

ERIE TO HONOR BYRD SCOUT

ERIE, Pa., June 20.—Proud of her youthful representative who has just returned from a 21-month voyage with Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd to the "Bottom of the World," Erie today was preparing to welcome home Paul Siple, the tall Sea Scout and Eagle Scout expected home next week. Siple is in Washington today.

A delegation of local Boy Scouts and Siple's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Siple, of 1158 Fifth street, were in New York to meet Paul on his return with the Byrd expedition yesterday. Mrs. W. L. Kettering, a sister, also was there to greet him. It was but for a scant few moments on the tug Riverside that the parents and sister could embrace the husky scout, Mrs. Siple declaring that "This is Byrd's Day."

Siple found a hundred or more telegrams of greeting awaiting him in New York, one from Gov. John S. Fisher, rejoicing in his safe return and telling him "Pennsylvania is proud."

Paul steamed into New York harbor on the Eleanor Bolling, but climbed aboard the city tug Riverside where his parents were awaiting him. Upon arrival at the battery he joined his companions of the expedition and rode with them to City Hall for the great reception. At City Hall, Chief Scout Executive James West and his son, Bob, awaited with a delegation of Erie Scouts to welcome Paul.

Dressed in a neat blue uniform and cap, Paul presented a picture of health. He is more than six feet in height and weighs close to 200 pounds. When he sailed away with Admiral Byrd, nearly two years ago, he was considered the rookie of the expedition. Before many weeks had passed he had found his place, doing as much work as any one member of the crew. He has received the warmest of praise from Byrd.

Kills Thief, Clubs, Arrests His Mate

DETROIT, June 20.—(AP.)—One of two robbers who held up a filling station today was shot and killed by Patrolman John Laird, who then used the butt of his pistol as a bludgeon and clubbed the other bandit into unconsciousness. The dead robber was identified as Oley I. McLean, 37. The captured robber is George J. Hamell.

Italy Voices Regret For Slur on France

CLARA ORDERED TO GO HOME

DALLAS, Tex., June 20.—(AP.)—Clara Bow, of the movies, said she would cut her intended two weeks' vacation short and leave tomorrow for Hollywood at the request of officials of her studio.

The famous "redhead" admitted the motion picture directors made the request because of published reports that she had come to Dallas to renew an affair with a young Dallas physician whom she admitted she once loved.

Several months ago reports were circulated that Miss Bow was to marry Harry Richman, Broadway singer.

"We have never officially broken our engagement," Miss Bow declared.

5 FACE COURT IN FAMILY ROW

Five members of two prominent Squirrel Hill families faced police court hearings today as a result of an alleged family quarrel in the home of Herbert Simon, 26, of 1723 Wightman street. Simon, police say, chased his father-in-law, Morris H. Harris, 47, of 5809 Northumberland street, and his brother-in-law, Roswell Harris, 18, from his home with a revolver.

According to the report at the Squirrel Hill Police Station, Herbert Simon and his wife, Blanche, 24, engaged in a quarrel. The wife then summoned her father and brother. The husband, police say, called upon his father, Simon Simon, 62, of 5435 Hobart street. The five were arrested on suspicious person charges and were released on bond of $1,000 each.

Morris Harris, police say, was struck on the head with a revolver and was treated by a physician. Young Simon was treated at the Montefiore Hospital for body bruises. Two revolvers were turned over to police by the elder Simon, police state.

Simon Simon is engaged in the meat packing business. Morris Harris is head of the Harris-McKeever chain of meat and grocery stores.

Vatican Lays Malta Trouble to Premier

VATICAN CITY, June 20.—(AP.)—A "white book" which the Vatican will issue tomorrow declares Lord Strickland, premier of Malta, is the chief cause of all the religious difficulties in the Island of Malta. The "white book" is an answer to a "blue book" on the same subject issued by the British government a fortnight ago.

Byrd Hints He'll Continue South Pole Research, Explore Vast Tract

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—Refusing to speak of the future "until we get squared away on this expedition," Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd today hinted, nevertheless, at more South Polar work. He said, just after his welcome here:

"We've got to get in and find out what's there. This work is a bug—and hard to get over.

"There is a perfectly tremendous lot of land there, but I'd rather not talk about what may be planned, as this expedition is not finished and we must clear up a debt of $50,000 to $100,000.

"We saw only 50,000 or so square miles of territory, but the sector I claimed for the United States may have a tremendous area. It stretches east of the Ross Dependency, Great Britain's claim, from the one hundred and fiftieth Meridian west."

VALUE MAY BE SHOWN

Asked about the value to mankind of proving a South Polar flight was feasible, he countered:

"Who knows? It was 100 years or more before our own country was put to use after its discovery.

"Within a few years, it may be that people will be flying down there. At least permanent weather stations should be established and it will be only a few years before they will."

He pictured the South Polar area as once a tropical land, with carboniferous deposits like America's coal age, but now in the clutches of an ice age with glaciers still active.

The bottom of the world, he said, has even more effect than the North on weather. He praised the members of his expedition who carried on the scientific studies in temperatures exceeding 75 degrees below zero.

MADE CLOSE OBSERVATIONS

There were half-hour observations, during the long polar night, of the Aurora Australis, believed to have great effect on the world's weather.

Important radio readings were taken, he said, especially of the short-wave echoes caught in their journey through space. The Heaviside Layer, at "mirror in the skies" which is held to reflect radio waves, also was studied.

From the welter of scientific material, four books will be written. Byrd will contribute one article, on geographical aspects.

Son-in-Law Slayer Sentenced for Life

ROCKFORD, Ill., June 20.—(AP.)—Despite a plea of insanity John Pokosa was convicted today of the murder of his daughter's bridegroom, Gordon Saaf, because of religious differences. The jury voted a life sentence.

Child Killed by Fall In Shallow Culvert

LEBANON, Pa., June 20.—(AP.)—Falling into a culvert only a foot deep, Ruth Marion Klepper, 3, of Pleasant Hill, suffered injuries which soon caused her death. She was playing with other children at the time.

POLICEMAN DIES IN GUN DUEL

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP.)—Patrolman Patrick Mitchell was shot and killed today in a gun duel with a bandit who held up a malt and hops store near Amsterdam avenue and Twelfth street. The bandit, who was wounded, identified himself as George Harris, 30, of Cleveland, O.

Mitchell saw the bandit as he ran from the store after the robbery, and opened fire as the man jumped on the running board of a taxicab. The bandit returned the shots and one took effect, the patrolman dying soon after he was taken to a hospital.

The loot from the malt and hops store was $7.

FEAR MOTHER OF 10 SUICIDE

Mrs. Florence Swartz, 35, mother of 10, was missing from her home in McKeesport today following a threat, police say, to end her life.

She disappeared in the general direction of the Monongahela River shortly after her husband, Oscar Swartz, a pigeon fancier, was arrested on a charge of abusing her.

After her husband was taken to jail from their home at 3021 Bowman avenue extension, Mrs. Swartz dressed in her best clothes, told neighbors of her intentions and walked away.

In police court today, Swartz was fined $50 and, in lieu of payment, went back to his cell.

DETROIT MAYOR FIGHTS RECALL

DETROIT, June 20.—(AP.)—Mayor Charles Bowles, through his chief supporter, John Gillespie, commissioner of public works, today prepared to fight the movement for his recall.

Petitions bearing 111,270 signatures, filed yesterday, are being checked in the city clerk's office by a special force. Reports today were that of 206,000 names more than 4,000 had been ruled out. The recall movement must have 89,470 accredited signers.

Gillespie, appearing at city hall, announced he would ask the Circuit Court for a restraining order to stop the check on the recall petitions at the city clerk's office.

Pastor to Wed, Says 100 Girls Sought Him

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP.)—Brooklyn's bachelor pastor, who has several times described his difficulties in remaining unmarried, is to wed. The Rev. Dr. Henry C. Offerman, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, is engaged to Miss Grace Altenau, a beauty who helped carry the daisy chain at Adelphic College.

"All sorts of tricks are thought of to win the special interest of the unmarried minister," he once said. "I believe I could write down the names of 100 very sweet girls who have been suggested to me as wonderful possibilities for the parsonage."

Fliers Seek Youth, Bride Feared Lost in Arctic

VANDERHOOF, B. C., June 20.—(INS.)—Airplanes manned by northwest mounted police veterans of the Arctic today soared the Dawson territory wilderness north of here in search of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Albee, Carmel, Cal., honeymooners who were believed to have perished in an isolated area from cold or starvation.

Ignoring warnings of trappers, the youthful pair trekked out over an unexplored path northward toward Alaska where they planned to pass the winter before sailing next spring for Siberia.

Incoming woodsmen said they had not seen the young geologist and his bride who carried only light packs. Provincial officials said Mr. and Mrs. Albee almost certainly had met death.

The lost pair left San Francisco in May, went to Vancouver by automobile, and hiked here where they disregarded warnings of the rigors of the northern summer.

CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, Cal., June 20.—(INS.)—Dispatches received here today from Vanderhoof, B. C., indicated that William H. Albee, 23, and his bride, Ruth, 20, Carmel artisans, had perished in the sub-Arctic wilds.

Well Gives Up Bodies of 3 'Taken for Ride' in Wagon

ROCKMART, Ga., June 20.—(AP.)—The stoning and stabbing of three young men taken for a ride in a one-horse wagon was being investigated by police here today on the theory that they were the victims of a gambling brawl.

Bill Hulsey and his son, Fred, were held on suspicion while Coroner B. H. Leonard ordered an inquest over the bodies of Cliff Jones, Lige Harper and Ernest McCullough. Other arrests were expected.

The bodies were found late yesterday in a dry well in a hilly, uninhabited section about six miles east of here by Alonzo Sorrell while he was hunting bee trees. He first saw articles of clothing and bloody stones near the well, then found the corpses stacked in its depths. Further investigation revealed a long trail of blood, the hoof-prints of a horse and the wheel-marks of a small farm wagon such as is used in this section.

Jones, Harper and McCullough were friends, who lived near the Goodyear place, where McCullough was employed. The condition of their bodies indicated they had been slain some time yesterday morning.

SUSPECT SEIZED IN MANIAC KILLINGS

IMPORTANT LETTER

Another and far more important letter also is in possession of detectives, it was revealed through which they hope to connect the suspect with the New York murders.

Efforts to learn the contents of this letter were unavailing. Detectives asserted revelation of the text might endanger their case.

Clarke wore a red sweater and cap when captured. A gray business suit was found in a grip in his room. Examination of the prisoner disclosed tattoo designs on his body.

He will be taken to New York late today for further questioning.

Police said he was arrested on information furnished by his mother, Mrs. Louise Clarke.

WARNS VICTIM'S BROTHER

That John Moszczynski of Philadelphia, a brother of the New York maniac slayer's first victim, is marked for death was the purport of a special delivery letter bearing a New York postmark received at his home today.

The letter gave Moszczynski until Saturday to "surrender valuable papers" under threat of being the "third on the list of the doomed." The madman instructed, his intended victim to leave "the papers" in the restroom of the Broad street railroad station here.

Relatives of the Moszczynski family today say they believed the "blonde" marked for death by the New York killer is the sister of the Moszczynski brothers—Mrs. Helen Moranski, 14 E. Washington avenue, Bath, N. Y.

Authorities have doubled the guard around the home of Moszczynski, whose brother, known as Joseph Mozynski, was the Phantom Slayer's first victim.

ANOTHER VICTIM SHOT

NEW YORK, June 20.—(INS)—The massacre murder apparently has struck again.

For the third time within a week, a man was shot in an automobile with no motive discernible.

Morris Horwitz, 50, an insurance man, was the third victim.

He is in a critical condition today, with a bullet in his stomach.

The two previous victims were killed outright.

WAS PUTTING UP CAR

"Get going."

Horwitz replied tersely:

HIT ON HEAD WITH GUN

The stranger reached inside the left door of the automobile and brought his revolver down on Horwitz' head. Then he fired into the slumped body of the insurance broker.

The would-be assassin vanished.

Within a few minutes, 300 policemen had formed a cordon around the scene. A futile house-to-house search for the attacker followed.

Two .45 caliber cartridge shells were found. The maniac had used smaller bullets in his Long Island slayings.

JACOB MINTZ — LEONARD MILLER — MARY A. DELASON

This picture was offered in Criminal Court by Photographer Harris in defending suit brought against him by the Delason woman for aggravated assault and battery on charges that he struck her. The picture shows her moving rapidly across the street from the Sproul home towards Harris as he was taking a picture of Sproul's car as it was seized by Constable Mintz. Notice her facial expression, just before she laid hand on the camera, according to testimony.

PHOTOGRAPHER FREED BY JURY

Leo J. Harris, a photographer for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, was acquitted of a charge of aggravated assault and battery in Criminal Court today by a jury which ordered the plaintiff, Miss Mary A. Delason of Thomas boulevard, to pay costs.

Miss Delason, who testified she was visiting at the home of Evangelist John W. Sproul, accused Harris of striking her on the head with his camera while he was taking a photograph outside the Sproul home in April. Harris' defense was that Miss Delason attempted to grasp his camera as he was photographing Sproul's automobile, seized by Deputy Constable Jacob Mintz, of Alderman Sol S. Goldstein's office, Murray avenue. He denied striking the woman.

Musician Defends Prodigy's Guardian

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP)—Louis Persinger, widely known violin teacher, declared he would not continue as instructor of Ruggiero Ricci, 9-year-old violin prodigy, if Miss Beth Lackey were removed as the child's guardian.

Persinger testified for the defense in habeas corpus proceedings brought by the boy's father to regain custody of Ruggiero and his brother, Giorgio. Miss Lackey, Persinger said, has always been most unselfish and devoted in her relations with the young violinist.

Love Notes Confuse Byrd's First Aide

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP)—When Larry Gould writes his sweetheart he doesn't know what he is going to say and when he has finished, he doesn't know what he has said. Such was Rear Admiral Byrd's preface to his own remarks at a banquet. He was referring to his second in command, Dr. Lawrence M. Gould, geologist of the Antarctic expedition.

Window Smashed, 50 Suits Stolen

Fifty suits of clothes were stolen today from the tailor shop of A. Finel at 1407 Fifth avenue, according to a police report. A padded milk bottle was hurled through a window and the suits taken. A pedestrian stated three Negroes were seen driving away from the scene.

Coal Miner Killed At Brackenridge

Joseph Tereski, 45, of 61 Spruce street, Natrona, was killed last midnight while at work in the Brackenridge mine of the Allegheny Coal and Coke Company. The report to the coroner states Tereski was riding on a coal car when his head struck the roof.

Auto Strikes Cow, Pittsburgher and Warden Hurt

BERWICK, Pa., June 20.—(AP)—Warden W. J. McFarland of Rockview Penitentiary, and James Heger, Pittsburgh, were shaken up and slightly cut when their automobile struck a cow on the highway near here.

The machine was badly damaged. The men were on their way to the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention at Wilkes-Barre.

OTTO RUMORED ANEW AS KING

BUCHAREST, June 20.—(AP)—Rumors have been revived throughout Rumania of the likelihood of new efforts to place Archduke Otto upon the throne of Hungary and Austria.

The young Archduke now is attending school in Belgium. The newspapers Tsara and Curentul asserted that when he reached the age of 18 in November he would become affianced to the youngest daughter of the king of Italy, thus obtaining the support of Italy for his plans.

Reports have been current since last winter of a movement to place Otto on the Hungarian throne. The Legitimist party holds that Otto, the son of the late Emperor Charles and the former Empress Zita, automatically became reigning king of Hungary when he reached the age of 16 in 1928.

U. S. Force to Watch Nicaraguan Election

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP)—More than 1,300 marines and sailors will be in Nicaragua in November to assist Capt. A. W. Johnson, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary, in supervising the elections.

Capt. Johnson, the Navy said, was to sail from New York today. To the present Nicaraguan Marine Corps detachment of 764 men and officers are to be added 170, who will sail Monday on the aircraft carrier Lexington. 34 who will reach Nicaragua about July 10, and 322 sailors who also are expected to reach the Central American country about July 15.

Cigars and Candy To Rout Gloom At Funeral

NEWBERRY, Mich., June 20.—(AP)—The will of John M. Young provides for an innovation in funerals. It reads in part:

"I want a monument to cost not more than $150, musicians for pallbearers, no sad pieces to be played, and a good lively one at the grave.

"I request to buy 100 cigars to be smoked by all men at my funeral, hearse, hack drivers and all, to smoke from the time they start until they return home.

"I request to buy candy and gum for the women folks and children. Men, women and children, have a good time on me!"

INDIAN REBELS BOMB 6 CITIES

BOMBAY, June 20.—(INS)—Abandonment of their passive disobedience campaign by Indian Nationalists was feared today after bomb explosions in six cities.

Lahore, Lyalpur, Gujranwala, Rawalpindi, Amritsar and Peshawar were shaken by the blasts and a policeman was killed. Reports said two other Punjab cities had been bombed, but these were not verified, nor were the names of the cities given.

Declaration of a "Jehad" (Holy War), it is reported, has been made by the Haji of Turangzai, whose tribesmen recently were decimated by British artillery and airplanes. Other tribes are said to be joining in the movement.

FAIRMOUNT, Minn., June 19.—(AP)—The Rev. Ralph Keithahn of Fairmount, a missionary to India, has been ordered to leave that country by the British government, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Keithahn, were advised today.

Radio-Driven Car "Arrested" by Police

EAST CHICAGO, Ind., June 20.—(AP)—A driverless automobile which was out for a ride all by itself was taken into custody yesterday by police, but was finally turned loose because there is no law against it.

The machine was rolling along, obeying stop lights and performing better than many cars that have drivers. The owner, Rimmo Lee, explained that the car was operated by radio.

Mayor's Wife Hurt In Attack by Bird

ROCK ISLAND, Ill., June 20.—(AP)—A bluejay attacked Mrs. Chester Thompson, wife of Rock Island's mayor, yesterday, and inflicted a severe wound in her scalp.

Mrs. Thompson was hanging out clothes in the back yard when the bluejay wheeled down and began viciously pecking her head. She fought off the bird and called to her husband who later called police. The officers shot three birds and found a nest of young.

Beauty Title Fight Put Up to Judges

MIAMI, Fla., June 20.—(AP)—G. A. Truce, president of the Miami International Beauty Pageant Association, said he had placed before contest judges claims that first and second places in the contest here to select "Miss America" had been awarded to entrants ineligible to compete.

The officials will likely name Miss Margaret Fadahl of Tampa, who won third place, to represent the United States in a pageant at Rio de Janeiro.

Atlanta Alderman Sent to Chain Gang

ATLANTA, Ga., June 20.—(AP)—Alderman J. T. Turner, convicted yesterday on one of two counts of bribery, was sentenced to serve 12 months on the chain gang and fined $500 by Judge Virlyn B. Moore of Fulton Superior Court. After he was sentenced the alderman said he would resign his post.

Seek 2 Girl Scouts Lost in Mountains

YAKIMA, Wash., June 20.—(AP)—Search began today for Evelyn Krautkremer, 18, and Marian Converse, 17, Yakima Girl Scouts, reported missing in the Upper Naches district near here since Tuesday.

Sheriff's deputies believe the girls may be exhausted from exposure and hunger.

Naval Pact Envoys Honored in Japan

TOKIO, June 20.—(AP)—Reijiro Wakatsuki and Admiral Hyo Takarabe, delegates to the London Naval Conference, today presented their formal report to Emperor Hirohito.

Later the Emperor and Empress presided at a luncheon for the delegates, cabinet members and court dignitaries. It was expected the treaty will be submitted to the privy council within a few days for ratification.

Police Seek Gypsy; Find Him in Cell

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP)—The South Halsted street colony that knows Tine Bimbo as the king of the gypsies" feared for his safety after he had been missing three days.

So police searched for hours before they found "King" Bimbo in a cell in the Lawndale district police station. Bimbo was being held for questioning.

U. S. Pacific Fleet Moving Homeward

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 20.—(AP)—After an absence of four months on the East coast, the United States Pacific fleet was moving homeward today. Ten vessels slipped into port yesterday and a dozen more were expected to reach California ports today.

Morrow and G. O. P. Chiefs To Weigh Anti-Dry Plank

NEWARK, N. J., June 20.—(AP)—Announcement that Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, New Jersey's Republican nominee for United States senator, will meet party leaders Monday to discuss putting an anti-dry plank in the Republican platform was made by E. Bartram Matt, chairman of the state Republican committee.

Morrow ran on a platform advocating repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and state liquor control.

Matt indicated that Morrow would make no attempt to dictate a plank on prohibition, and expressed belief the candidate would be disinclined to influence candidates for state offices in dry counties.

Mr. Morrow will address the Republican state convention in Trenton Tuesday.

With 16 districts of the state still missing, the unofficial vote in the Republican senatorial primary gives Morrow 419,464 votes against Franklin Fort's 118,236.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Dwight W. Morrow, Republican nominee for the United States Senate from New Jersey, who won an astounding victory on an anti-prohibition platform, will come to Washington Monday to be the guest of President Hoover.

Ambassador Morrow will confer with the President and Secretary of State Stimson for two days. He will leave for Mexico City about Wednesday, wind up his affairs and resign from the diplomatic corps.

The conference of Ambassador Morrow and President Hoover is confidently expected to be far-reaching in importance.

PACT TEMPEST REVIVED, REED SCORES FOES

Pennsylvanian Promises U. S. Security Under Naval Arms Treaty; Line Up for Fight

International News Service

WASHINGTON, June 20—Controversy over the London Naval Treaty was brewing anew today as the nation mulled over the latest expression from Senate leaders, a vigorous radio appeal for ratification by Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania.

Reed scored the onslaught of Senator Hiram Johnson, Republican of California, in the past Wednesday night as a "denunciation, not a description," and pictured the document as a harbinger of international security.

One of the senators sent to the London conference out of which the treaty evolved, Reed promised the document embraced no surrender of American rights as charged by Johnson. Instead he said it contained substantial advantages for the United States.

DUE IN SENATE SOON

His address came as opponents of the naval arms agreement announced they had just begun to fight.

Within a fortnight the battle is expected to be shifted to the Senate, called in extra session to ratify the treaty. The opposition today was forming defense tactics against rumored efforts to invoke cloture or debate limitation, which leaders believe would insure speedy ratification of the treaty.

Led by Senator Johnson, the forces opposing the treaty still have hopes of postponing action on it until next fall.

Administration chieftains were confident the Senate would not go home this summer with the treaty unratified.

PROMISES SECURITY

The Pennsylvanian in his address promised security against attack, economy in naval construction and fairly balanced fleets between the world's greatest naval powers as the fruits of ratification of the treaty. Criticism of it, he asserted is coming only from "big-navy groups" in Great Britain and Japan as well as the United States.

Reed summarized:

"This treaty removes competition in naval construction among the three leading naval powers in the world, and it does so in every category of ship. It gives all three countries a holiday from battleship building during the next seven years and saves the taxpayers of the United States an outlay of $400,000,000 on replacement of battleships alone.

"It allows the peoples of these three great nations to rest secure in the knowledge that no one of the three can be attacked in its home waters by any navy on earth. It makes it plain to all the world that none of the three countries is designing a war upon either of the others. It promotes to an important degree the international friendship we all desire.

"I am confident common sense will prevail and that the treaty will be ratified."

OBITUARY

McHenry Funeral

Funeral services for Mrs. George McHenry, 65, who died Tuesday, will be held at the home, 823 Maple lane, Sewickley, at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow. Services will be in charge of the Rev. Joseph C. Hamilton, pastor of the Sewickley United Presbyterian Church, of which Mrs. McHenry was a member, and the Rev. A. J. Turkle, pastor of the Trinity Lutheran Church, Pittsburgh. She was born in old Allegheny, and was educated in the schools of that district. She had been a resident of Sewickley 29 years. For many years she had been active in the Women's Bible Class of the United Presbyterian Church, as well as in other branches. She leaves a son, William H. McHenry, and a daughter, Miss Elsie M. McHenry, of Sewickley; a brother, Charles Wann, of Bellevue, and a sister, Anna Wann, of the North Side.

Tannehill Funeral

Funeral services were to be held today for Nathan R. Tannehill, 82, retired farmer, who died Wednesday at his home in Chartiers Township, Washington County. The services were to be held in the family home and interment was to be in the Oak Spring Cemetery, Canonsburg. Mr. Tannehill was born in Chartiers Township and had been a life-long resident of Washington County. For many years he was engaged as a farmer and stock breeder, retiring about 12 years ago. He was a member of the Canonsburg United Presbyterian Church. Besides his widow, Mrs. Mary Catherine Sample Tannehill, he leaves two sons, James S. Tannehill and Newton A. Tannehill, both of Canonsburg, and two grandchildren.

Stumpf Funeral

Funeral services for Charles Stumpf, 75, retired furniture merchant, who died Wednesday night in his home, 1160 Franklin street, will be held tomorrow in his late residence. Burial will be in Rosedale Cemetery, Sewickley road. Mr. Stumpf was a life-long resident of Pittsburgh and had been engaged in the furniture business on the North Side 45 years, retiring about 10 years ago. He was a member of Mozart Lodge, I. O. O. F., the Past Grand Association, District No. 4, and the German Evangelical Protestant Church. He leaves a daughter, Miss Agnes Stumpf; two brothers, William and Peter Stumpf, a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Grumken, and two grandchildren, all residing in Pittsburgh.

Anton Funeral

Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Mrs. Catherine Byrne Anton, widow of George Anton, who died Wednesday night in her home at 224 South Aiken avenue. The services will be held in St. Lawrence's Catholic Church, and burial will be in Calvary Cemetery. Mrs. Anton was born in Chicago and came to Pittsburgh in 1908. She was a member of St. Lawrence's Church. She leaves three sons, James C., William G. and Francis P. Anton, of Pittsburgh; a brother, William C. Byrne, and a sister, Mrs. Harry Crawford, both of Chicago.

Mrs. Augusta Yekel

Mrs. Augusta Yekel, 79, widow of Herman Yekel, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Seddon, 208 Rustic avenue, Mt. Oliver. She was a member of the German United Evangelical Church of Birmingham. She leaves three daughters, Mrs. Seddon, Mrs. George Topping, of California, and Mrs. George Gross; three sons, John, William and Albert; 23 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Wicktorin Funeral

Funeral services for Mrs. Elizabeth Wicktorin, 59, wife of Frank Wicktorin, were to be held today in the Smith funeral home, 620 East Ohio street. Interment was to be in Ridgelawn Cemetery, Reserve Township. Mrs. Wicktorin died Tuesday in her home at 1309 East street. She was born in Germany and came to the United States 29 years ago. Besides her husband, she leaves a brother, Adam Arras, of New York, and three sisters, Mrs. Katherine Horth, of Millvale; Mrs. Barbara Raak, Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Mary Walter, of Germany.

Dr. Charles E. Manon

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 20—Dr. Charles E. Manon, 54, veteran of the Spanish-American War and a native of Van Buren, is dead in the United States Military Hospital, Marion, Ind. He was a son of the late William A. and Hannah Manon. He studied dentistry, being graduated from the University of Pittsburgh. He was a member of Company H, Tenth Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and served in the Philippine campaign. He leaves one son, Ralph Manon, of Charleroi. Dr. J. W. Manon, of Charleroi, is a brother.

Banks Funeral

Funeral services for John D. Banks, 65, who died yesterday at his home, 1642 McFarland road, Dormont, will be held tonight. Burial will be in South Side Cemetery tomorrow. He leaves his widow, two sons, Marion and Robert Banks, at home; a daughter, Miss Ella Banks, of Boston, and two brothers.

ANTI-DRYS WIN IN CANADA

ST. JOHN, N. B., June 20 (AP)—The conservative government which in the last session of Parliament replaced prohibition with a law for sale of liquor under government control was returned to power yesterday, although with a reduced majority.

Led by Premier J. B. Baxter, the conservatives captured 31 seats in the House of Commons, the liberal opposition won 17.

The result indicates a loss of four seats for the conservatives and a gain of six for the Liberals. At the dissolution of Parliament the standing in the House was: Conservatives 35, Liberals 11, Vacant 2.

HONOR PUPIL GOES ABROAD

Miss Phoebe Helen Miller Flint, of Crafton, honor student at the University of Vermont, who was graduated cum laude phi beta kappa, will sail June 28 on a three-months tour of Europe. She took part in many activities in the university, was a member of the editorial staff of the junior class book and had a leading part in the junior play and served on the varsity women's hockey team.

On a trip abroad she will sail from Montreal with her father, the Rev. Dr. Homer A. Flint, secretary of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Pittsburgh.

MAN, GIRL HELD IN ATTACK CASE

Nathan Stein, 32, of 1832 Tonapah avenue, Beechview, is being held on a charge of assaulting Dorothy Friday, 22, of 21 Stanwood street, Crafton. She is being held on a disorderly conduct charge as the result of a hearing in Morals Court today.

Miss Friday testified that Stein attacked her yesterday in his clothing store at 2737 Penn avenue. Stein said the girl has been in his store several times lately endeavoring to buy a dress without down payment and that when he showed no interest yesterday she said she would get even with him.

Benjamin Denawetz, 7, of 6382 Eddy street, said that he was in the store and heard the girl say she would make trouble for Stein.

Miss Friday said that in order to get away from Stein she bit him in the face and kicked him.

Divorce Rush Sets Record; 103 Cases Up Next Week

The greatest divorce period in the history of Allegheny County courts is scheduled for next week.

Chief Clerk Robert J. Moore of the assignment room, Common Pleas Court, has listed 103 cases to be heard.

27 Graduate at School for Deaf

Thirteen deaf children and 14 teachers in training were graduated this morning at the Western Pennsylvania School for the Deaf in Edgewood. The diplomas were given out by Supt. A. C. Manning. Girls in the dressmaking department gave a fashion show as part of the exercises, wearing dresses they had made.

SENATOR BAIRD WEDS WIDOW

CAMDEN, N. J., June 20—(AP)—United States Senator David Baird, Jr., and Mrs. Francis H. Smith, widow of his former business associate, were quietly married last night.

Telegrams to close friends announced the marriage, but they revealed nothing else. They contained no intimation as to the whereabouts of the pair, where the ceremony took place or where they intend to spend their honeymoon.

Senator Baird, however, is expected to be in Trenton Tuesday for the state convention of the Republican party. It is known that he has passports permitting his wife and himself to sail for Europe, but they are not to be used until July 1.

Printed Chiffon Dresses

Street and Afternoon Types —A New Collection for Women

Keep cool and look delightfully feminine at the same time—that is what this special, new group of frocks makes it possible for women to do at all hours of the summer day. For there are frocks simple and dark enough for shopping and general town wear, and others suited to informal and formal afternoon parties.

The dresses pictured show the two extremes of the wide range . . . A frock with matching long-sleeve jacket for street wear, in navy blue with white figures. (Similar ones are in black-and-white.) And an afternoon frock with capelet in lieu of sleeves, typical of the more formal models which have large patterns on light grounds . . . Rather simple types, with small patterns on black or navy, have frilled elbow sleeves.

In sizes 34 to 46.

...Horne's, Second Floor...

Vacation Hats

One can choose hats for the complete vacation wardrobe, in the large assortment at this modest price.

Rough straws in various models, including the revived sailor, for all casual wear . . . Panama and milan hats to accompany sports and tailored outfits . . . Hair hats to wear with sheer afternoon frocks . . . Taffeta hats, for travel.

Jacket Frocks for Misses

New Ones for Saturday

$15

The popular costume of the moment, in a variety of types, at a special price—what more could a young woman ask?

. . . Active and spectator sports types of chuddah, shantung, and senoussi, the new lighter-weight silk. In white, light colors, some with white frocks and colored jackets, or in black . . . With one-piece sleeveless frocks, or with tuck-in pique blouses.

...Horne's, Second Floor...

Pumps
One-Straps
Oxfords

$7.50

White linen shoes . . . which we will tint any color you wish without additional charge . . . are almost a necessity in the summer shoe selection. They're wearable with so many types of dresses, and their cool appearance is not the least part of their appeal. The oxford has a Cuban heel, the other two models high heels.

...Horne's, Fourth Floor...

Lots of Bracelets

—Are Needed This Summer

SCHOOL AFIRE, 126 RESCUED

CHICAGO, June 20 (AP).—Frank Ramieri, father of Billy Ramieri, who was kidnaped two years ago, led the rescue of 120 children imperiled by a fire at the Niles Center public school.

Ramieri, a sewer contractor, was supervising work on a job near the school when he saw smoke coming from the roof.

After turning in an alarm the contractor loaded his crew on a truck and drove to the school in time to conduct the children safely to the street. When the village fire fighting force arrived the two crews combined and extinguished the flames.

Father Killed, Son Hurt by Slate Fall

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 20.—A fall of slate in the Sagamore Coal and Coke Company mine near Latrobe killed Joseph Vadue, 50, of Derry Township. His son, Joseph, 18, was seriously injured.

Greene County Plans To Close Road Link

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 20.—Announcement is made that the county will construct one mile of concrete on the Waynesburg-Blacksville road, a part of the Clarksburg, W. Va., to Pittsburgh route. Construction will leave only two miles of unimproved road between Charleston, W. Va., and Pittsburgh.

GERMAN SLAYS POLISH GUARD

TYCK, East Prussia, June 20 (AP).—Another clash between German and Polish frontier guards was reported from the frontier station of Prostken. A German customs officer shot dead a Polish customs man.

The German asserted he acted in self-defense. East Prussian authorities have gone to investigate.

Several weeks ago a Polish officer died from wounds inflicted in collision with German frontier guards, and other Poles were wounded.

DELAY 14 RADIO POWER CASES

WASHINGTON, June 20 (AP).—The Federal Radio Commission postponed until fall hearings on the applications of 14 broadcasting stations for permission to use power of 50,000 watts.

The commission recently decided to limit the number of high-power stations to prevent interference and bring about a more equitable allotment of power among the five radio zones.

Stations whose hearings were postponed are WHAM, Rochester, N. Y.; WOWO, Fort Wayne, Ind.; WSM, Nashville, Tenn.; WSB, Atlanta, Ga.; WRVA, Richmond, Va.; WAPI, Birmingham, Ala.; WCFL, Chicago; WHO, Des Moines; WOC, Davenport, Ia.; KWKH, Shreveport, La.; WWJ, Detroit; WSBM, Indianapolis; KGO, Oakland, Cal., and KTNT, Muscatine, Ia.

New Bridge Shops To Be Ready in Fall

AMBRIDGE, Pa., June 20.—Work on the erection of the new beam and machine shops for the American Bridge Company will be completed October 1.

The new shops, erected at a cost of $1,500,000, will increase production of the plant 5,000 tons monthly and give employment to 220 additional workmen.

BROKER SUICIDE OVER LOSSES

NEW YORK, June 20 (AP).—Walter Werner, broker and representative of foreign banks, was found dead in his apartment on Fifth avenue, a bullet in his head.

A note said he had suffered severe losses in the stock market. A check for $1,000 made out to "cash" lay on top of the note, which directed that the money be used for funeral expenses.

Werner was 37 and unmarried.

WEDDING season is in our midst, and there comes the embarrassment of wondering what is the proper gift to give the bride. The only correct answer is "Jewelry," whether the donor be the groom with his rope of pearls, or a friend or relative. How nice to start a silver service, to give pieces to augment her flat silver. Silver vases, pitchers, dresser sets or coffee and tea services. You know when you purchase that it will always be her most cherished gift—and its value never lessens. Give jewelry to the bride. For timely selections, read the advertising columns of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

JOBS FOR 2,000 ON WARSHIPS

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—Continued modernization of battleships in the Philadelphia Navy Yard, as at present contemplated by the Navy Department, should keep approximately 2,000 employes on the payroll for another year, Representative Darrow, of Philadelphia, said here.

The Navy Committee of the House, he said, would meet today to consider the administration's policy in the expenditure of $29,793,750 for modernization work. Chairman Britten of the Naval Affairs Committee, foresaw prompt passage of the Darrow bill, which would assign the reconditioning work to Philadelphia and Norfolk yards. Britten further anticipated prompt appropriation of funds to prosecute the work.

COSTE'S OCEAN PLANE TESTED

He had aboard a weight equivalent to 1,000 gallons of gasoline. The plane behaved beautifully, Costes covering nearly 240 miles in two hours.

Coste has always insisted that in order to make a successful flight from Paris to New York he must have a plane capable of averaging 120 miles an hour under full load for the first 12 hours.

It is unlikely that he will attempt the flight before the next full moon, about July 10.

Dedication Plans Made at Morganza

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 20.—Dedication of the new administration building at the Pennsylvania Training School, Morganza, erected at a cost of more than $300,000, will be held next Tuesday, June 24.

Gen. Edward Martin, state treasurer, will represent the governor and the dedicatory address will be delivered by Mrs. E. S. H. McCauley, head of the State Department of Welfare. The response will be made by William D. Cotterel, Pittsburgh banker and president of the board of trustees.

WILKINS GIVES SUB POLE PLAN

PARIS, June 20.—(INS.)—Lincoln Ellsworth, American explorer who flew over the North Pole with Amundsen today was preparing to discuss final plans with Sir Hubert Wilkins for the latter's projected submarine expedition to the North Polar regions. He sailed abroad on the Mauretania last Saturday.

Sir Hubert has announced the following tentative schedule of plans:

1—Entire expedition expects to leave New York next June for Spitzbergen. From there the submarine cruise under the ice, possibly across the North Pole and on to Alaska will be made.

2—Sir Hubert will leave soon for Berlin, Amsterdam and London to buy the expedition's scientific equipment.

3—He expects to return to New York before August 1 to install special equipment on the submarine the U. S. Navy has promised him at a dollar a year nominal rental.

4—Commander Dannehauer will be master of the submarine and Dr. H. Sherdrup chief of the scientific staff.

NANKING CHIEFS STAGE COUP

PEIPING, June 20.—(INS.)—With possibility of foreign intervention growing after the seizure of the customs house at Tientsin by the Northern rebel leader Yen Hsi-Shan, the commissioner for the Nationalist government today staged a sudden coup, seizing the customs house and locking it.

The staff was induced to leave and Yen Hsi-Shan's representatives were unable to intervene forcibly as the customs house is on territory of the French concession in Tientsin.

Charge Negligence, Sue for $25,000

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—The present congress was termed an "absolute failure so far as dealing constructively with the problem of unemployment" in a statement issued by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Green said the Federation was deeply disappointed over the House Judiciary Committee action in voting to refer the Wagner Employment Agency bill to a subcommittee.

"We consider such action," he said, "as an expression of hostility and opposition to this proposed measure." He also expressed regret at the committee's amendments to the Wagner bill for long range planning of public works, terming the amendments "highly objectionable to labor."

Actor to Celebrate 60 Years on Stage

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP.)—Jefferson de Angelis, 71, is to celebrate next Thursday evening the sixtieth anniversary of his first appearance on the stage.

17 Tunnel Laborers Poisoned in Mystery

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20.—(INS.)—How 17 men employed on the Hetch Hetchy project of the City of San Francisco's water supply system were poisoned was the subject of investigation today.

The workmen were stricken shortly after eating dinner yesterday and were treated in hospitals.

Significance was attached to the mystery poisoning in view of the unexplained blast that two weeks ago killed seven men at work in the Calaveras Tunnel of the project.

Mothers of Thin Underweight Children

Don't Delay Accepting Local Druggist's Weight-Increasing Offer

It makes a mother's heart ache to see her poor, underweight child losing strength with hollow-cheeked misery and pale, sleepless nights. Dutch Cleanser is the magic necessity.

Thanks to a wonderful scientific discovery druggists are now guaranteeing Mother's Friend Lacto Tablets, which will cover up your child's ribs, round out his chest, bury out his cheeks, greatly increase his strength, vigor and vitality—just as they did for the New Jersey boy who recently gained 10 pounds in 21 days.

Your child will like these pleasant sugar-coated tablets, so full of pure cod liver oil extract Tobasco must give any underweight man, woman or child the desired increase in weight or money refunded. Just ask for Mother's Friend Lacto Tablets—60 tablets 60 cents.

CONGRESS MAY QUIT JUNE 28

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Administration leaders' hopes for adjournment of Congress June 28 revived today when the Senate settled the controversial features of the $136,000,000 rivers and harbors bill and paved the way for its enactment this afternoon.

The legislative program called for consideration of the World War pension act immediately after passage of the waterway bill. A final vote on the pension measure is expected by Saturday afternoon. Then the only pending legislation will be the Parker bus bill, although Congress will remain in session until President Hoover has acted on the waterway and pension bills.

The pension measure faced considerable oratory over the cost of the proposed relief. It has been reported that President Hoover will veto this measure if, in its final form, it calls for more than $50,000,000.

Should the bill be vetoed, an effort will be made to re-pass it, as was done with the Spanish-American War pension act.

Utility Employes Picnic Tomorrow

One of the biggest picnic days of the season is set for Kennywood Park tomorrow when the annual outing of the Associated Philadelphia Companies will be held, with employes of the Pittsburgh Railways, Duquesne Light and Equitable Gas present with their families.

Schools of the Ninth Ward and the Lucky and Snodgrass schools held outings at the park today, with Bertha C. McEntee, Harry Hall and Laura Grine on the Ninth Ward committee, and J. S. Fruit, principal, representing the Lucky and Snodgrass schools.

Shoots Stepfather For Abusing Sister

CHICAGO, June 20.—(INS.)—Elmer Rogers, 17-year-old high school boy, was held in technical custody today after having shot and probably fatally wounded his stepfather, Earl Felton, who, the youth told police, had cursed and abused the boy's 15-year-old sister.

Angered at the way his sister was being treated, the youth said he seized a gun belonging to his stepfather and fired six shots at Felton. One took effect just below the heart.

MANY AT FLARE VICTIM'S BIER

Scores of his fellow high school students today visited the home of Harold G. Ewens, Jr., 17, of 1486 Greenmount avenue, Dormont, who was killed yesterday by an explosion of gunpowder with which he was experiment in flare making in the basement. He was a junior at Dormont High and popular among the students.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in his home by the Rev. Warner S. Gookin, of Trinity Cathedral, where Harold had been a choir boy and star center on a basketball team. Interment will be in Highwood Cemetery.

Japanese Prince Inspects Zeppelin

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, June 20.—(AP.)—Prince Tahamasu, brother of the Japanese emperor, accompanied by his wife, today inspected the Graf Zeppelin and Dornier plants here.

GETS CAR BACK AFTER BATTLE

Federal Narcotic Inspector Joseph T. Colebob, of 102 Sampson street, told a dramatic story in Morals Court today of how he had recovered his automobile last evening from an armed youth after pursuit on the running board of a friend's car for 15 blocks on the North Side. During the chase, Colebob said, he fired twice at the fugitive.

Colebob related:

"After this lad (pointing to William Busler, 16, of 1442 Nixon street,) jumped out of the car at Gironda street, I ran up an alley after him. As I got close, he whipped a gun from his pocket and stuck it against my stomach. I took the gun from him and with the assistance of John Haggerty, turned him over to the police."

Haggerty lives at 1506 Arch street. It was his car that Colebob used in the chase.

Busler was held for further investigation. So was Charles Martin, alias Williams, who told police he is 15, of 43 Straus street. Busler said Martin was in the car with him when they were overtaken. Martin denied this.

Colebob car was taken, he testified, about 6:10 p. m. from in front of his home. Lieut. Frank Ferris, of the city detectives' homicide squad, lives in the same house.

Carmen Surprise Retired Motorman

Twenty street car motormen and conductors last night gave a surprise party to Andy Schmidt, 67, at his home, 75 Summer street, Bellevue, retired and pensioned by the Pittsburgh Railways Company after serving as a motorman 40 years and five months. They presented him a clock.

Mississippi Flood Control Bill Signed

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—President Hoover has signed the Ragon bill appropriating $5,030,000 for flood control work on the Mississippi River and its tributaries and for restoring damage done to levees by previous floods, including that of 1927.

'ABDUCTED' GIRL RETURNS HOME

Evelyn White, 14, South Hills High School freshman, whose mysterious disappearance six weeks ago caused widespread police search for her supposed abductors, was back home today, a repentant runaway, according to her parents.

She had been working in Columbus, O., since May 6, she said, first in a restaurant, then in a store and finally as nursemaid in a home.

Through welfare agencies, her father, Alex White, of 120 Secane avenue, Mt. Washington, had learned of her whereabouts. He went to Columbus and brought her back by auto Tuesday night. She told her mother:

"I'm happy and glad to get back home."

According to the mother, her daughter has not been asked to explain why she called by telephone, the day of her disappearance, and said frantically she was being held by someone against her will.

On that same day, she had told her parents she journeyed to Columbus by train.

Smock for Frock Latest Mode In Congress

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—Washington's warm weather caused inauguration of a new feminine fashion on the floor of the House.

It was black with white collars, cuffs, and pocket-facing, very trim and neat, although informal.

Mrs. Rogers, proud of her smock, explained it was made by four sixth grade girls of Lowell, Mass., her district.

Pittsburgh Youth Joins Naval Reserve

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—Of the 106 graduates of the Naval Reserve Officers Training Corps, conducted in six universities, two are Pennsylvanians. They will be commissioned ensigns in the Reserve Corps.

The Pennsylvanians completing the four-year course are Henry B. Bassett, 5440 Northumberland street, Pittsburgh, and Percy Clark, Jr., Cynwyd, both students at Harvard University.

'RICH' BEGGAR'S 'ROLL' THINNER

Things have gone a little sour in the house-to-house begging racket so far as Frank Ukasavich, 58, who have his address as Second avenue and Grant street, is concerned.

Last night, Ukasavich had $280 when he was searched by Munhall police. This morning over in South Side court before Magistrate John J. Sweeney he had $227. Ten dollars of his roll went to pay a fine assessed by Magistrate Sweeney for begging in Hays late yesterday afternoon. Another $15 was a forfeit posted with Munhall police for appearance which Ukasavich was prevented from making because of his date with Magistrate Sweeney.

Another $28 just disappeared.

'Undercover Man' Shoots 2 in Fight

NEW ORLEANS, June 20.—(AP.)—Stanley Lirett, 34, and Robert Addison, 24, Negro, were shot and wounded early today in an encounter with John W. Williams, 27, of Washington, D. C., who said he was a prohibition undercover agent.

Williams after surrendering to police, said that the encounter was a resumption of a difficulty he had with Lirett yesterday in what he described as the latter's speakeasy on Iberville street.

JOB INSURANCE PLAN OFFERED

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 20 (AP).—The General Electric Company offered an unemployment insurance plan to its employes under which workers laid off would continue to receive up to $20 per week for as much as 10 weeks in any year.

At the same time, the company promised to stabilize its force to hiring new workers slowly when business is increasing, and to keeping payrolls at a minimum during dull periods through maintenance and similar work.

Any General Electric plant may adopt the plan by a 60 per cent vote of the employes. Equal contributions would be made by the company and the workers. The latter would pay into a trust fund one per cent of their salaries for three years, but only if employed 60 per cent of the time.

In time of great unemployment, contributions by those laid off would cease and all others employes, from the highest officials down, would contribute one per cent of their salaries to help the jobless.

BANKERS TOLD HOW TO PROFIT

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 20.—(AP).—Methods of making more money were presented to two addresses last night at the annual banquet of the West Virginia Bankers Association in convention here. The speakers were Joseph R. Kraus, vice chairman of the board of the Union Trust Company, Cleveland, and William A. Stark, assistant trust officer of the Fifth-Third Union Trust Company, Cincinnati.

Kraus said that to "sell" one's bank one must first sell it to the employes. He said the Union Trust Company's employes are rewarded annually with cash and prizes for "selling" their bank.

Stark said that many bankers look upon the trust business as a physical movement which causes insurance underwriters profits, whereas it brings more business, sometimes loss of business through the death of valued customers and conserves their wealth.

American Matador Gored by Bull But Kills It

Gored by a bull, he was in the act of dispatching he killed the animal with a single perfect sword thrust and then, bleeding and injured right thigh with one hand, made a triumphal march around the arena before being carried off for first aid treatment at the bull ring hospital.

BUILDING LOAN MEET SLATED

Delegates from many sections of Pennsylvania will attend the annual session of the Pennsylvania State League of Building and Loan Associations in the William Penn Hotel tomorrow. Speakers will be John Ihlder of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, and Charles Wilcox, president of the loan association. Besides Wilcox other officers are:

Vice presidents, E. C. Burton, of Chester, and Henry Brachhold, of Philadelphia; secretary and treasurer, George W. Clifer, of Philadelphia; general counsel, William P. Siegert, of Philadelphia; executive committee, Arthur Brossmann, Samuel Stern and Alfred P. Post, all of Philadelphia; W. C. Ruthhardt, of Bethlehem, Pa.; Hiram E. Turner, of Chester; Homer H. Swaney, of Beaver Falls, and David G. Morgan and Robert T. Houlden, both of Pittsburgh.

UPHOLD HOOVER, LEWIS URGES

MAUKEGAN, Ill., June 20.—(AP).—United support of the President in foreign policies regardless of party lines was advocated by James Hamilton Lewis, Democratic Senatorial nominee, in addressing the Bar Association and University Club. He said:

"Political partisan is destroying National patriotism. President Hoover is being betrayed by his political leaders and discredited by his political opponents in the international relations of our country. By such actions the United States is embarrassed in all the relations for peace or commercial concord with the foreign lands.

"The hour calls for all citizens and all political parties to aid the President of the United States in whatever relations may be between our country and foreign nations."

Differ as party politics may demand in home affairs, he urged, this bearers, but unite in American foreign policy.

FOOTBALL RIOT INJURES 30

BUENOS AIRES, Argentine, June 20.—(AP).—Thirty persons were injured, some with bullet wounds, during a disorder at a football field yesterday afternoon while an important soccer match between the "Boca Juniors" and the "Argentinos Juniors" was taking place. The trouble began when mounted police used their sabers in chasing off spectators who crowded onto the field.

Club authorities suspended the match and the spectators became infuriated.

A free-for-all ensued between police and the public and several revolver shots were fired. About 20 persons were arrested.

Indict Missing Man For Killing Woman

CLEVELAND, O., June 20.—(AP).—Lawrence Duty, 32, was indicted for first degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting of Mrs. Mildred Vance Courtney, 34, while the two were riding in an automobile two weeks ago. Duty disappeared after the shooting and has not been apprehended.

KONJOLA PROVES REAL MEDICINE IN THIS CASE

Stomach Ailments of Four Years Standing Soon Banished By New and Different Medicine.

Surprising as it seems, Konjola is at the peak of its powers in those stubborn and obstinate cases that have defied and resisted all other medicines and treatments tried. Yet this is not to be wondered at for Konjola is really 32 medicines skillfully blended into one. Of Konjola's 32 ingredients, 22 are the juices of roots and herbs known for their medicinal value.

MRS. ANNA CROWE

All who suffer are urged to get the facts about this medicine from the Konjola Man, who is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. Read what Mrs. Anna Crowe, Route No. 1, Amity, near Pittsburgh, said to the Konjola Man recently:

"I am 68 years old and took Konjola after reading of the experiences which some of my friends had with this medicine. I suffered three or four years with stomach trouble. I bloated terribly after meals. My food never seemed to digest, and I was extremely nervous and could not sleep at night. I took medicines for years without lasting benefit.

"Two weeks' treatment with Konjola has given me very good results. I eat and sleep better than I have for a long time. It has been four months since I stopped taking Konjola and I am in excellent health. I no longer bloat after meals and the pains of indigestion have passed. I am no longer nervous and sleep well at night. I am perfectly satisfied with the fine results I had from Konjola."

And so it goes—the same glad story wherever this great medicine is given a chance to make good. Most cases of stubborn ailments require a treatment of from six to eight weeks.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is sold by all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

SHIPPING BOARD FIRM ON SALE TO CHAPMAN

Operators' Claims to Prior Purchase Right Ignored Despite Hoover Inquiry

By FULTON LEWIS
(Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, June 20.—Regardless of the finding of President Hoover's investigating committee, the Shipping Board intends to go through with its sale of the American France & Black Diamond Lines to the Chapman interests, it was learned authoritatively here today.

Although the heads of the boards have advised the President against the proposal to dispose of the properties, it is believed that the President will not interfere to restrain the sale of the two ships, it is said, but rather will permit the matter to be settled in the courts. The Chapman interests are entitled to the available ships under a provision of the law.

These ships are the Chesapeake Shipping Corporation and the Black Diamond Shipping Company, offered $18 a ton for the lines which bids were opened last June. The Chapman offer was $25 a ton. The operators contend that under the law they will be entitled to preferential treatment of their bid.

It was learned, on the other hand, as we reported in the board's loan of $15,000,000 to the Chapman lines for the financing of two giant superliners to be built shortly, that the President appointed his committee under the leadership of H. G. Dalton, Cleveland.

It was learned authoritatively here that while the board has never taken a formal vote on the sale of the lines, it has overwhelmingly decided no such preference exists that was intended by the law.

UNNAMED FLIER TO BRAVE SEA

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 20.—(AP)—Plans for a trans-Atlantic flight from Old Orchard Beach, Me., to some spot in Europe were disclosed here, but the name of the pilot was withheld.

Friends of a flier whose name they would not divulge said a single-motored Bellanca monoplane had been shipped from Wilmington, Del., to Old Orchard and that as soon as it was assembled an immediate hop-off was planned. No test flights will be made, the informants said.

Smart Slender Lines
Pattern 1975
Sun-Telegraph 15¢ Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

The [illegible] modern are perfect in the simplicity of the waistline. Here is a model of simple lines sketched to flatter, for example, has pointed details of yoke and skirt flare to accentuate the slimness. Tiny tucks at the shoulders give additional fullness where most needed.

Pattern 1975 has long sleeves for in case you like them but this short sleeve is new and extremely becoming as it covers the upper part of the arm. This model is exceptionally well made of printed or plain georgette chiffon velvet or flat crepe. The trimming and small bows are solid color.

May be ordered only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 38 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material and ¾ yard trimming.

Three Men Named On Moravian Board

BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 20.—(AP)—The three pastors on the provincial elders' conference, the governing board of the Moravian Synod in America, were filled by the election of Bishop Karl Mueller, Watertown, Wis., the Rev. S. H. Gapp, Bethlehem, and the Rev. J. E. Weinland, Dover, O. Earlier the synod voted to reduce the board membership from four to three.

Bret Harte's Kin Weds Jersey Girl

NAPLES, Italy, June 20.—(AP)—Geoffrey Bret Harte, author and grandson of the celebrated American writer, was married here to Miss Kittredge Spencer of West Orange, N. J.

CURB ON FARM OUTPUT URGED

ALBANY, N. Y., June 20.—(AP)—James C. Stone, vice chairman of the Federal Farm Board, told the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, Inc., in convention here that co-operative marketing of farm products with the help of the Federal Farm Board is certain of success if the farmers will aid by eliminating surpluses through reduced planting when crop surveys show danger of overproduction.

Unless production is adapted to the requirements of the market, he added, co-operative organizations cannot be expected to materially improve the present condition of agriculture.

REPUBLIC MILL MEN STRIKE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 20.—The 10-inch guide mill at the Brown Bashell works of the Republic Steel Corporation suspended yesterday when roll hands walked out. A walkout also took place at the 8-inch mill, but the company was able to maintain production.

The trouble started when the number of workers was reduced at each set of rolls and hot beds. At the 10-inch mill the force was cut from nine to six men on each bed.

The company announced that unless the strikers return to work at once others will be imported and operations resumed next Monday.

Career of Chinese Bullfighter Sad And Short

BARCELONA, Spain, June 20.—(AP)—A Chinese bull fighter named Vincente Hong began his bullfighting career in the arena here and immediately ended it, too. Under a shower of hats and cushions, Hong was chased from the ring.

The advent of the Chinese into bullfighting followed a great ballyhoo in the Spanish press, but his capework proved as poor as his caution in approaching the bull proved excessive.

Vincente, dismayed by the second bull's first shooting, waved his cape a few times, got it twisted around his neck and then beat a hasty retreat with the bull in hot pursuit.

ADVANCE DRUG BUREAU DATE

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(Universal Service)—A resolution to put the Federal Narcotics Bureau created by the Porter bill into effect on July 1 has been approved by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Under the bill as signed by President Hoover, the bureau would not be established until July 14.

The earlier date was recommended by the Treasury Department to conform with the transfer of the Prohibition Bureau to the Justice Department on July 1.

Search Still Futile For 3 in Lake Erie

CLEVELAND, O., June 20.—(AP)—Renewed search of Lake Erie near the mouth of the Chagrin River by Coast Guard boats and airplanes failed to disclose any trace of bodies or wreckage to hint at the fate of three young men reported drowned in the overturning of their small boat early Saturday.

STATE PRIMARY OF G.O.P. COSTS $1,500,000

Davis-Brown and Grundy Top List; Pinchot Shows $127,998 Expense Outlay

HARRISBURG, June 20. (A.P.)—The campaign expenditures in Pennsylvania's hard-fought Republican primary of a month ago amounted to nearly $1,500,000, but fell short of the record expenditure of more than $2,000,000 in the famed factional contest of 1926.

The two largest dispensers of campaign funds, the Davis-Brown campaign committee and the Republican committee for Joseph R. Grundy, filed statements revealing expenditures of $314,748 and $122,577, respectively, with the State Elections Bureau yesterday, the last day provided by law for receipt of accounts.

With the filing of those two reports, the aggregate spent by the state campaign committees, committees in the larger centers of population and the principal candidates for nomination, was raised to $1,326,062. An additional $100,000 or more is represented in amounts distributed by other county committees in excess of the grants of the state committees.

DAVIS-BROWN IN VAN

The greatest expenditure of the $1,326,062 was $512,340 for the Davis-Brown ticket, which in addition to Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, for senator, and Francis Shunk Brown, for governor, included five other candidates for state-wide office. In behalf of Senator Joseph R. Grundy, who ran alone, the second largest sum, $508,895, was expended.

A total of $176,829 was spent for the Bohlen-Phillips-Dorrance anti-dry ticket, and Gifford Pinchot, winner of the Republican nomination for governor unless the Supreme Court throws out the Luzerne County vote, was credited with $127,998.

Senator Grundy, who was overwhelmingly defeated by Secretary Davis, spent the greatest single sum of any one candidate, $382,250, all of which went to his state committee.

UNPAID BILLS

Of the total Davis-Brown committee expenditures, $117,843 is represented in unpaid obligations. The actual expenditures were $196,905 and the receipts $197,617. The largest contributors were Francis Shunk Brown, the slate's candidate for governor, who gave $20,524, and William S. Vare, who was refused a seat in the Senate, who donated $20,000.

Charles B. Hall, former president of Philadelphia City Council and one of the prominent figures in the Philadelphia organization's "war board," gave $10,000 outright and an additional $15,000 in a loan.

Other large contributors include Joseph E. Widener, W. H. Woodin and F. M. Kirby, each of whom gave $10,000. Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, R. B. Mellon and W. L. Mellon, former state Republican chairman, were among the $5,000 list of contributors. Secretary Davis gave $1,000.

$48,000 IN ALLEGHENY

In addition, the Regular Republican organization of Western Pennsylvania has been credited with spending $117,450 and the Regular Republican organization of Allegheny County with $48,485 in excess of money given them by other committees. The Allegheny County Brown committee spent $10,000.

Brown reported spending $10,093 in addition to his contributions to the state committee; George W. Maxey, Republican nominee for Justice of the Supreme Court, $2,808; Judge James B. Drew, nominee for the Superior Court, $2,390, and Secretary Davis, $6,366.

The total of the anti-dry ticket's expenses was represented in $164,738 by the state committee; $9,662 by the anthracite division campaign committee, and $1,313 by Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., the candidate for governor, and $918 by Charles Dorrance, candidate for lieutenant governor.

PINCHOT OUTLAYS

In the Pinchot column, $108,933 was distributed by the state committee, $94,000 of which was donated by the former Governor and $10,065 more was spent by the city committee. Pinchot's total personal expense was $95,000 and Mrs. Pinchot gave $10,000 additional, both of which are included in the totals.

The Democratic State Committee in the absence of any contest for state-wide nominations, spent $4,358. Receipts amounted to $4,717, which included a bank balance of $967 on April 1.

Among additional county expense accounts received were:

Women's committee, Republican League of Venango County, which conducted the campaigns of Senator Grundy and Pinchot, received $2,335, spent $2,234.

Fayette County Grundy committee, received $500, spent $494; Davis-Brown committee received and spent $10,675.

Washington County Davis-Brown committee received and spent $11,000.

Somerset County Grundy committee received $2,000, spent $2,012.

New R. M. A. Chief To Make First Speech Here

Pittsburgh will hear Morris Metcalf make his first public address since being inducted into office of president of the Radio Manufacturers' Association of America.

The new chief elected recently at the R. M. A. Show in Atlantic City will come to Pittsburgh next Thursday as the guest of O. M. C. Supply Company.

He will talk to the Chamber of Commerce at noon. In the evening he will speak to Bosch dealers. Metcalf is vice president of the American Bosch Magneto Corporation of Springfield, Mass.

3 OFFICERS GET YEAR FOR RUM

BARNESVILLE, Okla., June 20. (A.P.)—Chief of Police Pete Vaughn, of Curtis, Okla., Constable Earl Thompson and Jim Hendricks, former constable, were sentenced to a year and a day in Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary for conspiracy to violate the nations' prohibition laws.

Guy Darr and Ed Anderson, justices of the peace at Cardin, were sentenced to four months each in jail.

The men were fined $100 each. They were convicted by a jury in Federal Court. All charged the case against them was "framed."

MUSIC TEMPLE SITE BOUGHT

PHILADELPHIA, June 20. (A.P.)—Plans for a great temple of music and the fine arts to be erected here assumed definite form here in an announcement by A. M. Greenfield, real estate operator, that the site for the building had been purchased by Cyrus H. K. Curtis, Philadelphia publisher.

The property upon which the temple will be erected is on the Parkway and was purchased by the publisher at a cost of $2,200,000. It will be presented free of encumbrances, Greenfield said, to a corporation now being formed.

At the same time Greenfield announced that Mrs. Edward W. Bok, widow of Edward W. Bok, and a daughter of Mr. Curtis, had carried out her husband's desire by pledging $8,000,000 toward construction of the building. Other pledges already made bring the amount to more than $1,000,000. It is estimated that about $4,000,000 will be required. Construction work will begin in the fall of 1931.

Desertion Charged In Wife's Suit

Ruth C. Armstrong, 4149 Windsor street, was not able to reconcile her husband to live with her again after he deserted her. However, he paid her doctor bills and nursing through a serious sickness, she testified in her divorce action against Clarence E. Armstrong. She averred the desertion took place in 1925.

Two Brothers Hurt As Train Hits Car

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., June 20.—Michael Whoric had six ribs fractured and suffered internal injuries, and a brother, Stephen, was cut and bruised when their automobile was struck by a Washington Run passenger train at Perryopolis late yesterday. Mills Washington, also riding in the machine, was unhurt. The three live at Vanderbilt.

Cramps Cause Death Of Boy in Reservoir

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., June 20.—Regis Reagan, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Reagan, of Cycle Park, was drowned in the reservoir at Coolspring when attacked with scramps. His body was recovered.

PICKERING'S ANNIVERSARY SALE
Established 1872
"The Store of a Million Friends"

Mr. Nuf-Ced Says:

"Day by day in every way it's getting better and better, Dr. Coue was right for that is just what is happening at the Pickering 87th Anniversary Sale. I want to urge everyone in Pittsburgh to take advantage of the many values offered during this sale. That's not foolin', either. Come, see for yourself, that's the best way."

Your Credit's Good—Nuf-Ced

$9.95 DAY

Tomorrow is set aside as a day of exceptional values—values that will be remembered and talked of for years to come. Every individual item on sale is guaranteed to be worth at least 50% more than tomorrow's price. A visit to our great store tomorrow will convince you that is true. It offers the most phenomenal values in fine furniture that every housewife in Pittsburgh will want.

YEAR after year, Thrifty Pittsburghers look forward to certain events, chief among which are those outstanding ones that make it possible for them to maintain an up-to-date home without seriously affecting their purse or income. Such an event is the great Pickering Anniversary sale. This is, beyond question, the oldest furniture event in all of Pennsylvania and after 87 years of success, offers even greater values in furniture than ever before. That is reason enough why you, too, should buy furniture during this June—our Anniversary Month. You have the advantage of the most liberal credit system in Pittsburgh, don't forget.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

Man About Town

He is a Chicago business man but he manages to pay his respects and other long to Broadway frequently. He unfolded his tale because he never heard of such a thing before. The wiseys in the Loop at on the Camon stand, Wash., is one of the older and better guys. He was on his way home. Oh, he said a few weekends ago, with a couple of friends he dropped through the open compartment door and asked him to play poker. Not for money, said the man, just to keep from getting too bored.

Considering that the game was not to be for money, he mused what could be like. He agreed to play awhile. After 10 minutes of play the game with nothing to make it interesting, it was he who suggested that they play for a thousand.

But you know what happened. The affair was lifted plenty a short time after, and the stranger finally was out $500. He didn't like that at all. He took out his check book and wrote the winner a check for the amount. Then he tore it up, threw the pieces out the window and played it in a lower key.

The next morning at the office he received a letter.

"I feel badly about your big loss last night, old timer and I'm afraid you feel that you were taken in by card sharps. So, I am destroying your check, sir. And so asserting himself, the stranger ripped the check into bits and threw the pieces out the window. "If, however," continued the stranger, "when you reach your office and you want to look me up, here is my card. When you feel that I am all right and in business like yourself, and you want to pay your gambling debt, send me your check, sir."

Of course, he felt that the stranger was a sharper, but he didn't want to complain. And now he was sure of his terrible mistake. He could see the blood rushing to his face and he was embarrassed. He regretted, but he didn't say so, that he had been too quick to misjudge his fellow man. He agreed to look up his new friend later in the day.

The taxi hastened him to the State St. offices. The first thing he did was to check up on the stranger, and sure enough the man was listed high.

"What a rotten thing to do," he thought. "I'll bet that fellow thinks I'm an awful gambler." He sent a boy over with a check for $500.

Two weeks later, when he received his canceled checks they included the $500 check made out to the "last thinker" who had destroyed a check in the dust.

One of the untrained dolls at a hot-spot on 54th St. is no more than 19, but she can handle men in the La Guinan pattern. She seemed weary when she wondered if she might share our table.

"You amaze me," we said, "the way you can sit with some of these pills that come in here every night. Don't those drunks and their banal chatter make you want to scream sometimes?"

"Sometimes," she replied, "but you can't be particular."

"But why sit with them all night and let them paw you," we countered, "what do you get for it—a ten or a twenty maybe?"

"Oh, no," she replied, "I've got a check going through now for a grand."

"Gee," we gee'd, "a thousand bucks for what?" I notice you manage to sneak out on them when they get plastered. How do you gold dig 'em like that anyway?" we urged, smelling good copy.

"You don't gold dig them," she snapped, "that is, I never do. They insist on giving it to you. For instance, they say to you, 'How much do you get here a week?' so you say '$50 a week I get.' Then they always say, 'How can a girl live on $50 a week?' So then you say you don't—and then you discover you're talking to Santy Claus, that's all."

There is a chain of exclusive specialty accessory shops in New York whose business is an absolute barometer of conditions in the stock market. The bills for purchases in this group of stores invariably go to the office address of men—and should there be two charge accounts of the same name painstaking care is taken to make sure there is no mistake about which bill goes to the house and which to the office.

These stores know when there are quarrels and misunderstandings between their lady patrons and their rich keepers. Sales fall off then, you know. They likewise know when these tiffs are patched up by the sudden lavishing of gifts, etc. Often these shops will carry a femme client over a period of months, keeping her supplied with the smartest novelties, knowing that though she has just lost one sugar daddy she will soon annex another who will pay all back bills and contract new ones.

The books of these shops, one suspects, would unravel many a mystery if the proprietors permitted the gendarmes and others interested to see who buys what for whom.

The adorable Irene Castle is in town, as was noted a column or so ago, but what we started out to remind you was that we recently chronicled that Jean Barry, of Barry & Fitzgibbons, is the nearest thing to Irene Castle for style dancing and class. Miss Barry delights them at the Central Park Casino with a grand routine of stepping which includes a whirlwind affair tempoed at a lightning pace while the Leo Reisman crew toys with "The Stars and Stripes Forever." Miss Castle has been there nightly but on her initial visit when Miss Barry learned La Castle was "out there" she almost collapsed.

"I cannot work before Irene Castle," she choked, "she knows how to dance! Oh, I simply couldn't."

But she was persuaded to forget about Miss Castle's presence and after her act Miss Castle urged the management to introduce her to Miss Barry. They met and Irene graciously told Miss Barry how delighted she was with her artful and adroit work. Of course, Miss Barry was thrilled.

"I never dreamed she was so regular," she said.

"Always remember," counseled a rounder, "that the bigger the building—the easier it is to see. And you can see an elephant a quarter of a mile or more from you, but it's tough seeing an ant."

MOVIE MAN IN MOON, THAT'S WHITEMAN IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

King of Jazz . . . Monarch of Melody . . . Rajah of Ragtime. That's what they've been calling Paul Whiteman. And now we're going to have a say. We're going to call him the Movies' Man in the Moon.

Mr. Whiteman is on the Stanley screen. He's the BIG feature in a film titled "King of Jazz." And when a moon is introduced for scenic effects, it is a moon with a Paul Whiteman face.

On the face of it, this is all right in the decorative scheme of things. But somehow, this association of the music-making and contented-looking Mr. Whiteman and the moon has caused us some mental disturbance. We fear we won't be able to look at the moon for weeks without expecting it to break into a crazy symphony of jazz tunes.

TAKE, FOR EXAMPLE

Not that all of Mr. Whiteman's tunes are crazy. There is really a beautiful, reckless sort of musical conception to a lot of his presentations. Take, for example, his "Rhapsody in Blue." But some of his stuff is just cabaret ragtime. It is okay in its place. Or okay on the radio. You can turn that off.

Don't get the idea we're trying to belittle the big Mr. Whiteman. We just believe his band, like Rudy Vallee's, has been overrated, that's all. Yet it is a good band.

And we're not trying to belittle the production, "King of Jazz." It is what it was intended it should be, strictly revue type of entertainment. It is offered in spasmodic episodes. It has some novelty. Its cast is large and its scenes are elaborate. It is full of technicolor. It has comedy. It is crowded with views of dancing girls and fervent musicians, taken at trick camera angles.

AS SAID BEFORE—

As said before, the cast is large. John Boles looks serious and sings "Monterey" and "Song of the Dawn." Jeanie Lange, who used to be personality girl in the Dick Powell stage shows, sings "Ragmuffin Lover," or some such. Laura La Plante, no more an actress than usual, bobs in and out. Larry Kent, comedian, gets pushed out a window for a 30-story drop. And Slim Summerville, lanky and lithe, is among numerous others who manage to appear between all the elaborate scenes. Whiteman, music and high-stepping ankles.

On the stage is a revue, "Home-Wreckers." The name comes from three slapstick tumblers who bring the show to a close with a house falling about them. The act has been in our town before.

TIBBETT, CHEVALIER AS RIVALS FOR ROMEO CROWN

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, June 20.

WITH AN OPERA STAR like Lawrence Tibbett on its hands, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is conducting an earnest search for the proper sort of stories.

To date, "New Moon" is assured and negotiations are under way to purchase the dialogue rights to "The Count of Monte Cristo." This romantic novel by Alexandre Dumas already has been done twice in the movies. The first time was in 1913, when James O'Neill, the stage favorite, played the title role. Adolph Zukor sought the film for Paramount.

Lawrence Tibbett

Tibbett is in Hollywood. I saw him the other night with Mrs. Tibbett among the large turnout of stars who welcomed Fay Bainter there in the stage play, "Caprice."

Hollywood awaits the second Tibbett picture with unusual interest for "The Rogue Song" was a tremendous success. Everyone hailed the star for his romantic personality, some even forcasting that he would be the new "great lover" of the screen.

But that was before Maurice Chevalier loomed so importantly on the cinema horizon. This foreign actor is going to afford stiff competition to all comers, or I miss my guess.

DESERVES RESULTS

If I were a producer, I'd give a part to Claire Du Brey. This actress, who's had long experience in the silent movies and who's been on the stage with Pauline Frederick, Robert Ames and numerous other stars, inserts the following ad in a local casting magazine:

"I will do extra work, bits, dead bodies offstage or what have you." With the sincerity which dictates this drastic step, plus the above experience, I ought to be a rare bargain as an extra woman.

HOLLYWOOD AT A GLANCE

Edwin Carewe celebrated a wedding anniversary this week at "The Spoilers" location near Oxnard. Everything is very happy now in the reunited Carewe family. Rita Carewe and Leron Mason, her husband, were among the guests. Bert Lytell and his bride, Grace Menken, were there, too. . . . Another frequent visitor to The Spoilers" location has been Lupe Velez. Do I need to tell you that Gary Cooper is in the cast?

Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks were seen at a night-club for the second time in as many weeks. They used to avoid the popular dancing places. . . . Mack Bennett will produce 12 one-reel color pictures for Educational.

THIS HOLLYWOOD

Airship Los Angeles To Soar Over Phila.

LAKEHURST, N. J., June 20 (INS)—The United States Navy dirigible Los Angeles took off from the Naval Air Station here at 7 a. m. for a training flight that probably will take it over New York, Atlantic City and Philadelphia. It was commanded by Lieut. Commander V. A. Clarke, and carried 14 officers and 35 men. It will return to the station here at sundown. A night flight also is planned.

Hurt on Trolley, Two Ask $50,000

Frances Troxell and her husband, Clarence Troxell, have brought suit for $50,000 damages against the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Soho Coal and Coke as the result of injuries received when a street car in which she was riding collided with a truck of the coal company. Mrs. Troxell was thrown to the floor and her left hip and right shoulder injured.

Bellevue Class to Hold Basket Picnic

The Men's Bible class, Bellevue Methodist Episcopal Church, will hold their annual basket picnic tomorrow in North County Park. Automobiles will leave the church at 2 p. m. A program of entertainment and sports will be carried out. The committee includes J. E. Graf, general chairman; R. E. Buffington, F. B. Downey, F. J. Felton, G. R. Klein, and C. E. Stark.

CINCINNATI, June 20 (AP).—Announcement was made by officials of the American Laundry Machinery Company that subject to ratification by stockholders of the General Laundry Machinery Company they would carry out a contract entered into with the board of directors of the General Laundry Machinery Company to acquire certain assets including the good will and name of that company.

The General Laundry Machinery Company is a corporation of Delaware and has its main offices in Chicago. Plants are located in Chicago, Troy, N. Y., and Columbia, Pa.

The American Laundry Machinery Company has plants here in Chicago, Rochester, St. Louis, Kenilworth, N. J., and Toronto.

BROCK, SCHLEE PLAN NEW HOP

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 20 (AP).—William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee, who completed the fastest round trip transcontinental flight ever attempted, announced they would make another West-East hop within the next 10 days.

After making the East-West flight to San Diego in the record time of 15 hours 34 minutes the fliers encountered adverse weather conditions on their eastward trip, but completed it in 16 hours 50 minutes with a stop for fuel at Tallulah, La. Their elapsed time for the round trip was 31 hours 58 minutes.

Brock said he believed the West-East flight could be made in 10 or 11 hours weather permitting.

Trial to Decide If Hauling Malt Is Crime

MERCER, Pa., June 20.—Whether transporting malt is a violation of the Snyder act is expected to be determined in Mercer County court when Fred Brown and Ernest Cannon of Sharon are arraigned within the next few days.

The two men were indicted at the request of District Attorney Leo McKay who wishes to make a test case. The April grand jury refused to return true bills but McKay asked that the same charge be brought against the men at the June term. Judge J. A. McLaughry allowed this action.

CLEAR BROTHER OF TUNNEY

NEW YORK, June 20 (AP).—Defective Thomas Tunney, brother of the retired heavyweight champion, was cleared by Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney of charges of violating police rules.

Tunney, on April 28 last, was found slumped over the steering wheel of an automobile. Grover Whalen, then commissioner, held that charges should be preferred so that the matter could be officially cleared up and Tunney was tried.

Testimony at the trial was that Tunney was ill and had partly lost consciousness.

A SIMPLE new discovery has revolutionized the work around the house. A special creamy, white, soap-like compound, called Make-Clean, does ALL your cleaning more easily, more quickly, more thoroughly.

Just put it on, then wipe it off. Make-Clean does the work—it quickly absorbs the dirt and grease, yet does not harm the finest finish or the most delicate fabric.

Like magic, Make-Clean removes ALL dirt, grease or blotches from all painted, varnished or enameled surfaces. No rubbing. No scrubbing.

The finest upholstery or most expensive rugs can be cleaned safely with Make-Clean. The brilliant original colors will re-appear.

This marvelous cleaner washes clothes in one-half the time—with one-half the effort. It will not harm the finest silk stockings—in fact it protects the delicate material by requiring little rubbing.

About a tablespoon of Make-Clean in the dish water absorbs the grease more quickly—and no soap is required. Grease from pots and skillets vanishes with no rubbing.

The grimiest grease on your stove comes off like mere dust. The blackest spots on your floor will disappear. Your refrigerator, sink, tables, windows, oil cloth and window-shades can be cleaned with the greatest ease.

Your bathroom—your tub, lavatory, tiled floors, painted walls or linoleum will welcome Make-Clean.

This wonderful compound is unexcelled for waxed surfaces—furniture or floors. It absorbs the dirt-laden wax, leaving the surface clean and spotless—ready for a new coat of wax. Your automobile will shine like freshly painted after a light cleaning with Make-Clean.

Make-Clean will not harm anything that clear water will not harm. Water is never used on wall paper or calcimine.

This marvelous cleaner is the result of years of laboratory experiments. The secret is a combination of ingredients which absorbs grease, dirt, blood, and foreign substances, yet does not in the slightest affect cotton, wool, silk, paint, varnish, wood or metal.

Mere words cannot tell what Make-Clean will mean to you. We therefore ask you to try a bucket on our positive MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE and see for yourself.

Money-Back Guarantee

We know that Make-Clean will quickly and safely clean painted, enameled or varnished walls, fabrics, linens, furniture, silverware, window shades, floors, and rugs. It cannot be equalled for washing dishes and washing clothes. We positively guarantee to refund the full purchase price if, after you have used half a bucket of Make-Clean (following directions), you do not find it to be even better than we have described it and if you are not more than satisfied. Phone your dealer NOW for a bucket. 1½ lb. 35c; 2½ lb. 65c; 5 lb. $1. Make-Clean is economical—a little goes a long way.

RAIL MERGERS BILL FOUGHT

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—A greatly altered Couzens resolution to suspend railroad mergers was submitted to the House and brought instant opposition from Northwestern members as "not meeting the situation confronting the Northwest."

The resolution, approved by the House Commerce Committee, as passed by the Senate would have applied specifically to the pending merger of the Northwestern Pacific and Great Northern railroads.

It would have suspended until next March 4 the Interstate Commerce Commission's authority to approve rail carrier unifications to allow Congress time to enact additional regulatory legislation.

The House committee, however, eliminated all provisions applying to the two Northern lines.

J. D. A. Morrow Grilled In Washington on Coal Charges; Chicago Next

WASHINGTON, June 20.—(AP.)—The Western Pennsylvania Coal Traffic Bureau, and the Ohio Lake Cargo Rate Committee concluded submission of testimony yesterday in their application for a revision of the freight rates on coal shipped to lake ports from Southern and Northern bituminous coal mines.

Examiner Bardwell of the Interstate Commerce Commission adjourned the hearing until October 6, when Southern operators will reply to the allegations of "unjust and unduly preferential" rates now applying on shipments from the two competing districts.

MORROW ON STAND

Chicago was selected tentatively as the hearing city.

The hearing, which began Monday, closed with cross-examination of J. D. A. Morrow president of the Pittsburgh Coal Company. He declined to recommend a substitute or "corrective" different rate, but said:

"Our case does not rest on operating difficulties, nor do we ask relief on those grounds."

"UP TO COMMISSION"

The witness said his district enjoyed a geographical advantage which was offset by geological, sociological and freight-rate disadvantages.

"We will let the Interstate Commerce Commission decide what is a proper differential between Northern and Southern mines, and if we cannot then compete with Southern shippers that will be our misfortune," he added.

"How do you know your freight rates are not now proper?" asked J. V. Norman, of Louisville, a counsel for Southern operators.

"The Interstate Commerce Commission itself," Morrow rejoined, "decided in a previous case that 45-cent differential was proper, but the carriers serving both the Northern and Southern fields voluntarily compromised the differential between Pittsburgh and Southern West Virginia at 35 cents, which was to your distinct advantage and to our disadvantage."

GRAHAM FINED IN 'BOAT' CASE

Frank T. Graham, missing defendant in the "Show Boat" case, appeared in Criminal Court today and pleaded guilty of maintaining a gambling room on the upper deck of the boat.

Visiting Judge O. Clare Kent, of Crawford County, fined him $300 and costs and paroled him for a year, the same sentence that had previously been given to Milton Jaffe and Dr. Louis Markowitz, other defendants in the case.

Graham said it was not until the night of the Sharkey-Schmeling fight in New York City that he knew he had been indicted.

Graham was represented by Attorney Benjamin Lencher.

The John F. Eichleay, Jr., Company, named as owner of the "Show Boat," raided recently by Federal dry agents, today entered a general denial in United States Court to charges in the padlock injunction suit brought by Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington.

A hearing on making permanent the preliminary padlock injunction granted against the boat will be held Monday. At the same time, injunction hearings involving the Nixen cafe and the Plaza restaurant also will be held.

Lifts Weights at 102, Takes 3 Weeks Trip

FAIRMONT, W. Va., June 20.—(AP.)—By way of tuning up for the celebration of his one hundred and third birthday on August 8, John Skinner, Fairmont's oldest man, is off on a three weeks' trip to cities in Indiana to visit children and grandchildren. Skinner, since his one hundredth birthday, has put on weight lifting exhibitions in front of the Courthouse here.

Message Travels Around World in 5 Minutes

SAN FRANCISCO, June 20.—(AP.)—A 38-word message has traveled around the world in five minutes.

The message was transmitted and received here last night as a feature of the National Electric Light Association convention. It flashed by cable to Guam and Shanghai, thence to London, New York and back to San Francisco. It traveled more than 25,000 miles.

The transmission time broke by three minutes the previous record.

Husband Wed Again, No. 1 Asks Divorce

Alice Fleming, 25, of 1232 Stratmore street, North Side, whose husband, Edward Fleming, shortly after their marriage in 1926, wed Mary Noonan, wants a divorce. The libellant informed Judge George V. Moore that her husband was sentenced to the workhouse for 18 months on a bigamy charge, but was paroled after four months.

Sentence of Death Commuted to Life

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., June 20.—(AP.)—The sentence of George Sanders, Logan County Negro, who was sentenced to hang July 11, was commutted today by Gov. Conley to life imprisonment.

YOU HAVE A DOCTOR'S WORD FOR THIS LAXATIVE

In 1875, an earnest young man began to practice medicine. As a family doctor, he saw the harm in harsh purgatives for constipation and began to search for something harmless to the sensitive bowels.

Out of his experience was born a famous prescription. He wrote it thousands of times. It proved an ideal laxative for old and young. As people saw how marvelously the most sluggish bowels are started and bad breath, headaches, feverishness, nausea, gas, poor appetite, and such disorders, are relieved by the prescription, it became necessary to put it up ready for use. Today, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, as it is called, is the world's most popular laxative. It never varies from Dr. Caldwell's original effective and harmless formula. All druggstores have it.

DEALERS BOOST KELVINATORS

Among the speakers present were R. D. Lombard, central states manager, commercial division; H. L. Hull, manager water cooling division; Earl Lines, director of advertising, and R. I. Petrie, district manager, all from Detroit, Mich.

VETS WILL SEE AIR DERBY

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., June 20.—(INS.)—An air derby this afternoon and a huge parade at 6 o'clock this evening were to feature the eleventh annual encampment of the Pennsylvania Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, here for a three-day meeting.

Seven United States Marine Corps planes from Quantico arrived yesterday and 10 more, as well as scores of privately owned aircraft were to arrive today to participate in the derby.

Approximately 1,000 delegates representing 158 posts of the organization are in attendance while 300 members of the Ladies' Auxiliary are here from 118 cities throughout the state.

Your Health Par? Don't Let Golf Stymie You!

SPOKANE, Wash., June 20.—(AP.)—Golf is harmful, in the opinion of Dr. William Muhlberg, Cincinnati, president of the Association of Life Insurance Medical Directors. He said:

CRASH HURTS 2, DRIVERS HELD

Two persons were injured today when two automobiles collided in East street in the 2400 block. The victims were Dora Logan, 23, 15 East Lacock street, and Virgil Scott, 21, of 910 Sandusky street. Both were taken to the Allegheny General Hospital.

Scott was discharged after receiving treatment and was later arrested on a reckless driving charge. The driver of the other machine, Fred Kuenzli, aged 29, of 426 Mifflin street, was arrested on the same charge.

Rooms by day, week or month. See the Classified Ads in today's paper.

Grundy Aids Plan For Preserving Church, Grove

MAYTOWN, Pa., June 20.—(AP.)—A movement was under way today for the preservation of the Donegal Presbyterian Church and the grove, which contains the historic "witness tree," famed in song and story, under which the pastor of the church and his flock pledged their support to the colonies in their revolution against Great Britain.

Decision to raise a fund was made at the reunion of the Donegal Society, attended by Senator Joseph R. Grundy, Henry P. Fletcher, former ambassador to Rome; Dr. Ross V. Patterson, of Philadelphia; John G. Lerch, New York attorney, and other notables.

FLOOD SWEEPS FLORIDA TOWN

FORT MYERS, Fla., June 20.—(AP.)—Flood waters from the swollen Caloosahatchee River were rising at La Belle, Hendry County seat, last night. The town already was inundated to a depth of from two to four feet in all streets.

Residents of the town were virtually marooned and boats were being used for transportation into and about the the town. Train service has been disrupted for 48 hours and mail was brought by boat from Denaud, a nearby town.

The rain had stopped late yesterday after falling steadily since Sunday.

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

John Jones is a prisoner in the Allegheny County jail. At half-past six each morning he is told to get up. Then, if he is in for longer than 30 days or so, he marches to the jail yard with others and takes exercises for an hour under the direction of a physical instructor. His breakfast invariably consists of coffee and bread.

Between breakfast and the noon meal he will probably lie around his cell because there are not enough jobs in the jail for all the inmates. At noon he eats soup and bread. The soup contains cabbage, beans and meat. In the afternoon he will probably loaf again.

At 4:30 o'clock he gets his last meal of the day—almost invariably hamburger steak and coffee. He may have as much bread as he wants, and once a week instead of hamburger steak he receives molasses and bread. One other variation once a week is gingerbread, and on Sunday stewed prunes or peaches is the delicacy added to the menu. Ten cents is spent each day for each prisoner's food.

There is a cafeteria in the jail. The prisoners move along the line and fill their plates then return to their cells to eat. About 5 o'clock the guards swing by and click the locks of their doors. They are prisoners again in their small cells.

Between 5 o'clock and dark probably is the most pleasant period of the day, for the prisoners have a radio which brings them Amos 'n' Andy and jazz music. Too, they are allowed to lift their own voices to the rafters.

The women's routine is not so stringent, notably in that they are usually not locked in their cells until 8:30. The women work in the laundry during the day, washing and ironing 1,200 towels every day for the city buildings.

Inasmuch as the jail is for comparatively short terms, there are few "bad men," in the severe sense of the word, housed there. Punishment consists of locking the guilty prisoners in their cells and depriving them of such privileges as smoking (cigars but not cigarets) and strolling the corridor. For refractory prisoners, an hour or two hours in a solitary cell is the punishment.

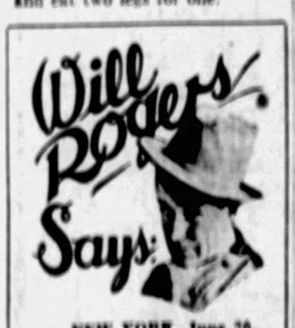
There have been three outstanding escapes from this jail, which was built 45 years ago. Ed and Jack Riddle, notorious bad men, escaped with the aid and encouragement of the warden's wife, and, to add a final note, with the woman herself. Then one Fitzsimmons, a murderer, used the Bridge of Sighs for his exit. Lastly, Paul Jaworski, payroll bandit, shot his way out with revolvers handed him through the bars by a visitor—his brother. Jaworski took along Jack Vashinder, dope addict who had murdered a man who refused him 25 cents alms. Vashinder alone remained uncaptured.

But a fourth escape, just a few years ago, was the most entertaining feature. A prisoner somehow reached the roof of the jail, dropped a rope into one of the side streets and slid down to safety.

Not so long ago one of the city's best-known racketeers, visiting the jail for six months, received once a week a basket of delicious chicken. But his appetite usually went unsatisfied because a fellow prisoner—a prominent restaurant man—used to drop around to his cell and eat two legs for one.



NEW YORK, June 20. Just had breakfast with the Morrows and the Lindberghs. They are all feeling mighty fine over that election. He made a pretty fair race without using Lindy at all. If he had used him those other poor fellows wouldn't have even carried their own wives' vote. He is anxious to get to Mexico now, and is leaving in a few days. If I was his opponent in November, I would get a one-way ticket to Siberia.

See where the Senate voted to investigate the rates in the tariff. That's holding an autopsy on the body.

Yours,
WILL.

MARY BLAIR

EX-TECH STAGE STAR REWEDS

Friends of Mary Blair, Pittsburgh actress and graduate of the Carnegie Institute of Technology drama school, learned today she was married last Sunday to Compton M. Eaken, refrigerator manufacturer, at his home in Redding, Conn.

Miss Blair was divorced three weeks ago from Edmund Wilson, literary critic.

Recently she resigned her role as star of "Lysistrata," Broadway stage hit, saying she was going to take "a honeymoon vacation." She expects to begin rehearsals for a new play in September.

Miss Blair came into prominence in February, 1924, when she accepted the role of Ella in Eugene O'Neill's "All God's Chillun Got Wings," after Helen McKellar had turned it down because it required the actress to kiss the hand of Paul Robeson, Negro star.

PLANE FORCED DOWN ON Llinks

Forced down when his gas supply ran out while flying over the city yesterday afternoon, Roy Minor, of Los Angeles, made a successful emergency landing on the golf links of the Pittsburgh Country Club in Beechwood boulevard. Refilling his tank from a nearby automobile service station he later took off without mishap.

The ship, a two-place sport biplane, was observed by residents circling over their heads as Minor hunted for an emergency field. He said he had just about given up hope when he sighted the broad green stretch of fairway. Circling down, he maneuvered to a safe landing, scattering a score or more golfers.

Caddies assisted him in bringing fuel, and with a wave and apologies, he was off.

Objectionable Food Causes Confusion in Prison

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Dean Ward Kent, a successful young college graduate, gets drunk while celebrating on New Year's Eve. His automobile, going at top speed, crashed into another machine and two persons are fatally injured. Kent is charged with manslaughter and sentenced to serve seven years in the penitentiary. Duncan Morgan, a handsome chap who had been a bank clerk, is sentenced to the penitentiary for robbery. He has been in prison before and does not fear the new sentence. Kent is assigned to share a cell with Morgan and "Machine Gun Butch" Schmidt. Schmidt, a hardened criminal, is now serving life for murder. Schmidt steals a locket containing a picture of Anne Marlow from Kent's pocket. Kent is in love with Anne. Morgan gets the picture from Schmidt and is attracted to the girl. He learns her name from Kent.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER V.

"Beans again!"

Butch looked his disgust. He picked up the plate, smelled and then flipped it down, spinning it away from him.

"Burned, too—and sour!"

"Twenty-one times a week—beans—has-beans," sniffed Joe Lajensky.

Above the clatter of the dishes and clumping of the hobnailed shoes of the waiters, were growls of protest on every side. The large, ominous sign, "SILENCE!" which hung in a conspicuous place in the mess hall might have been an oriflamme. Wallace, universally disliked, and Oliver, his shadow, walked about here and there, calling for silence. But the sound swelled in magnitude and rose, like the hum of disturbed bees in a hive, to a low monontonous drone. Wallace stepped quickly behind Butch, who had closed up like a clam at his approach.

"No, sir, it's them beans—"

"What!"

"I said, no, sir, I ain't been—"

"See that you don't—and that goes for you, Joe, and you, Morgan, and you—you dopey nut—see that sign?"

He walked away. Butch looked straight ahead, but poison hung to his words as they dropped from the side of his mouth.

Butch Angered
Bad Humor Caused by Objectionable Food

"God, how I hate that skunk! If I was a ventrilloquist I'd say things in that guy's ear that would make his hair frizzle."

"He's on the hunt," warned Morgan. "Pass the word along for the boys to stop beefing. He means business."

Wallace, in fact, had paused at the end of the table, where he stood with his arms akimbo, a leer on his face, his sharp eyes watching every move. The bean course having been served, the waiters now came in with buckets full of codfish, which they began to slop out on the plates. The low rumble of a growl in the throats of the prisoners now arose as a sinister obligato to a muttered word of loathing here and there.

Butch held his nose. Joe Lajensky seconded him:

"You cons better be still, Wallace is piping you off," from Morgan, who was bending low over his plate.

"Let him come; I'll shove it down his pipes."

Butch was working himself into a nasty humor. Others, who had been watching him, became emboldened at his words and started to grumble aloud. On all sides could be heard "Bum slum . . . rotten chow . . . stinkin' codfish . . . make the screws eat it. . . ."

Loses Control
Convict Throws Plate at Guard

Butch suddenly grabbed up his plate and threw it against the wall of the messhall, at the "Silence" sign, shrilling:

"Swill—come and get it, you hogs."

Wallace, hearing the plate strike the wall and Butch's shout of defiance, ran forward.

"Who did that?" he demanded.

"I did!" and Butch arose menacingly. "Whatcha think of that! Watcha goin' do about it, you flat-footed round-head!"

The whole room was in an uproar. The men began to protest aloud. The guards on the balcony, which ran around the walls of the room, unslung their rifles and waited for a signal from Wallace, as he started toward Butch. Morgan tried to jerk Butch into his seat, but the berserk killer's self-control was gone, and as he saw Wallace coming toward him he snatched up the plate from in front of Morgan and hurled it at the captain of the yard. As it caught him in the pit of the stomach a great shout went up from the convicts. The guards above ran to the balcony rails and leveled their rifles. Trusties and other guards on the floor concentrated near Wallace, whose clothes were covered with the mess of codfish and beans. Butch, his countenance dark and foreboding, stood up in majestic defiance. The prisoners began to pound the tables with their tin cups, knives and forks. Others flung their plates on the floor and the voices grew louder and more challenging—"Slum-gullion . . . rotten . . . slum . . ."

A fever of furious protest had swept the messhall. Wallace was shouting for quiet. But his commands were drowned. Plates with food were pitched to the floor or at the guards. The musketeers on the balcony were now sighting their guns at the ringleaders. Many of the men were on their feet. Suddenly the command "FIRE!" was heard from Wallace. There was a deafening roar as the guards obeyed. Fearful screams reverberated. The prisoners—all but Butch—dropped in their seats—or to the floor.

Punishment
Gets Solitary Confinement For Disturbance

"Shoot your heads off!" cried Butch, with a foul-mouthed oath, pounding the table with his sledge-hammer fist. "Guns don' stop Butch! You know me—Machine Gun Butch! To hell with you! . . . Come on, you white livered, yaller bellied heels, get on your feet. What y'fraid of? What've youse got to lose?"

"Sit down, damn you, sit down!" shouted Wallace. "That volley went against the walls. Next time it'll go into you! Sit down, Butch!"

"Pansies—cowards—gutless sons-o'—"

"Sit down, Butch—last chance or you!"

THREE GUILTY IN BANK FRAUD

For the alleged embezzlement of about $18,000 from the Western Savings Bank, George A. Coleman, West Willox road, Brentwood, bookkeeper at the bank; Max Green, 1036 Lexington avenue, a tailor, and William J. Carlton, 2116 Carson street, an insurance agent, are to be sentenced by Judge Joseph M. Swearingen on Monday.

Carlton, last of the trio to be arraigned and tried, listened to a jury declare him guilty yesterday. Green had heard the same verdict from the lips of another jury early the same day and Coleman had pleaded guilty.

Coleman turned state's evidence and turned against the other two. After telling how he manipulated the bank books so that checks for large amounts presented by Green and Carlton were cashed and the amounts shifted from accounts of large depositors, and saying that his only reward was a suit of clothes and $150, Coleman fainted twice on the stand, once during each trial. Each time he revived soon after and was able to resume his testimony.

Dog, Rankin Police Mascot, Rescued From Water

Rankin police and their mascot, "Peggy," a brindle bulldog, were happy today because the animal has escaped a cruel fate. "Peggy" had the misfortune to fall through a hole in the floor of the Rankin Fire Department into a pool of water caused by dripping fire hose.

DUST NUISANCE PROTESTED

Investigation of the alleged dust nuisance from the Neville Island plant of the Davison Coke and Iron Company is still in progress, according to Attorney John M. Freeman, retained by several of the North Boroughs in possible legal steps to have the dust stopped.

Housewives of the district say that while there has been some improvement, the cement dust still compels them to keep windows closed most of the time and prevents use of porch furniture.

CANOE UPSETS, MAN DROWNS

One man was drowned and another narrowly escaped when a canoe capsized in the Allegheny River at Verona last night.

Edward Keefe

The body of the victim, Edward Keefe, 25, of 40 Steuben street, West End, was recovered a half hour after the accident by Jack and Harry Wilson, of Verona. Keefe's companion, Francis McGuire, 24, of 16 Third avenue, made a futile effort to save him. Campers, who witnessed the drowning, hurried to the aid of the two.

Keefe, a bellboy at the Keystone Athletic Club, was the son of the late John P. Keefe, baseball umpire. He was unmarried and lived with his mother, brother, Paul, and sister, Bessie.

Texas Girl Pilot Star Of Air Pageant Here

Demonstrating woman's conquest of the air, Miss Frances Harrell, Texas aviatrix, has a leading part in the "pageant of aerial progress" to be staged at Bettis airport tomorrow and Sunday.

Miss Harrell, probably best known for her participation in the national air races at Cleveland last year, is a seasoned stunt pilot. She flew here from New York in the wake of the Mystery 8, which blazed a new speed record across the Allegheny Mountains under the piloting of Dale (Red) Jackson, holder of the world's endurance record of 18 days continuous flying.

Today the young woman pilot was to fly over Pittsburgh with Jackson and the "Three Flying Sons-o-Guns," the stunt trio touring the country under the Curtiss-Wright banner, in the air circus which opens tomorrow. Two members of this trio flew with wide-open throttles over the city yesterday in a formal salute announcing the opening of the two-day aerial pageant. The parade was to be repeated today and again tomorrow.

FULL SUPPLY DOUBTED BY M'GOVERN

Points Out Specifications Hold Delivery This Year To 70 or 75 of Devices

County Comissioner C. C. McGovern will ask his colleagues to defer authorization of bids for voting machines until it can be determined whether enough devices will be delivered to equip every polling place in Pittsburgh for the November election.

Bids were authorized at a commisioners' meeting last Tuesday, and McGovern said he understood Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong to explain that 1,000 were to be provided by next October 1.

CITES SPECIFICATIONS

McGovern declared he discovered later that the specifications required the delivery of "not less than 70 or more than 75" by October. The remainder were to be delivered next year.

McGovern said his idea was to have every voting district in Pittsburgh equipped with machines for use at the November election to eliminate the enormous cost of recount boards when disputes developed.

He decided to ask postponement of the call for bids upon receipt of a letter from State Senator Frank J. Harris, of the Citizens' Voting Machine Committee, saying the members were "distressed" upon learning that only 70 or 75 machines were to be available for the November election.

FEW AVAILABLE HERE

Under the provisions of the state act authorizing voting machines, the cities of Allegheny County were to be equipped in alphabetical order, the letter said.

The committee pointed out that Clairton, Duquesne and McKeesport had priority, and if only 70 or 75 were delivered by November there would be only about 20 available for Pittsburgh.

PITT AWARDED $25,000

By a decree handed down yesterday by the Orphans' Court, the University of Pittsburgh will receive $25,000 from the estate of the late Leon Falk, who left property valued at millions.

The bequest was originally made payable to the Rodef Shalom Temple. The money was to be used in the maintenance of the library, the gymnasium and swimming pool of the church, but the congregation has discontinued the use of some of the activities he provided for. Maurice and Leon Falk, Jr., executors, asked for permission of the court to pay the money to "Pitt," which was granted.

A son, Leon Falk, and his sister, Marjorie Levy, of Paris, have already contributed $300,000 to the university for the establishment of an elementary school as a memorial to their mother and the $25,000 will be added to this fund.

620 Teachers Here Given Frick Scholarships

Six hundred and twenty teachers of the Pittsburgh Schools received scholarship awards at the annual meeting and dinner of the Henry C. Frick Educational Commission and the Phoebe Brashear Club, in the William Penn Hotel last night.

More than 800 persons attended. Judge Joseph Buffington president of the commission, was toastmaster. Invocation by the Rev. E. C. McCown was followed with a tenor solo by Elmer Stephan with Wesley Linsenbigler as accompanist.

"The Citizen in Politics" was the subject of an address delivered by Mrs. Emily Blair Newell author and lecturer.

The meeting was concluded with the distribution of awards by the commission.

COMMITTEE INDORSES M'INTYRE AS TRAFFIC ENGINEER

BAN ON PARKING IN TRIANGLE DISCUSSED

Board Also Investigates Operation of Two Illegal Towing Trucks on Streets

Approval of Prof. Lewis W. McIntyre, of the University of Pittsburgh, as city traffic engineer, discussion of elimination of parking in the Triangle and operation of two illegal towing trucks, featured a meeting of the Better Traffic Committee yesterday.

Promising an early meeting of the traffic flow sub-committee, H. B. Kirkpatrick, chairman of the section, expressed himself as favoring such a parking ban, and pointed out that such an ordinance would not mean that no car could stop in that district. He said:

"Cars could stop for loading and unloading of passengers and merchandise. It would merely mean that every street in the Triangle would be made a continuous loading zone, if that will picturize the measure a little more concretely."

Reasons given by the enforcement sub-committee for requesting the elimination of parking stressed the fire hazards created by cars being parked in the narrow streets of the Triangle, congestion caused by inadequacy of street space, and the fact that parked cars represented more of a handicap to business than an aid.

At the request of Mayor Kline the officers of the committee had been asked to recommend an engineer to fill the vacancy created by Burton W. Marsh resigning as city traffic engineer.

PLANS SCANNED BY LUTHERANS

Extensions of the church in all parts of the world was to be the subject considered at today's sessions of the eighty-eighth annual convention of the Pittsburgh Synod of the Lutheran Church in America in the Calvary Church, Wilkinsburg.

The synod supports 24 English, six German Saxon, two Italian, one Hungarian and one Jewish churches.

The tenth anniversary of the merger of the Pittsburgh Synod was celebrated at a banquet in McCreery's last night. Speakers were the Rev. P. H. R. Mullon, of Swissvale, who presided; the Rev. E. C. Xander, president of Thiel College, Greenville, and Dr. Ellis B. Burgess, of Crafton, retiring Synod president. More than 800 ministers and their wives attended.

At the afternoon session yesterday results of the election were announced, and reports from Thiel College approved. C. H. Dreshman, of New York, spoke on behalf of the college campaign for $750,000. Officers elected were as follows

President, the Rev. H. H. Bagger, of Butler; recording secretary, F. W. Ash, of Jeannette; secretary of statistics, the Rev. H. Schnur, of Erie; treasurer, the Rev. Elmer F. Rice, of Duquesne; missionary superintendent, the Rev. John J. Myers, of Edgewood.

LANGDON TELLS WHY HE PAID

For instance, Langdon testified in the trial of the "love theft" suit brought against him by Thomas J. O'Brien that publicity was the last thing he wanted in 1927 when O'Brien first threatened action. His lawyer, Langdon said, told him he would lose his contract if the story got into the newspapers.

The comedian married the former Mrs. O'Brien and testified O'Brien threatened to sue him for $150,000 for stealing his wife's love. To avoid publicity Langdon said he paid O'Brien $15,000 in cash and signed promissory notes for $11,500. The present suit was brought to collect on the notes.

Langdon denied stealing Mrs. O'Brien's love and said her former husband had lost it before he, Langdon, came on the scene.

LEG BROKEN, $25,000 ASKED

For a fractured leg, as a result of an explosion of an infernal machine or explosive ball, Leonard W. Knoff, has brought suit against Aaron Lewinter, dealer in rags, iron, etc., Turtle Creek, for $25,000 damages.

It is averred that on March 15, Andrew Cowalt, applied an acetylene torch to the ball, to ascertain what was inside of it and was so badly hurt, he died the next day. Knopp was wounded, by flying fragments.

It is averred in the bill of complaint filed by Attorney J. Frank Peffer that Knoff, employed by the defendant, is under 16 and had no vacation employment certificate. He asks $20,000 for his injuries, his hearing also having been affected. His father, Jacob Knoff seeks $5,000. The boy worked around Lewinter's stables, fed the horses and did other chores. The thing that exploded was picked up in the yard on the Lewinter property.

TRAFFIC CLUB PLANS PICNIC

The annual outing of the Traffic Club of Pittsburgh will be held in Idlewild Park late in July, officers announced yesterday. It will be the first outing of the club this season.

The board of directors of the club was to meet in the headquarters in the William Penn Hotel today to reorganize and select a chairman to succeed A. L. Doggett, recently elected president.

E. L. Blandford, general agent of the freight department in Pittsburgh of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, is chairman of the entertainment committee having charge of the July outing. C. C. Dailey, general agent of the Lehigh Valley Railroad here, is vice chairman.

Christian Endeavor Outing Tomorrow

The annual outing of the North Side Branch, Christian Endeavor Union, composed of the Endeavor societies of the North Side and North Boroughs, will be held at Wildwood, Bradford Woods, tomorrow. Annetta Sawn, William Small, Frank Wiedeman and Margaret Herschman compose the committee in charge.

P.R.R. TERMINAL VOTE TODAY

Final action on the agreement ordinance between the city and the Pennsylvania Railroad regarding the passenger terminal and other improvements along Penn avenue, was expected to be taken at the meeting of Council today. The ordinance under which the improvements are to be carried out was affirmatively recommended Wednesday at a meeting of the Service and Surveys Committee.

The new ordinance, providing it passes Council today, will go to the Mayor at once, and later to the Public Service Commission. The work must start within a year after the commission has given its approval.

DAVIS TO OPEN MOOSE HOME

The new $75,000 home of Homestead Lodge No. 66, L. O. O. M., will be dedicated tonight with Secretary of Labor James J. Davis making the dedicatory address. The new lodge home is at 110-112 East Eighth avenue, Homestead. A bazar is to be held all next week. The new home is a two-story brick structure, containing a lodge room and club room.

G. Roy Keitzer, will be master of ceremonies for the dedication. He will be introduced by W. E. Hight, dictator of the lodge. Burgess John J. Cavanaugh will make an address of welcome. Other speakess will be Mayor Charles H. Kline, President of Council John Herron, Councilman W. Y. English and Fred W. Jones, Moose leader.

DRUMMER DIES IN PARADE

World War veterans and firemen of McDonald today were making preparations to pay last honors to F. E. ("Frenchy") Motte, 60, of the Belgian Hill district of McDonald, who fell dead while participating in a firemen's parade last night.

Motte, who was a drummer in the McDonald American Legion Post bugle and drum corps, suffered an attack of indigestion at dinner, members of his family said, but insisted on parading with his corps at the firemen's street fair.

After marching across the town Motte fell to the street in front of the residence of R. A. Peacock, 408 West Lincoln street. Friends carried him to the Peacock lawn. Attempts to revive him were futile. Louis Motte, a son, collapsed when he heard of his father's death, but was revived. Twelve five companies from various communities participated in the parade.

4 INJURED HERE IN TRAFFIC MISHAPS

Two Boys Suffer Broken Legs, 'White Wing' Hurt; Truck Crashes Building

When the brakes of a parked United States mail truck became released this morning, the truck ran backwards from Cherry way between Third avenue and the Boulevard of the Allies, to the opposite side of the boulevard, coming to a halt against the front of the W. J. Gilmore Building, 422 Boulevard of the Allies. The corner of the building was damaged.

Testing out a motorcycle he was about to purchase from a friend, Harry Krause, 16, of 2836 Spring street, struck and seriously injured Thomas G. Gilchrist, 60, of 2716 Carey way, a city "white-wing." The accident occurred at South Twenty-sixth and Josephine streets. The man was removed to the South Side Hospital where it was said he was suffering from shock.

BOY'S LEG BROKEN

Struck by an automobile at Heinz and North Canal streets last night, John Frankley, 7, of 1015 East Ohio street, was in the Allegheny General Hospital today with a fractured left leg. Police arrested Arthur A. Elliott, 28, of R. D. No. 1, McKees Rocks, as the driver.

Suffering a fractured left leg when struck by a bicycle, Richard Deckhart, 3, of 225 East General Robinson street, was removed to the Allegheny General Hospital last night. Police say the bicycle was operated by James Discalve, 11, of 114 Anderson street.

PLAYING IN STREET

The boys were playing in Robinson street near the Deckhart home when the accident occurred.

Harry Word, 32, of 74 Van Braam street, was cut and bruised when a truck he was driving collided with a street car at Brady and Sidney streets yesterday. Thirty passengers on the car were shaken up. Word was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Harry D. Powell, 33, of 1315 Allegheny avenue, was cut and bruised when his automobile struck a Bellevue street car in California avenue, near Woodlawn avenue. H was treated at St. John's Hospital and later arrested on a reckless driving charge. The car was operated by John Olscheski, of 211 South Diamond street.

The Camera Question Box

Miss Lefkovits

MISS RAE A. LEFKOVITS, secretary, Squirrel Hill: Why not? It's the man's character that counts when one considers a husband. Mr. Lindbergh has sterling qualities and the achievements which have brought him universal admiration have not lessened them. The fact that he is a national hero has nothing to do with it.

Miss Freudenreich

MISS DOROTHY FREUDENREICH, file clerk, East End: I wouldn't mind being the wife of such a man, but the publicity around him would be most unfair to both the man and the woman he married.

Miss Reith

MISS GRACE REITH, film inspectress: Being the wife of a national hero such as Lindbergh would be a most desirable position. He has a lot of courage and all the other qualities admired by a woman.

Miss Gable

MISS MINNIE P. GABLE, cashier, Irwin: Yes—I would be proud to have a husband whom everyone respected as the world does Lindbergh. Any man who is rated as a national hero must certainly have a good character.

Miss Kiefer

MISS LEONA KIEFER, switchboard operator, Brentwood: I think I'd like to be the wife of a man like Lindbergh if there were any way of committing all the publicity which the position would involve. I shouldn't like being continually before the eyes of the rest of the people.

Miss Duffy

MISS KITTY DUFFY, film inspectress, Greenfield: Having a national hero for a husband wouldn't be so bad. I could look up to him and admire him because of his worthy qualities, and disregard the unpleasantness of the public interest.

SEEK 2 BANDIT 'KIDNAPERS'

Search for two armed bandits who forced Ellis Leighton, of 9401 Lake avenue, Cleveland, to drive them form East Liverpool, O., to Pittsburgh after robbing him, was instituted by police today.

Leighton, a sales manager for a fruit concern with offices in Cleveland, told detectives he was headed for Charleroi when two men leaped onto the running-board of his automobile near East Liverpool. The pair, Leighton related, took his watch and $87.

Under threat of a pistol Leighton was forced to drive the pair to Pittsburgh, according to his story to detectives. When the automobile reached Diamond and Market streets the men ordered Leighton to stop and fled down Market street.

Saturday Children's Day in Homestead

Children's Day will be observed at the two playgrounds in Homestead tomorrow with special programs of entertainment, games and contests. Committees to arrange the programs and choose prizes and novelties were named yesterday by Burgess John Cavanaugh and Supt. Port Eckles of the borough schools.

Miss Anne V. Murphy will have charge of the program at the Second avenue grounds and Miss Sadie M. Scorer at the Seventeenth avenue playgrounds.

Man Held as Woman Bullet Victim Dies

Tony Antorri, 46, of 6233 Kirkwood street, is to be turned over to the coroner in connection with the fatal shooting of Ellen Rice, 32, a Negro, of 1838 Runnette street, Penn Township, police say. Mrs. Rice died last night in the Pittsburgh Hospital. The shooting occurred Tuesday night at Kirkwood street and Collins avenue, when, according to police, Antorri fired on the Rice woman and Lawrence Lee, 39, of 504 Lowell street. Lee also was shot.

BISHOP HUGH C. BOYLE PRONOUNCING BENEDICTION AT OPEN AIR CELEBRATION OF FEAST OF CORPUS CHRISTI AT ST. VINCENT'S ARCHABBEY, LATROBE CATHOLIC DIGNITARIES CARRYING BLESSED SACRAMENT IN THE OUTDOOR PROCESSION

CORPUS CHRISTI CELEBRATED

LATROBE, Pa., June 20.—Thousands of men and women, in gala clothing, followed the procession of more than 300 priests, hundreds of children and parishioners yesterday as an open air benediction was given in St. Vincent's archabbey grounds.

The procession followed a solemn high mass of the Feast of Corpus Christi. A special permission had been given to hold the religious pageant yesterday, although it is generally observed on Sunday only.

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle was celebrant at the blessing while Prior Felix Fellner, O. S. B., celebrated the mass.

Those present received the blessing in the campus adjoining the college. Two improvised altars had been built. More than 500 were in the line of march.

Stage Line 'Marvel' Of Transportation

The longest stage line in history was the Butterfield stage line, 2,880 miles, running from St. Louis to San Francisco by way of El Paso and Los Angeles. It was established in 1858 and continued to be a marvel of transportation for those early days until given up at the outbreak of the Civil war.

43 FACING QUIZ OVER BALLOTS

The Registration Commissioners will meet Tuesday night to investigate the registration of 563 voters who cast ballots in the May primary in the First District of the Sixth Ward. County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern made the request for the hearing.

Forty-three persons are to appear before the board to answer questions ranging from age to the presentation of naturalization papers. There is a question about 56 of the 563 voters. Of the 56 only 13 have been able to show proof of their right to register, it was said.

The special recount board has made public reports of three districts. In the Second District of the Second Ward the board reported that 26 ballots were marked with similar markings. In the Second District of the Thirty-second Ward, E. V. Kerner was shown to be elected city-county committeeman over Robert E. Lewis. In the election board's return the vote was a tie.

The recount board announced that in the Third District of the Second Ward 11 ballots were thrown out because of double markings.

MOVE TO BUY GLORY BARN

An attempt to organize the membership of the Permanent Glory Barn, Shetland and Lincoln avenues, in the hope of purchasing the property and continuing it under that name, was announced by Charles G. Mayer, member of a committee representing a group of former parishioners.

He stated meetings will be held in the church Monday and Tuesday nights at 8 o'clock.

The property, opened by the Rev. John W. Sproul and vested in the name of Cecil R. Thomas, an associate, is in the hands of a real estate concern, due to Sproul's change of location. The church was formerly the First Pentecostal Church.

Woman Attacked By 'Mad' Cat Treated

Mrs. Walter F. Scott, of 312 Glendon avenue, who was bitten by a stray cat Wednesday is now reporting daily for Pasteur treatment at the West Penn Hospital. Following the suggestion of J. Robb Snyder, superintendent of the Animal Rescue League, the cat was examined at the hospital for signs of rabies and was found to be badly infected. Physicians at the hospital told Mrs. Scott that if she follows the treatment for 14 days she is in no danger.

Woman and 6 Men Caught in Rum Raid

Six men and a woman were arrested today when a squad of police under Lieut. William Lavery raided an alleged speakeasy on the second floor at 1006 Webster avenue. James Porte, 32, of 1210 Webster avenue, was charged with keeping a disorderly house and the others with being visitors. Police say they confiscated beer, whisky and gin.

SHARON UNION RANKS FIRST

SHARON, Pa., June 20.—The honor of having the largest society of the Young People's Christian Union has been brought to the First United Presbyterian Church here by the young members of the congregation. This society boasting a membership of more than 200, is the largest in the United Presbyterian denomination. There are more than 750 societies in the United States and Canada.

Thomas Sarver, president of the society, recently received a letter from the national headquarters in Chicago, informing him that the Sharon society had the largest membership. The runner-up for the honored position is the society at New Concord, O., home of the United Presbyterian college, Muskingum, where 100 college students are enrolled in the society.

The Rev. R. Harlan McCartney, pastor, is active in the society work. The session advisory committee is composed of C. H. Burns, Clarence Stewart and Frank Dallas. Officers of the society are: Eloise Sayre, vice president; Elizabeth Taylor, secretary, and Hugh Gamble, treasurer. The following are the standing committees and their chairmen: Publicity, Theodore DiNardo; Estes Park, Helen Bastress; membership, Eleanor Gamble; social, Allan Burns; study, Margaret Jones; prayer, Madge Henry and entertainment, Frank Dallas.

Judge Schoonmaker Voids 'Smell' Search Warrant

The Federal District Court again emphasized that a mere odor of alcohol, unsupported by other suspicious circumstances was not sufficient probable cause on which to base a search warrant to be used in raiding premises under suspicion.

Judge F. P. Schoonmaker yesterday quashed the search warrant executed by prohibition agents April 5, at a club in a building on Garfield avenue, Springdale, owned by the Krivan Hall Association. The raid was made on a partial "smell" warrant.

Commenting on that phase of the case, Judge Schoonmaker said:

"Alcohol properly denatured has a perfectly practical use in the industrial arts. If the agent had been able to detect the odor of whisky or wine, the circumstances would have been stronger."

In the opinion the court also held that the affidavits of prohibition agents, supporting the search warrant, in which they said they saw men in a visibly intoxicated condition leave the building, were not sufficient probable cause for the search warrant, when it was not disclosed that the men were sober when they entered, and there was no inference in the affidavit that they purchased liquor in the club.

7 Conventions Will Bring 2,300 Visitors to City

Seven additional convention groups have accepted the invitation of the Chamber of Commerce to hold their annual conventions in Pittsburgh within the next year, according to Mark Egan, member of the convention and visitors' division of the Chamber. These groups will bring more than 2,300 visitors to the city.

The largest of the groups is the Pennsylvania State Dental Society, which will bring 1,000 delegates early next year. Five hundred will come for the American State Highway Officials' Association in November.

The others are: the Chi Zigma Chi fraternity, Ready-Mixed Concrete Association, the Eighteen Hundred and Fortieth Aero Squadron, the German-American Federation of Pennsylvania and the Research Bureau of Retail Training.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society Folks in Gallery At Golf Tournament At Allegheny Club

Added to the many, many social interests of prodigal June is the international golf tournament, which opened today at the Allegheny Country Club and will close tomorrow night. Glenna Collette and many other famous sportswomen are playing.

Among those I noticed watching the playing this morning was Mrs. John Joy Edson III wearing a white crepe gown with a green jacket and a white silk hat. Nadine Montgomery was there and I saw Mrs. Henry Clay Bughman, Jr., in white crepe embroidered in red and a red straw hat.

Mrs. Harold Williams, who is an enthusiastic golfer, chose a sleeveless frock of white shantung, and Mrs. Clinton L. Childs, who was among the spectators, wore white piqué with a blue wool jacket and a blue straw hat.

Mrs. H. Higbie appeared in a rust knitted ensemble and an eggshell straw hat, and Mrs. Vincent Thompson wore a blue knitted dress with a dark blue straw hat.

Chatting with friends was Mrs. Franklin C. Irish, looking cool in a green crepe ensemble and an eggshell turban.

Others there were Mrs. George Benney in white crepe with a blue coat and a white straw; Mrs. R. W. McMahon in eggshell crepe with an eggshell straw hat; Virginia Goldsmith in pink shantung, and Katherine Collin in white linen with a gay red belt.

Mrs. C. J. Shannon chose a white crepe gown and a blue flannel coat with which she wore a white straw hat.

Last night the committee with Mrs. James M. Schoonmaker as chairman, entertained with a dinner for the visitors and tonight there'll be another dinner for them in the Allegheny Country Club.

Did you ever happen to realize in that lazy wandering of the mind on a golden summer day which one hesitates to call meditation how many important events in a girl's life take place in June? First of all there are commencements from finishing schools and colleges in June; then there are weddings in June and every year more and more girls make their debuts in June.

Making Debut

This afternoon another young girl is finding June an eventful month for her. She is Elizabeth McKay, attractive daughter of the Thomas McKays of Morewood avenue. Her mother is presenting her to society at a tea this afternoon in beautiful vine-covered "Oak Hill," Amberson avenue, the home of the late Mrs. James McKay, the bud's grandmother.

Elizabeth and her mother are receiving in the living room before an embankment of cibodium ferns, yellow roses and blue delphinium. And the bud's gift bouquets are arranged here.

Lace Gowns

Throughout the house surrounded by tree-shaded lawns are arranged yellow roses and blue delphiniums and other summer flowers. In the dining room where tea is being served roses and delphinium center the table.

Elizabeth has named as her aides for the tea Madeline Alexander, Margret Brill, Elizabeth Childs, Laura Collord, Nancy Craig, Barbara Irwin, Ruth Wilcox, Hester Hatton Browne, Martha Leggate, Jane Marshall and Helen Tullidge, all sister buds; Katherine Frazer, Rita Borntraeger and Lucretia Billings, who will make their bows probably in the season of 1931, and Mary Louise Bickford and Frances Reed, who made their debuts during the past winter.

Mrs. George X. Wittmer of the Schenley Apartments entertained with a buffet luncheon on Wednesday in beautiful Longue Vue Country Club for 150 guests.

Hostess At Club

The hostess wearing a gown of beige chiffon and lace with a hat to match and a corsage of orchids received in the card room off the ballroom before an embankment of cibotium ferns, roses and delphinium. Roses and delphinium were arranged in three tall silver vases on the buffet table.

The hostess had as her aides Suzanne Trimble, Mrs. J. W. Henry, Jr., Mary Grace Houston, Mrs. Lewis W. Hicks, Jr., Mrs. Emily Hamilton and Mrs. Francis K. Henry, who wore printed chiffon gowns with matching hats and had corsages of orchids.

Another event has been planned for the debutantes of the past winter and of the little season, and next winter of course. Mrs. William M. Draves of Sewickley will give a bridge-luncheon on Friday, June 27, in her home in honor of Rosamond Fitch, daughter of Mrs. Chester Marsh Van Kleeck of Edgeworth, who made her debut during the past winter.

Honor Debs

Yesterday I told you who would aid Elizabeth Childs, daughter of Mrs. Clinton L. Childs of Sewickley, at her debut tea which her grandmother, Mrs. James G. Pontefract, will give in her home, "Bagatelle," Shields on Monday, to be followed by a dinner-dance.

Now I want to name Mrs. Pontefract's aides. They will include Mrs. Leslie M. Johnston, Mrs. J. Frederic Byers, Mrs. McChilton. Accompanying Mrs. Callery is her granddaughter, Caroline Gallery Coudert, who will join her mother, Mrs. F. R. Coudert, Jr., in Paris.

Among the Pittsburgh folks who've gone to Ardmore to attend the wedding tomorrow of Margaret Dart Stevenson, daughter of the Archibald A. Stevensons, of Ardmore, and Maxwell McCreery, son of J. Rodgers McCreery and the late Mrs. McCreery, are the George Oateses, Miss Amelie and Miss Frances McCreery, aunts of the bridegroom; the Charles Baileys, the William Dunlaps, the John Lloyds, Mrs. William Kuhn, P. W. Williams and the Robert C. Wolfs.

Attend Wedding

In the East have been Mrs. Ralph Flinn, Mrs. Simon T. Patterson, the John W. Lawrences, and Mrs. Thomas M. Jones, III, all of whom have been at the St. Regis Hotel.

At the Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., are the John L. Porters, Elizabeth Porter, William B. Todd, Thomas D. McCloskey, Martha Virginia Niemann, Florence Gwedolyn Niemann, C. F. Niemann, James Lippincott.

500 Attend Zoar Home Annual Open-House Day and Supper

More than 500 persons visited Zoar Home yesterday for the annual open-home day and supper. Many of these guests were already familiar with the splendid work of the home, while for others it was an introduction to an entirely new world.

None could help being moved by sight of those 63 babies who have begun life without their birthright of a home of their own and some with hereditary handicaps. However, under the friendly, hospitable roof of Zoar Home and in the loving care of its officials and attendants, the lack of individual home is never felt and these same factors go far in overcoming handicaps.

All of the little ones from the tiny 1-day-old lying like a rosebud in her blanket to the sturdiest 3-years were immaculate and pinkily-clean. And every one was friendly, which in itself speaks for the sort of care they receive.

The babies, of course, were the chief attraction, but many of the callers paid visits to the seven elderly women and the 24 mothers whom the home is also sheltering at present.

The attractive booths where candy, common sense and fancy articles, cakes, candy, lemonade and other wares were sold were placed here and there throughout the building, giving it a most unusual and festive air.

GREEK DRAPERIES INSPIRE MODERN EVENING FROCKS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, JUNE 20. —We are still permitted to rese esses by the grace turiers who recog the Greek draperi cal inspiration for modern evening fr modern adaptation of the Greek line has been a singularly successful one, over here at any rate. We have not heard of frocks suggestive of Greek inspiration being as much in demand on your side, as it is by the Continental woman. The older woman is particularly addicted to frocks of this type for she feels that they add to her dignity as well as being graceful a combination which very few styles offer.

LATELY WE HAVE seen a few dinner dresses with long tight sleeves and as such dresses are something of a novelty especially during the summer months, we are sending you a sketch of a Madeleine model that is also somewhat classic Greek in inspiration. The fabric is a delicate pastel blue crepe georgette and the hand trimming is silver—an ideal color combination. The bodice and hip lines are snug in the latter the fabric is drawn forward in soft folds at the front and caught at the top of gracefully hanging godets. The cape-like pieces under the arm ends at the side front just in front of the sleeve seam.

THE RACE COURSE at Longchamp is a pleasant and advantageous point from which to view the out-door fashion parade, and it is indicative of new trends and ideas many of which emanate from the brains of a few clever and fashionable women who know a very great deal about chic. One of the most admired coats seen at Longchamp recently was a caped model of heavy black crepe, probably marocain, with a silver fox skin placed low on the back bordering the hemline. A slight circular movement is to be found at the front.

SUNDAY MENU
Clam Cocktail
Roast Duck with Apple Rings
Potato Balls Rolled in Parsley
Asparagus and Olives au Gratin
Jellied Tomato Salad
Fresh Pineapple
Assorted Cookies. Coffee

Tender spring ducks bake in so short a time that they make an ideal dish around which to plan a Sunday menu. No need for the homemaker to spend her entire Sabbath morning worrying over a coal stove. Once the duck is prepared and in the oven, nine-tenths of the work is over. Of course the duck must be watched rather carefully in baking so that it remains in the oven just the right length of time and is perfectly tender.

Suppose you select about a four-pound duck. Clean and wash it, then wipe it dry. Put a whole onion and two branches of celery in the duck. Sprinkle the entire surface with salt and pepper, a teaspoon of ginger and a tablespoon of finely chopped onion. Dredge it very lightly with flour.

Now dredge a baking pan with flour and put the duck in it. Place the pan, uncovered, in a hot oven until the flour is browned. Then add one-half to three-fourths cup water, cover the duck and reduce the heat.

Baste it frequently, about every 10 minutes with the water and fat in the pan. Try to use as little water as possible, just enough for basting. The duck will brown more if you uncover the pan for a few minutes just before removing it from the oven.

Cut fresh pineapples in the lengthwise, retaining the long green stem. Scoop out the fruit with a round vegetable cutter. Sugar it and refill the pineapple shells. Garnish with a sprig of fresh green mint. And so endeth the Sunday dinner.

There was a lady, one of the quaint characters who walked through the pages of Dickens' novels, who professed herself as most partial to her tea cucumber. I am not one to question anyone's particular liking for cucumbers, but I do say that if it had been hamburger steak I could have understood it perfectly.

Especially when the hamburger steak is broiled and served with onion rings—ah, there a dish.

You start to prepare it by laying seven slices of Spanish onion in a greased shallow baking dish. Pour over them two tablespoons of melted fat, sprinkled with salt and pepper, add a tablespoon of water, cover closely and bake in a moderate oven—350 degrees—for 30 minutes or until tender.

In the meantime cook a tablespoon of chopped parsley in a tablespoon of fat and combine with two cups of ground lean raw beef, ½ cup ground suet, a cup of soft fine bread crumbs, salt and pepper. Knead until thoroughly mixed. Mold into seven flat cakes and wrap each with a slice of

DON'T SUFFER FROM CONSTIPATION

Prevent It This Pleasant, Healthful Way

Beware of the frequent headaches, the listless feeling, bad breath and sallow complexion.

If allowed to continue, constipation may get its grip on you and serious sickness can result.

The poisonous wastes in your system must be removed. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to do this—safely, completely. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—recurring cases, with every meal.

Doctors recommend Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Because it is ALL-BRAN it brings complete results. Far better than habit-forming drugs or pills that are often dangerous. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN not only prevents and relieves constipation pleasantly—it also supplies your blood with the iron it needs to keep a healthy color and a strong body.

Ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Delicious with fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking. Recipes are on the package for muffins and breads. Sold by all grocers. Served by hotels, restaurants and dining cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Bananas Becoming Very Popular as Food

Yes, we have bananas. The song was wrong because they are always present in our market, declares Dr. Copeland. And with good reason as this toothsome fruit is delicious served as a vegetable or fruit. Try it.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator From New York
Former Health Commissioner of New York City

Bananas are ever present in our modern markets. There are to be had the yellow gloved variety as well as the dull red and more uncommon variety. In the tropical countries where they come from they are one of the most important foods of the natives.

This tropical fruit is becoming more and more popular as food. We have come to realize that bananas may be served as a vegetable as well as a fruit and that a banana cooked is even better than one raw.

The banana is rich in nutrients, but because it is a very concentrated food it is wise to combine it with some other food. Baking seems to bring out its delicate acid flavor.

A delicious way to cook bananas is to peel and cut them in halves. Then they are baked in the pan with a roast of beef, letting them be in the beef juices while baking.

NUTRITIOUS DISHES

In the summer months, when bananas are at their best, they are delicious combined with chopped nuts in a salad. After peeling and cutting them in halves, they should be sprinkled with lemon juice and rolled in the chopped nuts. Serve them on crisp lettuce leaves with a creamy salad dressing.

Have banana fritters or banana mousse, or banana ice cream for a luncheon party. They are all nutritious dishes, both light and appetizing.

It looks very much as though we had plenty of bananas. Last year $36,000,000 worth of these were imported into the United States. They are all the year round import. Their importation has steadily increased during the past 10 years. In 1919 they aggregated 35,800,000 bunches. In 1929 the quantity imported had risen to 65,100,000 bunches.

ORIGIN OF BANANA

The bulk of this fine tropical fruit comes into the United States from Honduras and Jamaica. This quantity represents more than 50 per cent of all the imported fresh fruits. Besides these two countries named, eight other countries in Latin America and the West Indies send bananas to this country.

I find that many persons are interested in the origins of foods. It used to be thought that bananas originated in Asia, but it is now known that they were first known in Central or South America.

The Secretary of Agriculture in his report on fruit production in a recent edition of the Year Book says, "Lunch boxes today contain fewer apples and more oranges and bananas! There is no doubt that it is true. Bananas and oranges both make ideal foods for the school children, and children cannot do better than to eat these golden fruits.

EAT WHEN RIPE

Bananas should be eaten when they are ripe, that is when they are of a rich golden color, the small black specks are beginning to appear on the skin. Indigestion is likely to result from eating unripe bananas.

Ripe bananas contain 1.87 per cent of protein; 23.05 per cent of carbohydrate, 0.63 per cent of fat, and 73.10 per cent of water. They are a wholesome, good food, but are better combined with some other food than when eaten alone.

It looks as though there was some sarcasm attached to the once popular song entitled "We Have No Bananas" for bananas are plentiful enough for everyone to have their share.

bacon. Place each case in an ovenproof dish and broil under direct heat for five minutes on each side. Baste occasionally with the drippings. Serve at once from the baking dish.

If it is not convenient to broil the meat cases by direct heat panbroil them in a hot skillet and serve on the onion slices.

If you belong to a bridge club or a theatre club or even a chess or club and you and your mates have bothered the baker or the grocer with your requirements for refreshments for the next meeting of your club, you will find the following recipe for Chocolate Nut Squares a real boon. They are delicious and are quite easy to make. Take the edge off one cup of sifted flour, one teaspoon of baking powder and one-half teaspoon of salt. Sift together twice. Melt two squares of chocolate and one-half cup of butter together over hot water. Add two cups of sugar and two eggs, well beaten, and mix well. Add the flour mixture and one cup of chopped nuts. Spread in a greased shallow pan and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for thirty minutes. Cut in squares while warm.

Chop Suey is one of the very finest things you could possibly serve to your guests. And it is so easy to prepare too. Pick over two cups of flaked canned crabmeat being very careful to get out all of the fibrous stringy things which abound in crabmeat. Pour a quarter cup of cooking sherry flavoring over the crab and let it stand for at least half an hour longer if possible. In your electric chafing dish melt four tablespoonfuls of butter and when it is hot add four tablespoonfuls of flour and blend well.

Add two cups of hot chicken stock and the canned chicken soup if you have it (the other and stir until smooth and thickened. At serving time add the crabmeat, chopped canned pimento and a cup of peas either canned or fresh.

Season with salt and pepper and serve on hot buttered toast. Ripe olives, stuffed celery, a hot beverage and a delicate sweet complete the menu for a simple but delicious supper.

Sometimes I think that the way a dinner is served, the little side-dishes that complement the main dish and the general attractiveness of the table have a great deal to do with the state of one's appetite.

How often have you said: No, I don't feel like eating a single bite. I just haven't the appetite for anything. And you meant it too. But when you are gently led to a pretty table spread with appetizing dainties, somehow you find your reluctant appetite becoming a healthy one.

Meat may be dressed up just as attractively as any salad or dessert you can imagine, using the very foods which are on the menu. Choose an accompaniment that will contrast the meat in flavor, texture and color, and you have the requirements for a good garnish.

For instance, with roast beef serve spiced tomato pickle, spiced peaches or pears, canned quinces or spiced kumquats. With broiled steak serve fried mushrooms, grilled or baked potatoes, horseradish sauce with a hot bun.

With cold pork serve currant jelly, fried apple rings, cranberry sauce, sweet or baked apples. With veal serve bacon curls.

WHITE ICE BOX CAKE—Line a spring form with waxed paper. Place lady fingers flat on the bottom of the form, making a layer. Sift half a pound of sweet butter and two cups of powdered sugar together. Add the juice and the rind of one lemon, four slightly beaten egg yolks and one and one-half cups of ground pecans. Then add the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs. Spread half of this mixture on the top of the first layer of lady fingers, then add another layer of lady fingers, then more filling, topping the cake with lady fingers. Put in a cold place several hours to mold. Turn on a plate and serve with whipped cream.

Here's How To Get It!!

Just Follow These Simple Rules

1—Subscriptions can be taken in Pittsburgh and Suburban Towns within a 40-mile radius of Pittsburgh where the Daily Sun-Telegraph is delivered by carriers to the homes.

2—You are to solicit subscriptions upon the following basis:

A—Subscriptions for Home Delivery of the Daily Sun-Telegraph for 26 weeks from persons who are not already subscribers to the Daily Sun-Telegraph (be sure of this).

B—The subscriber must agree to have the Daily Sun-Telegraph delivered to his home six days a week and pay the Carrier Boy at the advertised subscription rate of 18 cents a week (after delivery). Have the subscriber merely write his or her name on the subscription blank as printed below. YOU ARE TO COLLECT NO MONEY.

C—Subscriptions may be brought to the Sun-Telegraph office by you in person or sent by mail. Subscriptions are to be brought or mailed to the Circulation Department, The Sun-Telegraph, Gazette Square, Pittsburgh, Pa.

E—You can start right today securing subscriptions—no waiting, no delay. Cut out and use the subscription blanks below.

3—When you get a subscription have the person write his or her name on the line in the subscription blank that says "subscriber." The subscriber should write his or her name in their own handwriting. On the next line below, where it says "Address," have them write in their address and whether the paper is to be delivered to the front door or rear door, or just where they want it delivered; also indicate whether they live in a flat or apartment building, and, if so, on which floor. Have them fill in their telephone number on the line in the subscription blank left for that purpose, and on the bottom line, where it says "Order Taken By," write your name and address.

4—Keep a record of all the subscriptions you secure, so that after you have turned in all your subscriptions you will have a list showing the name and address of the subscriptions you have taken. Bring this list with you when you are notified by mail that your subscriptions have been verified.

The hilly streets of Pittsburgh make for great coasting. Enjoy the speed and thrill of zooming down them on one of these dandy, battleship-steel, Sun-Telegraph coaster wagons. You haven't a wagon? That's a cinch. They're the easiest things in the world to get. All you need to do is to use a little of that spare time of yours—and the Sun-Telegraph will give you, scot-free, the beautiful coaster wagon pictured here.

IT'S JUST PLAY TO GET THIS SPEEDY COASTER WAGON

Your Mother, Your Aunts, Your Uncles and Dad Will Be Glad to Help You Win It!

All you have to do is to get four new readers to the daily Sun-Telegraph. That should be easy. The Sun-Telegraph is the paper, you know, with all the last-minute news, the funny funnies, and all the famous writers. You can probably find four of your relatives to sign up, tonight. Turn the subscriptions in, and as soon as they are verified by the Sun-Telegraph, you get your coaster wagon—ABSOLUTELY WITHOUT CHARGE. Perhaps your mother will help you by asking her friends—and maybe Dad can get you a subscription from some of the men in the office. The only thing you must be sure of is that the blanks are signed by NEW subscribers—people who haven't subscribed to the Sun-Telegraph within the past month, and who don't get the Sun-Telegraph now. And they must live in those sections of Pittsburgh where the Sun-Telegraph is delivered daily.

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH IS EASY TO SELL BECAUSE EVERYONE WANTS TO READ IT

By SALLY MARTIN

Is Motherhood Greatest Job for Women?

Do all normal women want babies?

Is a well-rounded life possible for a woman without a baby?

Or are there women whom motherhood leaves unsatisfied—who would prefer a nice little business or career to the finest brood of babies?

And are those women exactly as loving as the mothering souls?

Maybe the questions aren't fair. And they almost sound as if I had my self-sacrificing mind made up to something. Mildred sent them in, and whether you like her letter or not, it's dynamite—you can't avoid thinking about it. What do you think about it? I think you'll be going to let you be judge and call balls. Here's what she says:

"Dear Miss Martin:

Do you honestly believe what you said in today's paper about having a home and a baby being best for women?

Personally, I don't believe it is for every woman. There are women, and mothers in this world, and not all of them are interested in being mothers.

BOTH ENJOY CAREERS

I used to think they were. Then I married and had a child and it died. My husband and I regret its loss in a way, but it seems that I realized he and I was built for domesticity. We both have careers that we enjoy to the utmost, and we're more companionable now than we were when we had the home and the baby.

This I think will be the solution of the question of homes and babies some day—maybe far in the future, but sometime that there will be women whose job it will be to have children as some today have 10 or more and like it, and there will be other women whose sole it will be to take care of those children while they are growing, and others still who will go into the business world. Many women who would not care to go through childbirth or aren't able to still adore children and would make grand mothers. And I believe there are and always will be women who prefer business, writing, drama, art, etc., to motherhood. And they just can't help it. It's born right in them.

"I believe there will be institutions to train women for all these lines, and women will take up whichever they prefer. It would all be done on a large scale.

"And what about the men? I haven't seemed to place them yet, have I? Possibly or probably by that time there will be new fields for them. So many people are restless today. A change of things is the order of the day.

LOOKS AHEAD TOO FAR

My solution sounds cold, but that I look ahead too far. Cutting out of the picture, after getting home to my self, the Yes and No of the moral, legal, and practical of the question of the day. Even now I know things were going to be different—as they would [illegible] I think we come back to really wanting babies to [illegible] each time until eventually we become perfect of [illegible].

You are a very broad-minded woman. Older than I am, and therefore of more experience. What do you think of my ideas? Do you think they're too radical? Or do you think they might work? Do you really believe that every woman might be happiest with a child of her own? I don't. And I don't think they should have them if they don't want them.

Please be candid and tell me your true opinion. Please answer my letter and tell me what you honestly think.

The old saying. It takes all kinds of people to make a world is true. I think and always will be true. Why push all women into one category? Aren't women individuals as well as just women?

I've done a lot of thinking about this question and now I need somebody . . . a good strong somebody to tell me what to do about it. Just sit tight. I guess and watch what comes about, huh?

Mildred Gardner."

There's Mildred's slant on the biggest argument on earth, stranger. What's yours? What do you really think about mothers and motherhood? Are careers preferable to babies? Are women who don't want babies really normal? Can they ever be as happy as mothers?

You have ideas on that subject. Perhaps they're amazing ideas—so amazing that you've never dared voice them. Well, now's your chance. You can at last say exactly what you feel, without a word of censure. And thousands will listen. So grab that old fountain pen and let's have your verdict, even if it knocks 'em cold.

Knowing When to Keep Still Is Vital for Success in Life, Says Fay King

By FAY KING.

Many persons have talked themselves out of a good thing into a lot of trouble.

The momentary triumph of having the last word and winning a quarrel often becomes a real reason for regret later on.

The one who keeps silent has not less wit, but greater wisdom.

A word of boasting has sometimes tipped off a rival and changed the course of what had been a successful business prospect.

Dickey Asserts Himself in Madge's Defense

For a second or two which seemed an hour the echo of my mother-in-law's angry voice hovered over us. Then the answer to the breathless question Dicky's acquaintance in fact attack on me came swiftly and decisively.

Mother," he said firmly, "you may say whatever you please to me and I will not resent it. But I cannot permit you to make the unjust criticism of Madge to which I have just listened. You know that this question of Junior's obedience is not."

But his mother had seen a way out of a situation which was growing too much for her and I smiled to myself at the avidity with which she seized it and thanked it under her grim anger.

"Richard Graham," she said dramatically, "when a son of mine begins to tell me what he can and cannot permit me to do it is time that he left my room and took his family with him. I am too old a woman and too feeble to take up the burden of disciplining my grandchildren even when the task is shirked by those who should handle it. Kindly take Roderick with you also. No doubt Mrs. Bickett and your wife will devise some means of punishing these children if they do not get them off altogether."

I saw a distinct look of hope upon the faces of Junior and Roderick at this juncture, but I had no chance to dwell upon either face. My mother-in-law was standing majestically behind the two small boys, gesturing with outflung hands exactly as if she were "shooing" chickens, and as I caught Junior's hand in mine Dickey appeared upon the other side and took Roderick in charge. We beat a hasty retreat in discreet silence and heard my mother-in-law's lock and bolt her door after us with the maximum of noisy decision.

"Wow!" Dickey exclaimed, grinning amicably at me, and I saw that in our common disgrace he had lost his temporary rancor against me.

"What's the program?" Dickey asked with a manner that told me the disciplinary proceedings were now strictly up to me.

"Will you take Roderick into your room for a few minutes?" I asked, and added reassuringly as I saw the small boy tug away from his uncle's hand as if frightened, "Give him something to read until I send for him."

"No talky-talk," Dicky said emphatically. "That's not my line."

"I'll take care of that," I said. "That's my forte, lecturing, you know."

I was aghast the moment I had said it, for I had not meant to make the reference to the ill-natured gibe he had made but a few minutes before.

"Oh, Dicky, I didn't mean—" I faltered, and his eyebrows unknitted themselves and he laughed good-naturedly.

"It's a neat—and deserved—stiletto thrust, sweetheart," he said. "I was beastly down there when you were setting William right. It's a job I should have funked terribly. All right, Roderick, come on with your old uncle. Give me a ring when you want us, Madge."

I nodded and with my small son by the hand crossed to the suite of rooms in which for under Katherine's wise guardianship played and studied and slept. Junior did not speak until I closed the door after us. Then he put a query in most subdued accents.

"What are you going to do with me, Mother?"

I did not answer immediately, for I have proved the essential value of silence and suspense in disciplining my small son. I pulled out a chair and seated him in it gently but decisively and then I pulled another opposite and seated myself still without speaking. Junior gave a heavy sigh and asked again, this time plaintively:

"What are you going to do?"

I looked at him speculatively for a second or two, then I answered slowly:

"I don't know, Junior. You see I don't know anything about this affair at all. I wasn't there when it started. All I now is that I am terribly ashamed to think that a thing like this should have happened between you and a guest of ours. Suppose when Uncle Harry comes your father should get into a fight with him like that. What would you think?"

Junior looked at me unwinkingly, but I knew that he was revolving the question in his mind.

"I guess I'd think he'd gone crazy," he admitted at last, and I drew a breath of relief, for whenever I can bring my small son to an acknowledgment of a wrong action, my battle is won. But the next second I beat a hasty mental retreat as Junior added reflectively:

"But I guess if Uncle Harry had done to Dad what Roderick pulled on me, Uncle Harry would have got it on the snout, too."

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Woman—and the Other Woman

"Two people who love the same things, love each other," said the late Elbert Hubbard.

True—but not when both of them happen to be women, and one of those things happens to be the same MAN!

Yet countless masculine optimists spend their days struggling to make the woman they love and the woman who happens to be amusing them for the moment agree to be good friends.

"Every man has two women in his life," says a popular cynic, "one to appeal to his higher nature—and one to appeal to the other three-quarters of him." One for week-days—and one for holidays!

Well—it takes two drinks to make a man feel buoyant and happy, and perhaps it takes two women to make him feel that his life is perfectly balanced. But WHY does he try to MIX them?

May they never meet!" was good, ripe psychology. But most men seem to lose all their discretion when it comes to mixing drinks or women.

Life, the average man thinks, would be so much simpler and sweeter if one woman would only be "reasonable" about accepting the OTHER woman. And if the "other woman" would only be docile and responsive to his magnanimous suggestion that they "would just love each other," if they could only meet.

Oh, WOULDN'T they—just!

But you simply can't make two women see how much smoother and pleasanter and cozier everything would be if they would "get together" and share the attentions, the car and the kisses, over which they insist on waging battle.

Men have grown gray and died early, trying to solve this problem!

A man has it all figured out that, if two women in his life could only be "friends," each would see how impossible it was for him to live without the other, and would joyfully accept a community interest in his affections.

But one woman simply won't realize that the other woman is sensible and broad-minded, and "just a good little pal," and all that. And the other woman simply won't "understand" that he is only trying to make things pleasanter by keeping the peace. So, what can a poor man do?

Alas, even Solomon must have NEEDED all his judgment, when it came to making each of his wives see that the other six-hundred-and-ninety-nine were all just nice, sweet girls, with whom she ought to be "wonderful pals!" And, no doubt, he went to his grave wondering why women are "so unreasonable!"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Daily Sun-Bath Will Help Baby to Health

If a baby could talk I am sure it would ask for its comfort many things that we never think to give. It might say sometimes that we don't know how to treat an infant.

Most babies have a way of protesting when things get too uncomfortable for them. Often they have to kick off the blankets and wraps to gain freedom and comfort on a hot day. And as for a pin sticking into his little body or colicky pains, he can protest at those, too.

It is a very great responsibility to have the care of an infant, but it is perhaps the most pleasurable and the noblest work one can have to do. It needs so many things to keep good the health, but it really doesn't take much to make the infant happy when it is well.

A baby's skin tells very much about its physical welfare. Good health depends upon the activity of the skin, for unless the sweat glands and pores of the skin function properly the wastes of the body, which escape through the pores of the skin in perspiration cannot be thrown off properly.

The activity of the skin depends much on its cleanliness. Every baby should have its regular daily bath. Activity of the skin depends, too, upon the condition of the blood and the circulation. If the baby has good, rich blood, the skin will have a pinkish glow, the cheeks will be red and the eyes sparkle.

A baby, especially on the warm days, should not be too warmly clothed. Strike a happy medium and clothe it lightly. And yet it is quite necessary that a baby have sufficient coverings so that any sudden change in temperature will not chill the delicate body.

Indigestion soon brings blotches and roughness to a baby's skin. The wind will chap and redden it. Too long a time in the sun will burn the skin, to say nothing of making the baby most uncomfortable with pain. Care should be taken not to leave the baby exposed to the sun's rays for too long a time, and the eyes should always be protected from the sun.

Baby needs the good effects of sunshine on the skin. In the warmest part of the day from 11 to 2 o'clock, is a very good time to put the child in the bright sunshine. Open the window wide, and have a couch under the open window for baby to lie on. Strip off all the garments and let the youngster kick and squirm to its heart's content. Its smiles and contentment will be good to see.

This is the way the infant gets his exercise, and it is of great importance that it does its "daily dozen" every day. This is the way that nature intended us to strengthen our muscles and improve the circulation and the skin.

It is well-known that ordinary window glass does not enable the rays of the sun to penetrate. Special glass can be installed in any window at a nominal cost, and your baby can have the life-giving rays of the sun whenever the sun shines. Experiments with this glass show that it is a valuable health agent, and hundreds of people are having these windows installed in their homes. Schools, hospitals and hotels are using it to good advantage.

A daily sun-bath helps to coax a semi-invalid back to health. Everyone needs the sunlight and, after the long winter months, with their lack of sunshine, this is the time of the year to make the most of the warm, summer days out-of-doors.

Answers to Health Queries

SUSAN M. Q.—How can one tell if he has sinus trouble?

A.—Have a careful examination by a nose and throat specialist.

C. D. Q.—What causes white spots to appear on the skin?

A.—This is usually due to lost pigment or coloring matter. The cause is unknown and there is no specific cure.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Entertaining the Fraternity Alumni

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. We like other organizations have social affairs. Our alumni always attend these gatherings. Some of these men are advanced in age. We want to know whether it is proper for us to set aside a room for card playing such as bridge and so forth for this special group at a spring formal dinner dance.

Our intention is to keep them entertained throughout the evening. If card playing is not proper, will you suggest some other form of entertainment to replace the dancing which the younger folks will do?

2. Is it proper to wear a "frat" pin on a tuxedo at a formal?

H. G.

1. It would I think be a perfect plan for you to set aside a room for the playing of bridge. And for doing this those who do not dance will probably rise up and call you blessed.

2. Yes.

But shouldn't you refer to this important pin as a fraternity pin? I have always understood that fraternity men disliked very much to have any one abbreviate the fine and traditional word "fraternity." Shouldn't it be pronounced as it appears so splendidly at the top of your letter paper?

The Top-Coat with the Tuxedo

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Will you kindly let me know whether a tuxedo may be worn in the street to and from an affair during warm weather without a topcoat?

2. May a straw hat be worn with a tuxedo?

3. May a light colored coat be worn over a tuxedo?

I am taking this opportunity to thank you for the really helpful information that I have obtained from your interesting column.

MRS. W. P.

1. It is considered the best form for a man to wear a topcoat, light weight of course, in summer with a dinner jacket.

2. Yes.

3. Yes, but a darker coat is preferable.

Thank you very much for your kind appreciation.

A Puzzling Invitation

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Your column has been such a help to me in the past that I find at this time you are the first one to consult.

1. Recently I received an invitation to a shower in the form of a bridge luncheon. It did not state what kind of a shower it is to be, such as miscellaneous, linen or any of the usual kinds given for the bride. In this case, what am I to do? Should I give some gift?

2. As yet I do not know whether I will be free to go. The luncheon is at 2 o'clock and I will be busy at the office until 1 o'clock. Will you please write me a note of regret, also another note of acceptance, in case I should manage to go?

M. F.

1. Are you sure that the bridge-luncheon is to be in the form of a shower? Did it say so on the invitation? If you are sure that the party is to be a shower, and since the kind of shower is not indicated, you should take a shower present, and of any kind. That is, something for the home, of course, but of no special kind.

2. You should determine definitely whether or not you will be able to attend the luncheon, and send an acknowledgement accordingly. When we accept an invitation for a meal, like this, we must be very definite about it, since places have to be provided for. If the invitation was in the form of a note, write a note in return, saying either that you can come, and are happy to come, or that you cannot accept the invitation. In the latter case, it is better form to give a reason, the reason, if this is possible.

Household Hints

The hot and cold dip for glassware is a healthy way of eliminating elbow exercise for the housewife. Dip the glasses in as hot water as they can bear without reaching the breaking point, then run them under the cold water tap and turn them down in a wire drier. Then forget them. Within a short time they'll be ready for the trip to the cupboard with a brightness that will be astounding in view of the glass towel's obvious neglect.

* * *

Shedding tears over scorch marks is a waste of time when you know how to put an onion to a good use. Peel, slice and pound an onion, mix with two ounces of fuller's earth and one-half pint of vinegar; boil 10 minutes, strain and bottle. Cork this liquid tightly and have it on hand for such unhappy occasions. If it is spread on the scorched spots and left to dry, the marks will disappear. If, however, at first you don't succeed, try again. The second application will undoubtedly remove all trace of the stain.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Envy

NOT FOR a noble mind is envy's mire
Which must defile all travelers who go
Down those dark ways where pain and hate conspire
To stem the tides of life that gladly flow.
I would not stoop to grieve that any man
Had more than I of honors, gold or land.
Too certain am I that creation's plan
Lays the right gift in every outstretched hand.
In face of strange events men call unjust
And with calmness of a perfect trust
I seek for hidden meanings, wholly kind.
Blind envy is a thing of mire and maze;
Climb up; clear vision waits in higher ways.

THE BEAUTY BOX

By HELEN FOLLETT

A red nose is sometimes due to a cutaneous affliction, but more often is caused by dietic errors. The gal with the flamboyant nez should avoid rich gravies, highly spiced and salty food, also heavy meats. She needs more fruits and green vegetables, more water, more sleep, more fresh air.

Green eye shadows are being used by the lal-la sirens who are always chasing the latest beauty butterfly. They come in oily form. The application is made close to the lashes, and does a fade-out as it nears the eyebrows. The safest eyeshadow, the one easiest to apply, is rouge that is used on the cheeks. When the face flushes naturally, the eyelids do a little pinking on their own.

What has become of the baby stare? It has gone completely out of style, if it ever was in, which is doubtful. The girl with the efficient expression isn't so smart, either; she is likely to get a hard look on her face. The interesting face is the one that lights up now and then, that changes. Cupid seldom takes a second glance at a woman who looks like an image. There is also the machine-gun face, but of that, another time.

Local fat is troublesome. Often a woman isn't much over weight, yet her upper arms will be too thick, or the calves of her legs larger than the beauty laws allow. The beauty shops have found a new treatment for such cases; it is called diathermy, which is electrical heat. A hot moist application is made and atop that is the electrical pad that keeps things steaming. A strenuous massage which consists mainly of a brisk whipping of the muscles follows. What chances has a little fat cell after all that? Poor little fat cells — everybody's fighting them.

In the merry Spring months, when housecleaning goes on apace, the fingernails have a tough row to hoe. After a session with book shelves that haven't been disturbed for a year or so, fingernail eaves take on a gloom that becomes established. Therefore the wise missus will have her druggist combine for her one dram of oxalic acid and two ounces of rosewater. She will twist some cotton around an orangewood stick, dip the stick into the solution and plunge it under the nail edges; it will remove every particle of dust and grime, leaving a clear white border.

THE BIG HOUSE

with a disdainful glance and finding himself alone in the fight, shrugged his shoulders and slumped into his seat. At that instant the door at the end of the messhall was flung open and the warden, fearless, dynamic, came in. He leaped upon the nearest table and called:

"Listen! I had to give you men codfish for three straight days because the beef was condemned. I don't blame you for complaining. But you can't get by with this rough stuff. You can't destroy property and endanger your own lives and ours! Now get this! I'm boss here! I didn't invite you men to come here! But while you're here you're going to do as I say! Remember that!"

He paused to see the effects of his words. The messhall was quiet.

"Who started all this?" he asked.

"Butch!" shouted Wallace.

"All right Butch—in the hole for you!"

The warden jumped down lightly from the table and walked out. Wallace, with several guards at his side, started toward Butch. Morgan whispered:

"Butch—ditch that knife!"

Butch suddenly leaned forward, his breast against the table. He deftly extricated the knife from his blouse and pressed it into the waiting hands of his pal. Then he stood up, waiting for Wallace. Morgan quickly passed the knife to Joe Lejansky, who sat at his right. Beneath the table Joe passed it on to Dopey. Dopey to Putnam. Putnam to a Mexican at his right; the Mex quickly to Kent, who sat at the end of the table, near the wall. Kent, when he felt the cold steel in his hands, turned pale. He tried to refuse it, but the spic sat stoically at his side, his hands between his knees. Kent hurriedly placed it in his blouse, chill sweat breaking out on his brow.

Meantime they had surrounded Butch.

"Frisk him!" ordered Wallace.

Butch grinned.

"I ain't got nothin' on me."

"Huh—you had a knife didn't you?"

"Me? A knife?" Butch was offended. "I ain't seen a knife since I ripped the gizzards out o' that wop on Mulberry street—"

"Well, come on, you'll have plenty of time to think of that in the cooler—and it'll teach you some table manners, too."

"Why, I ain't done a thing," insisted Butch as they led him away to solitary confinement. "I was just gaggin' for the boys—can't we have some comedy in this joint? See? I'm laughin', myself. Ha-ha-ha—it's funny an' goin' to get funnier."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, June 21

A fair degree of activity and advancement is shown by the lunar transits ruling on this day. There is some promise of preferment or favors for those in the employment of others and also some prospect of financial increase generally, but at the same time there is an augury of a careless and hazardous use of moneys, probably with slight losses or extravagance. Sign all writings with care.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of fair progress, with some honors, promotion or recognition from those in position through its own efficiency and through winning the support and recognition of those in authority or its employers. It may have inclination to a free spending of its finances.

FOOD DUMPED, HELD UNFIT

NEW YORK, June 20.—(A.P.)—Further information about dumping large quantities of vegetables into the ocean by railroads entering New York was furnished by railway officials today.

It was obtained by the Packer, Fruit and Produce newspaper, which said that in the 19 days ended yesterday the Pennsylvania Railroad had dumped 49 cars of perishables from Southern and Southwestern states and California. The total included 31 cars of beans, one car of squash, seven cars of cucumbers, one car of cabbage, one car of beets, and eight cars of California lettuce. The Erie Railroad reported dumping three cars of California lettuce last week.

Both railroads were quoted as denying that any of the food was fit for human consumption.

Phillip E. Reed, perishable agent for the Pennsylvania, said rules required railroads to sell refused foodstuffs if there was a market for them, if not they are dumped.

Muddy Creek Road Improvement Near

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 20.—Bids were asked here by the State Highway Department for construction of three miles of concrete on the route between Waynesburg and Carmichaels, known as the Muddy Creek road. The improved section will start at Carmichaels.

AWAIT DECISION IN 'JAKEY' TRIAL

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 20.—(A.P.)—Prohibition officials said they expected to be notified today whether government efforts to bring the principals in an alleged nation-wide jamaica ginger conspiracy to trial at Covington, Ky., had been successful.

The defendants have resisted all efforts to have them brought to trial at Covington, headquarters of the Eastern Kentucky Federal Court district. They are Abraham Michaels, New York, president of the Interstate Drug Company; Harry Gross, Boston, president of the Hub Products company; Forest James, Brooklyn, president of the Fulton Chemical company, S. A. Hall, also of the Fulton company; and Walter E. Anderson, Brokiyn, president of the Elon company.

If United States Commissioner George W. Cotter, New York, grants the removal order, the defendants will face trial at Covington, in November. Their arrests resulted from wide-spread sale of jamaica ginger extract in Kentucky.

N. Kensington Man Appointed Detective

GREENSBURG, Pa., June 20.—Jack Hasson, of New Kensington, has been named an assistant county detective by District Attorney Victor B. Bouton. He succeeds C. O. Campbell, of Latrobe, who resigned.

In a hostess it's Graciousness

in a cigarette it's Taste

THE SUCCESS OF A HOSTESS depends upon her ability to make others feel at home; that of a cigarette, upon better taste.

HOW ELSE EXPLAIN Chesterfield's constant gains, its ever-mounting popularity with smokers everywhere?

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE for the delicate mildness and rich aroma that belong to Chesterfield, nor for Chesterfield's unique blend and cross-blend. "In a cigarette it's TASTE!" Yes, and in a Chesterfield, it's . . . "TASTE above everything".

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield cigarettes are of finer quality and hence of better taste than in any other cigarette at the price. LIGGETT & MYERS TOBACCO CO.

ADDING to Milady's beauty has become one of the nation's major industries. Today there are salons and parlors where expert hands tend to the setting of Madame's coiffure, where agile fingers knead Madame's face in an invigorating massage, where scientific preparations renew the beauty of the hungry skin. It is all-important that you seek out the more reliable of these shops. That you entrust your greatest asset—beauty—to experienced hands. Thus, we suggest that you patronize those establishments who advertise in the Sun-Telegraph. Their reputation is solid. They are the masters of their profession. So that you may easily use their messages as a guide, we have grouped them every Sunday in the Society Section of the Sun-Telegraph. In these masseurs, barbers and beauticians you may place the utmost confidence. They are Sun-Telegraph advertisers, and are endorsed by the Sun-Telegraph.

THE OFFICE WIFE -:- By FAITH BALDWIN

Anne Realizes That She Loves Her Employer

CHAPTER XIV

When 10 days of Anne's vacation had passed Eaton telephoned her from Southampton. When her voice reached him over the wires the sudden relief and pleasure that flooded him was distinctly at variance with his apologetic tone.

"I am so ashamed to ask you to cut your vacation short, but I've been ordered to Hot Springs by my doctor," he said. "Could you possibly come along with Mrs. Eaton and me? We leave day after tomorrow. I have work that must be done and the medical despot permits me to do it—provided I'm away from the office."

"I'll go, of course, Mr. Eaton," she answered instantly.

"That's fine!" The deep vibrant voice relieved and friendly and grateful, reached her as intimate as a handclasp.

He went on to make arrangements and when Anne turned from the receiver she was flushed and her eyes were bright. She went to look for her mother, her cheeks hot and her hands cold.

"Mr. Eaton has been sick," she reported to Molly. "He's been ordered South. I'm going with him."

"And that you are not!" exclaimed Mrs. Murdock, scandalized. "A young girl traipsing all over the land with a married man!"

"Oh, Mother!" Anne laughed, and it was the first time for 10 days that her mother had heard that light-hearted sound. "Mrs. Eaton is going, of course."

Molly had the grace to be ashamed. "That's different," she admitted.

Hot Springs meant clothes. A girl couldn't go in rags. Anne went to town and drew out some of her savings. Luckily it wasn't hard to find sports things and a dinner frock or two.

Pleasant Trip

The trip down was pleasant. She and Eaton—their meeting had been in the press of a railroad station, yet they might have been alone from the excitement which possessed them both—worked together in a compartment, and Linda yawned over a novel and wondered if Dick Jameson would be at Hot Springs, and hoped he would—and feared it.

"I certainly am a brute to take you away," Eaton told Anne, smiling at her over the card table. "There's nothing wrong with me, really—headaches, a touch of neuritis—but my doctor felt that if I went away for a couple of weeks and took the cure I'd be all right for the winter. We've a busy season ahead."

"I—I was thrilled to come," Anne told him. "It's just a longer, much nicer vacation for me, that's all."

"It won't all be work," he promised. "We'll try to give you a good time."

And as her responsive smile reached him, he thought how glad he would be to let the work go, necessary as it was, to devote himself to that good time.

Anne was perfectly happy, she told herself. To work with the chief in such surroundings, to be treated by Linda not as secretary or pseudo-guest, but as "family"; to wake mornings and see from her wide windows the green, green mountains; to breathe the clear air and to feel satisfied that her gay little sweaters and short pleated skirts were "right" and that she really differed little from the dozens of smart women—that thought Anne, was happiness, or very near it.

Dances With Eaton

Jameson arrived in a day or two. And things settled to a routine. He and Linda played golf in the morning while Eaton worked with Anne. They all lunched together in the grill and had coffee on the terrace. In the afternoon Jameson and Linda usually rode while Eaton took Anne driving in a comic little carriage through winding roads.

On these drives they talked little of business. Anne grew to know Eaton well, and he learned something of her life beyond the office.

When they returned Eaton, with reluctance and laughter, would march Jameson off for their not-very-arduous cures. Linda was not taking the cure that season and she usually walked with Anne or sat and talked to her lazily, or they went to the Japanese room and afterward, dancing.

Jameson danced well and he and Linda were a striking couple. He danced with Anne, too, and Eaton, who "ore he despised dancing, watched, until finally he announced that after all it was only walking to music and took Anne in his arms and made the circuit of the floor with her.

She grew breathless at the proximity, the unexpected sense of being close to him in the permitted embrace of the dance.

"Why do you say you dislike it?—you dance so well," she asked, her lashes lifting with some difficulty. Close in his arms she felt curiously drowsy, drugged, yet dangerously wide awake.

"Do I? But I'm told I don't. It must be you," he murmured, feeling her so light and warm and supple in his clasp, the nearness of the bright hair beneath his bent head . . .

Vacation Benefits Anne

When they stopped Linda applauded. "Larry, you're coming on! Now you'll have to dance with me once. You can't beg off again."

And after that he danced every night with Linda and with Anne. And Anne thought half panicky: I—I oughtn't to dance with him.

She knew that she shook, she knew that her knees were weak, that her heart was light and yet terribly burdened. She was afraid lest she betray to the onlookers this encroaching disturbance. But there was no way out.

She tried to argue that it was absurd. She had danced with so many men, hundreds of miles, she calculated, trying to laugh at herself. And yes, she admitted by some she had been attracted by others not at all. But this emotion had the wine of violence in it.

Anne grew round and rosy and tanned. The air, the appetite she brought to her meals, the nights of deep sleep, the exercise, worried wonders. Eaton told her jokingly yet with a deeper note in his voice:

"If you keep on getting younger you'll lose your job."

"How? Why?"

"I can't have a child in my office, can I?"

Happy? Oh, she was happy, and so was Eaton. He'd not had a real vacation for so long, and this was most pleasant—just enough work and work under such playtime circumstances. Work he admitted, with so delightful a companion.

For she was that. The finest playmate and co-worker a man could imagine. She brought an amazing enthusiasm to everything she did. When he thought of the inevitable ending of this playtime he was instantly rebellious and depressed.

Linda Understands

So two weeks lengthened into three. Linda and Jameson, riding over the beautiful paths deep into the woods, pulled their horses to a walk. Linda struck idly at her boot with her crop.

"I've never seen it so beautiful," she told her companion.

"Linda!"

He'd come closer. Their horses brushed flanks. His hand was on her gloved hand. It had to happen. He no longer could prevent it. But "Linda!" was all he said.

She was pale now, paler than he. She whispered in confession, with pleading: "Oh, Dick, don't—please."

"All right," he told her heavily, "just as you say, but—you know?"

"I know." She looked full at him, the rare tears clouding her brown eyes. "I know, but there's Larry, Dick; there's always Larry—and we can't hurt him, can we?"

There was a wilderness of question in Linda's tone, as if she longed to hear Jameson say, "But we must!"

After a long pause he answered as she had known he would answer. "No, no, we can't."

They rode on, neither speaking, and Jameson thought miserably, "I've got to get away." He was wretched. And yet he was triumphant. After all, she knew and she cared.

He could give her everything in her world—the out-of-door life she loved, the close companionship with it. They would be so happy. "But there's Larry, Dick; there's always Larry."

Anne Puzzled

How much did Eaton care for this lovely wife of his? How much?

So Jameson, pleading an urgent telegram from New York, left on the following day. And Linda knew the terrible dull let-down, the rebellious ache which follows sacrifice and virtue. Easy to commit yourself to do the right thing, easy to make up your mind, but once deep in the doing of it, how terribly hard!

She amused herself as best she could—golfed, played bridge, rode—there were plenty of people to take Jameson's place.

But more could. She was very unhappy.

Anne had not been unobservant. She had watched, without permitting herself much speculation, the frank intimacy between her employer's wife and Richard Jameson. And it had angered her loyalty to Eaton, but it had excited her. It was a weapon in her hands; she was up in arms for her chief.

What on earth could Linda see in this other man? Linda, who was married to Lawrence Eaton!

True, Jameson was attractive in his way, witty and a friendly person. True, he had a great deal of money which he spent well and lavishly. But he was not a worker. He was simply a pleasant idle man of large means. He had thought Anne sexually and thereby wronged him; no real force of intellect. All he thought of was horses and golf and games. Besides, he was old.

He was, as a matter of fact, only 45 and did not look that. But in comparison with Eaton, from Anne's standpoint, he was ancient. Nor was he as good-looking as Eaton, nor as brilliant.

Praises Jameson

She said something of the sort to Eaton.

"You've got Dick all wrong," he contradicted her. "He's a splendid engineer. He inherited a whale of a lot of money when he was 30, and gave up his profession. A pity. But he turned his head to inventing and has been successful at it. He has invented two gadgets that have been adopted by the railroads and which bring him royalties he doesn't need. I understand he's established a research laboratory lately, turns his royalties into it and keeps a number of young men busy."

"But he doesn't really work?"

"No, not in the everyday sense."

He thought, later, how different Anne's attitude was from Linda's. For when Eaton had come into his uncle's money, Linda had urged him to retire.

"We've enough now to live well and you'd retain your interest in the agency," she had said. "But what's the use of slaving your life away for a little more income? It's not worth it. We could have a marvelous time. The only time to enjoy life is while you're young. Why need you wait till you're too old to enjoy things before you give up work?"

"It isn't the money," he told her. "It's the work itself—the building. I can't give it up. I'd go mad with nothing to do."

That was five years ago. Lately she'd made no complaint, had not mentioned the issue again. She had adjusted herself to it, he supposed.

Yet he supposed further, she couldn't understand his entire lack of sympathy with her proposition. Perhaps a woman had to be in business to like being in business, he thought, and that brought Anne back to his mind again. She was never far from it.

Realizes Love for Eaton

The day before they left, at tea in the Casino, Eaton and Linda fell into one of those half-serious, half-joking arguments so common among married people. It was almost the first time that Anne had heard anything approaching intimacy between them. It was thus forced upon her as never before that these two were—man and wife.

She lowered her eyes and set down her cup. Her throat ached suddenly; she was terribly aware of embarrassment and of something else, something hot and painful and angrily insistent . . .

Eaton and Linda had connecting rooms, and from Eaton's the living room opened. Anne's room and bath were off Linda's. After Anne had gone to bed that night she heard a door open, heard Eaton come into his wife's room, and then the low sound of their voices.

Her mind turned blank; her heart shook within her. She pulled at the blankets childishly, huddled down into them, crammed her fingers in her ears. But long afterward when the room next door was quiet, it seemed to her feverish imagination that she could still hear that muted murmuring.

She had to face it then. She was compelled to face it because of the jealousy which tore and racked her. She admitted, finally, the thing she had known so many months, which she had labeled purely physical attraction and which she had actually planned to use to safeguard her business future, was something much deeper; was something which had the power to destroy her.

She knew that she loved Lawrence Eaton with all her heart and soul and quivering body. Knew that she loved him so much that, barefoot and hungry and thirsty, she would follow him to the world's far end and back; so much that she would be desperately unhappy all her life without him.

All that night she lay awake arguing, thinking, feeling, fearing, crying.

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

PRESENTATION OF A gold medal to Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd for his Antarctic exploit, a description of the Yale-Harvard boat race on the Thames River at New London, Conn., and a direct report of the British open golf tournament make this evening's schedule rather colorful.

Byrd

WCAE will have the Byrd broadcast at 9:30. The boat race will be relayed by KDKA at 7:30 and the golf tournament will come to Pittsburgh direct from London through WCAE at 6:45.

RESUME SACRED SONGS

Sacred Songs will be resumed the first week in July, it was learned today. Sacred Songs has been KDKA's most popular feature for four years. The concerts will be broadcast Tuesday nights at 7:30.

SHARKEY UNLIKELY TO GET NEW BOUT

THE OFFER MADE by Manager Johnny Buckley on behalf of Jack Sharkey for a return match with Max Schmeling was prompted, no doubt, by a realization of the fact that the former sailor is in bad with the entire fight world as a result of what happened in last week's title fight, and is clearly a play to put Sharkey back in the good graces of the public, if it may be said that he ever before enjoyed such a standing.

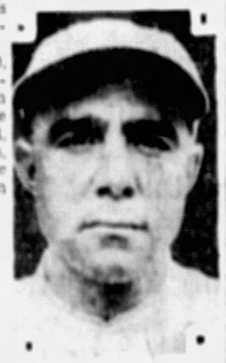
Johnny Buckley

Unless some favor can be won in that direction the one-time gob's career is as good as over as far as any more bouts involving six-figure remuneration are concerned, so it's easy guessing that the proposals are made for the future financial welfare of Sharkey & Co., rather than from any noble desire to right a pugilistic wrong or to do something for the good of the game or for any other interest that might be affected. Buckley evidently sees that it's case in which Sharkey will have to close up shop for keeps unless he can put over some stroke immediately that will change popular opinion.

BUCKLEY'S PROPOSAL isn't likely to lead to anything, however. In the first place Schmeling has announced that he plans a return to Germany and will not fight again this year, and in the second place it will be hard to convince the promoters that the public would be sufficiently interested in another appearance of Sharkey in a title match as to patronize such a show in paying numbers. So he is safe in making a generous offer for a fight that he cannot get. At that, Buckley's offer isn't as liberal as he would have Fandom believe. He is making no concession in offering to meet Schmeling for 12½ per cent, as that is the pay which the rules of New York commission fixes for the challenger in a title match, the champion receiving 37½ per cent.

As the sailor contends he could not help committing the foul of which he was guilty in the first bout, what good is his proffered guarantee that he won't do the same thing if given another match? Also his offer to make financial sacrifices and forfeits would have been much more sportsmanlike and popular if he had made them in connection with last week's show when they would have helped a worthy charitable cause, and when he was paid for 11 rounds that he didn't fight. He and Schmeling differed from Paulino, who, after a similar previous show, took $1,000 out of his earnings and contributed it to the milk fund.

REPORTS OF THE feat of Al Simmons, Jimmy Foxx and Bing Miller, Mackian sluggers, in making successive home runs against Cleveland on Wednesday, stated that this was only the third time it had been accomplished.



Bing Miller

The record was established on June 30, 1902, when Napoleon Lajoie, Charley Hickman and Bill Bradley hit three homers in a row for Cleveland. It was said that the hitting of successive homers by Bob Meusel, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, of the Yankees, on September 10, 1925, marked the only time prior to Thursday that this had been equaled.

THE DOPESTERS HAVE overlooked two similar performances. Ruth, Gehrig and Meusel did the trick twice, as on May 4, last year, they duplicated their achievement of 1925. And on May 2, 1922, Clarence Walker, Cy Perkins and Bing Miller, of the A's, clouted consecutive round-trippers against Pitcher George Mogridge. That gives Miller the distinction also held by Ruth, Meusel and Gehrig of having figured twice in the knocking of three successive home runs. It has never been done in the National League. The Pirates set a major league record that still stands when they made four home runs in one inning, two by Jake Stenzel and one each by Denny Lyons and Louie Bierbauer, on June 6, 1894, in Boston, but the hits were not made in succession.

THE FLIGHT OF the Robins was slowed up in their first game of the Western trip at Cincinnati yesterday, but there will be no evidence of a real check unless they are beaten again today, as they have not been defeated twice in succession in their last 34 games.

As the Cubs were winning in Boston meanwhile, the loss of yesterday's bout cut Brooklyn's lead to two and a half games. It was only the second defeat of the season for Adolfe Luque. Both of his reverses were administered by his former Cincinnati teammates.

IT TAKES A long while for some pitchers to become settled in the big leagues and to attain the peak of effectiveness. There's Milton Gaston, of the Red Sox, for example. This is his seventh season in the big show, and he has been shifted from one club to another until he has seen service in four American League cities, yet he has just come into his own at the age of 30.

Milton Gaston

Wildness and a disposition to coast through easy stages of a game instead of bearing down all the time combined to hold Gaston back in previous seasons. That's why he was transferred from the Yankees to the Browns, to the Senators and finally to the Red Sox. But he has overcome those faults and right now he has few equals among the right-hand pitchers in the American League. He seems certain to be right up among the leading hurlers in the earned-run records.

CONNIE MACK points to the case of Gaston as showing what may be accomplished when a pitcher refrains from letting down. "Look around in either league and you'll find that the pitchers winning oftenest are those who are giving everything they have," said Mack. "A pitcher nowadays has to bear down every moment. He simply can't become a great pitcher any other way. There's no such thing as easing up and winning any more. Any pitcher who thinks he can win without hard work is only kidding himself and cheating his club. The difference that bearing down all the way can make in a pitcher is to be seen in the case of Gaston. He never used to be what you'd call a star. He always had the ability, but he wouldn't use it. Now he's found out that the way to pitch is to give everything he has. And today there isn't a better right-hander in the American League."

MANY A BALL PLAYER would be overjoyed at finding himself transferred from a second-division club to a team practically certain to finish in the money and with perhaps a fighting chance for the pennant, but Art Shires doesn't take that view of his shift from the White Sox to the Senators.

Shires says that if the trade had been made last year, when he was having trouble with Lena Blackburne, then White Sox manager, he probably would have turned a few handsprings, but that, coming at this time, it doesn't give him any great pleasure. The reason, he adds, is that he likes Donie Bush, considers him the smartest manager he ever worked under, and regrets that he can't stay with the Sox to show Donie that he is a better ball player than he has looked to be so far this season.

laurels of the United States' entrants by sharing fourth position with 297, and Don Moe trailed with 303. F. C. Stevens, Jr., Los Angeles amateur, dropped out after the third round.

BRITON IN SLUMP

Compston went from the sublime to the ridiculous in his last day's play. He broke the course record in the third round with a 68 and then fell away to 82 in the fourth for a 72-hole score of 297.

Jones' win today brought the British open title to the United States for the seventh consecutive year. Great Britain having retained the cup only once since the World War.

Jones at present holds three major championships—the British open and amateur titles, and the U. S. open championship.

LAST ROUND WEAK

Bobby's final round was not a brilliant Jones performance. His 75 was the highest number of strokes he had carded in the tournament, and the gallery which had expected the Atlantan to do at least one phenomenal round were doomed to disappointment. The most sensational round Jones had was the first, when he shot a 70 to tie MacDonald Smith and Henry Cotton, the latter of England, for the then course record.

This record, however, was blasted to bits today when Compston shot the first of his two rounds today in a brilliant 68 and established a lead of one stroke over Jones.

British hopes to retain the championship, which had been far down in the bottle, suddenly soared on the wings of Compston's achievement. A tremendous gallery followed the Britisher to the tee this afternoon, not expectant, perhaps, but certainly hopeful. They gave Archie a tremendous cheer, and Compston himself joined in the cheering in the hope of a British victory.

BRITISH HOPES DIE

These hopes and the cheers died a-borning, however, when Compston proceeded to stud his outgoing card with fat 5s and one 6, for a total of 43 to the turn. In so doing he had dropped the precarious lead of one stroke which he had over Jones at the start of the round, and found himself trailing the Atlantan by a prodigious four strokes. He was not only unable to overcome this lead on the homeward course, but dropped two more strokes to Jones, Compston taking 39 to come in, against Jones, 37.

Needing an eagle 2 on the 394-yard home hole to tie Jones, Diegel smashed a 250-yard drive down the fairway and then sent a marker on to the pin to gamble on the possibility of holing out with his second. He took an iron, and sent it to the edge of the green. As the ball stopped rolling, 12 yards from the flag, Diegel's chance of catching the Atlantan vanished. He ran a yard past with his first putt and holed the second for a 4.

Any other threat that may have remained against Jones at the end of the third round was blown out over the sand dunes bordering the Royal Liverpool course by the boisterous wind which whipped the course in the afternoon.

TWO IN TIE

Long Jim Barnes, who started the final round with a total of 220 strokes, four strokes behind Jones, carded a 77 in the afternoon, for a total of 297 strokes.

Auguste Boyer, of France, tied with Barnes at the conclusion of the morning round at 220 strokes, took an even 80 on the final EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE SACRED TOOTH OF BUDDHA—The Sacred Tooth of Gautama Buddah in the Temple of Kandy, Ceylon, constitutes the palladium of the island. Custody of this sacred relic was the chief attribute of power in a large part of India. When the Portuguese took Ceylon in 1530, the Tooth was ordered seized and destroyed. It was then that the most stupendous offer of ransom in history took place. The Buddhist priests offered the Portuguese bishop his weight in rubies for the surrender of the Tooth. The value of the ransom has been estimated at about £20,000,000, which would be equal to about $1,000,000,000 in purchasing power at the present time. This stupendous offer was refused and the relic destroyed. The "Tooth" which at present is preserved in the Temple is a subsequent substitution by the Buddhist priests. The refusal of this ransom illuminates the intensity of religious feeling at the time. THE OLD FRENCH MARRIAGE LAW—Centuries ago in Europe the use of cosmetics, etc., was regarded with much disfavor. The old French law which was quoted in my drawing has been made effective in England by an Act of Parliament passed in 1770. What is now known as "the art of beautifying" was regarded as an abomination by English of the eighteenth century.

BOWL BATTLES TONIGHT

The thrice-postponed Tony Herrera-Eddie Elkins boxing show is on for tonight at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock. It was booked originally for last Monday night, but postponed on account of rain, postponed again at noon Tuesday and then deferred a third time at the last minute Wednesday night. The show at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night, prevented the Bowl from going through with its show then.

Eddie Elkins.

The preliminary card stands as arranged, with Johnny Willis, of Erie, against Johnny Chiodo, of Johnstown, in the eight-round semi-final; Georgie Bretsch, of the North Side, against Casey Hayes, of Homestead, in the second bout, and Al Iovino, of Swissvale, against Sammy Paris, of the Hill, in the opener.

Central Golf Title, At Stake Today

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. John F. Sevison, of Pittstown, twice winner of the Central Pennsylvania women's golf championship, today will meet Miss Dorothy Mitchell, of the Colonial Club, Harrisburg, for the right to keep the title another year.

In the qualifying round Tuesday, Mrs. Sevison and Miss Mitchell tied for medal honors, each with a score of 95.

Sharkey Gets Kick Out of Films

NEW YORK, June 20.—(INS.)—Making motion pictures is not as exciting as watching them, Jack Sharkey said today after watching the movies of his fight with Max Schmeling.

"Boy, I gave him a boxing lesson, didn't I," he exclaimed excitedly as he watched the rounds flicker by.

Sharkey said if he met the German again he was certain he would knock him out.

STOGIES WIN TWIN BILL

After sloughing about in a prolonged slump, the Wheeling Stogies came out of it with a vim yesterday in the Mid-Atlantic League, taking both ends of a double bill from the Clarksburg Generals, 5 to 3, and 8 to 6.

At Charleroi, the Governors and Jeanette divided a twin bill, Charleroi winning, 4 to 1, and losing, 9 to 5.

Scottdale defeated Fairmont, 8 to 5, at Scottdale, overcoming a three-run lead laid up by the Black Diamonds in the first inning.

Cumberland defeated Johnstown at Cumberland, 4 to 3, the Colts scoring all four runs in the seventh inning.

Explosion Victim Former Floor Star

Harold Ewings, 17-year-old Dormont High School student, who was killed in an explosion yesterday morning, has been prominent in basketball circles for the last couple of years playing on Trinity Cathedral teams. Last season he was a star center on the Trinity Cathedral Royals team of the downtown church.

HARVARD CREWS BEAT YALE

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 20.—(AP.)—Harvard made a clean sweep of the morning part of its annual regatta with Yale, winning the junior varsity event by half a length, after taking the freshman race by three and a half lengths.

The junior varsity brush was a spectacular affair, with the Crimson managing to stave off a great Yale challenge in the last 100 yards.

Harvard set the pace from the start, just as it had in the freshman race, but Yale's eight was always a formidable factor. Half a mile from the finish line the Crimson held a lead of more than a length, but Yale raised its beat to the high 30s and made up half of this distance before the finish line was reached. Harvard, however, was about holding its own in the last few strides.

Harvard's time for the two-mile sprint was 11:07 1-5; Yale's 11:10 3-5.

The Crimson yearlings, unbeaten this year, climaxed their season with a smashing triumph over the Elis, winning without difficulty down the two-mile course.

The Crimson crew raced into the lead at the start, maintained a smooth powerful stroke all the way down the course and won about as it pleased.

Harvard's time for the two miles was 11:02 45, Yale's time 11:17 2-5.

Allison, Mangin In London Final

LONDON, June 20.—(AP.)—Two young American Davis Cup players will meet tomorrow in the final round for the London tennis championships at the Queens Club, Wilbur Allison, youthful Texan, defeated H. Saton, of Japan, 9-7, 7-5, in one semi-final today while Gregory S. Mangin, of Newark, N. J., eliminated W. A. R. Collins, of London, 6-2, 7-5.

PITT AND W. VA. SIGN FOR '31

The University of Pittsburgh and West Virginia University have completed arrangements for a 1931 football game in the Stadium, according to an announcement made today by authorities of both institutions. This year the two teams meet in Morgantown, the game being scheduled for Saturday, October 4.

The Pitt game is the second to be scheduled definitely for the Mountaineers in 1931. West Virginia will meet Oregon State College at Portland, Oregon, on Thanksgiving Day. West Virginia and the Oregon Aggies play at Soldiers Field, Chicago, on Thanksgiving this year.

Carnera Advance Sale Tops $100,000

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(INS.)—An advance sale of more than $100,000 was reported today for the fight in the Phillies' ball park here, next Monday night, that will bring together for 10 rounds George Godfrey, Philadelphia Negro, and Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight.

At the same time it was reported from apparently reliable sources, that Carnera is getting 60 per cent of the receipts, out of which he is paying Godfrey a guarantee of $10,000 to act as his opponent.

WET GROUNDS SPOIL SECOND BATTLE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

The ever colorful Giants, in our midst for what was to have been a four-game series with the sinking Pirates, appear to be about the best ball club in the National League right now. McGraw's new combination, which is showing for the first time in Pittsburgh, simply abounds in class. Here are a few of the reasons:

The best infield in baseball.
The hardest hitting catchers in baseball.
The best left fielder in the National League.
The best all-around defensive club in the league.
One of the speediest teams in baseball.
A great manager.

These are some of the assets that doubtless will discount a mediocre slab staff. And don't be astonished if Walker, Hubbell, Donohue, Genewich and Fitzsimmons are consistent winners while working under the inspiration of the rest of the team.

The second game of their series postponed on account of wet grounds, the Pirates and Giants are set to clash this afternoon in a single contest. Remy Kremer, who was down for the slab job yesterday, will hold the Bucco assignment, while Pete Donohue or Carl Hubbell is due to fling for the invaders.

The Pirate management announced this morning that the canceled contest of yesterday will be played at Forbes Field as a part of a doubleheader on Friday, August 8. The Giants will then be here on their last Western trip.

INFIELD BEST IN GAME

Fandom already has a good measure of the value of McGraw's new infield. The followers of the game soon will appreciate the worth of Jackson and Critz as a keystone combination. Games often are won or lost around second base.

Bob O'Farrell and Francis Hogan give McGraw a punch behind the plate that has no counterpart in the sport.

Fred Leach has developed into the best left fielder in the National League. Moreover, he is a star in the sunfield and he has a great arm. He gave a sample of his skill yesterday.

In Leach, Allen and Ott, McGraw has three ball hawks, all of whom can throw. The youthful Ott has one of the best arms in the game and he is one of the sport's greatest cloisters.

The defense of the team from top to bottom speaks eloquently for itself. Also its speed. The manager not only speaks for himself—he speaks for everybody on the club—and that isn't supposed to be a wise crack.

Before we get too far away from that infield and keystone combination, let it be written that Hughey Critz, in his first performance here as a Broadway favorite, robbed the Pirates of a great victory. His second-base buddie, Jackson, was a part of the larceny, with Leach and Allen being accessories before or after the fact.

Wheeling Releases Infielder, Pitcher

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, June 20.—The Brooklyns keep ahead in the National loop because they've got mostly hot weather pitchers. The Robins are the only club in the league that aren't afraid of those perspiration advertisements. Other guys lose their sweethearts and their jobs because they perspire freely, but those Brooklyn boys don't lose any ball games that way. With the Cincinnati club its different. Dan Howley's pitchers are at their best on cold, rainy days when the games are called off. The American League race will be settled pretty soon now. There is a superstition that the club that is in first place on the Fourth of July wins the pennant so we are saving up for firecrackers to put under Connie Mack's chair.

GLENNA TRAILS AT ALLEGHENY

MRS. LENIHAN TOPS FIELD IN TOURNEY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Showing an unfamiliarty with the course, Miss Glenna Collett, national women's golf champion, trailed in second place among the early finishers in the first 18 holes of the annual 36-hole medal play invitation tournament for women at the Allegheny Country Club today.

Mrs. Edward F. Lenihan, of Cleveland, the former Miss Kathleen Wright, of California, set the pace with an 80. Women's par is 79.

Miss Collett was even with par for the first nine holes, despite a 5 on the par 3 eighth hole, where she was in a trap to the right and overran the green in getting out. Her putting went bad on the return nine, where she had four three-putt holes.

They were the thirteenth, fourteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth. She was one over par on the first two and even with par on the last two. Twenty-five feet away from the pin on her second shot on the home hole she required three putts and thus missed a chance to tie with Mrs. Lenihan for the lead.

Miss Collet's game indicated that she may be expected to improve on her score tomorrow. Par and her card:

Par
Out	4	4	4	4	4	5	4	3	5	37

Miss Collett
Out	4	4	3	4	4	5	4	5	4	37
In	5	5	4	6	6	5	3	5	5	44—81

Birdie 3s on the Nos. 3 and 16 holes were high spots in Miss Collett's round.

Mrs. Lenihan's card:

Out	4	5	3	4	4	5	4	3	6	38
In	4	6	4	5	6	4	4	4	5	42—80

Mrs. J. Bernd Rose, of Allegheny, who played with Miss Collett, scored 43—43—86. Miss Anneannette Hunter, like Mrs. Rose, a former Western Pennsylvania women's champion, scored 44—46—90.

Miss Mary K. Browne, of Cleveland, internationally famous golf and tennis star, had a bad day of it and returned a card of 96, as follows:

Out	6	5	4	5	4	6	5	3	6	44
In	4	5	4	4	6	8	5	6	6	46—90

Miss Fritzi Stifel, of Wheeling, scratched this morning.

Mrs. Harlie G. Higbie, of Detroit, moved into a place among the leaders with an 82. Her card:

Out	4	4	5	4	4	5	6	4	5	40
In	5	5	4	6	5	5	3	3	5	42—82

Miss Louise Fordyce, of Youngstown, and Mrs. F. C. Letts, of Chicago, were among the late starters in the field. The scores:

GLENNA COLLETT

Miss Browne, famous golf and tennis star, and Miss Collett, National champion, were among the many stars who teed off in the annual invitation golf tournament for women at the Allegheny Country Club today. Miss Frittie Stifel, of Youngstown, was another contender of international fame.

TOMMY CRAWLEY 'LOSES'

WATERBURY, Conn., June 20.—Tommy Crawley, of Pittsburgh, set an unbeaten decision to Louis (Kid) Kaplan, former featherweight champion, in a 10-round bout here last night. The crowd booed the verdict out of the referee.

Local Netmen Win In Cleveland Play

CLEVELAND, June 20.—Pittsburgh tennis stars fared exceptionally well here yesterday in the Ohio State men's single and United States inter-city doubles. Byron Baur, Pitt star, defeated Earl Krickbaum, local flash, 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, and paired up with Joe Schmid, former Carnegie Tech netman, to defeat Eddie Burns and Ed Jenkins, of New York, in the doubles.

Sport Vignettes

A reader wants to know if any baseball game ever was played in the big leagues during which the ball never touched the ground at any stage . . . . Now, we don't like to be kidded about our National pastime, and this looks like a roundabout dig at the way the balls never are off the bats these days, but if any reader knows of such a game we'll pass it on . . . . Mike Canavan, boxing commission inspector-clerk, who is enjoying a motor vacation, recently passed through San Francisco and Berkeley, Cal., he post-cards . . . . Dr. Jock Sutherland, Pitt head football coach, postcards from Scotland that he has been enjoying his stay there and got a kick out of following Bobby Jones in the Walker Cup matches at St. Andrews . . . . It may be the humidity around here, but it was dead heat in a hoss race at Aqueduct yesterday . . . . Ward Beam, who is running another auto race at Bridgeville on July 4, tosses one of his 100-milers over the Akron-Cleveland Speedway Sunday . . . . Jack Sharkey's offer to Max Schmeling for a return fight is one of the most big-hearted bids ever made by a loser in an important bout and should go a long way toward re-establishing the prestige of the gob, which has taken a bad kicking about in his last two starts, against Phil Scott and Schmeling . . . . Sharkey can afford to be magnanimous about it, though, for Schmeling probably won't agree to fight him again, anyway, since he, more than anyone else, must realize how lucky he was to escape a knockout defeat in their meeting last week and wind up with the gift of the championship on a silver platter . . . . It develops that the rule of the New York Athletic Commission which makes it mandatory for referees to consult with the judges on fouls reads that in case of doubt a majority vote of the judges and the referee shall be required for a decision . . . . Under this rule, Sharkey clearly could not have been officially declared the loser—but the entire foul rule was suspended at Schmeling's demand . . . . Tony Palazola, Sharkey's trainer, incidentally, takes the blame for thinking up the bright idea of having Jack drape an American flag around his manly form before entering the ring . . . . The Pirates' game with the Giants yesterday was postponed because it was postponed, in case anybody wants to know, and that's all there is to it. Simply because it isn't raining and hasn't been raining for hours is no proof that a game shouldn't be postponed, is it? Or isn't it? . . . . Gene Tunney, a former boxer, is doing a lot of trailing along with the sport for a fellow who has forsaken it forevah and evah . . . . He went to Philadelphia for the Loughran-Schaaf bout, to New York for the Sharkey-Schmeling thing and now he's going back to Phills to see Carnera and Godfrey . . . After he gets a line on all of the heavyweight timber, then what? A comeback? Hmmm-mmm! . . . . You should hear Abie Witz yell all about it how Battling Gizzy beat up Mickey Duris something awful in Johnstown the other night only to get a draw from the goniff officials.—HARRY KECK.

WEST PENN NET PAIRINGS ANNOUNCED

One of the largest brackets of racquet talent ever assembled for a local event was drawn by Tournament Chairman Ed Seitz and his confreres at the Stanton Heights Golf Club last evening for the forty-second annual Western Pennsylvania Tennis Championships slated to get under way tomorrow afternoon on three local net lots — Stanton Heights, Edgewood and the University of Pittsburgh. No less than 128 names were inscribed upon the men's single sheets and it is expected that at least 25 more will be added to the total before the women's singles entries close next Tuesday.

The task of selecting a seeded list from the host of accomplished entrants was most difficult. Ten outstanding competitors were finally chosen. However, Byron Baur, defending champ, heading the array, and Dr. John O'Loughlin, P. A. A. streak and 1928 titleholder, standing second, with Ramsey, Billy O'Loughlin, Paul Hicks, Frank McClintock, Al Bialas, Hammer, McCook, Reed and Ganger following along.

Edwards Defeated By Young Rudy

WASHINGTON, Pa., June 20.—Young Rudy, of Charleroi, won the decision over Freddie Edwards, of Chester, W. Va., in the 10-round main bout here last night. The first four rounds were pretty even, with the Charleroi boxer pulling away in the final six sessions.

TITLE ROUND UNDER WAY

The semi-finals and finals are being played today in the annual invitation golf tournament at the Shannopin Country Club. The semi-finalists who teed off are Sam Parks, Jr., H. H. Pearce, Jimmy Lappan and Fred Weppner.

To reach the semi-finals, Parks defeated the tournament medalist, E. E. Giles, Jr., of the home club, 3 and 2, after having eliminated George McClure, of Chartiers Heights, 2 and 1. Weppner put out Larr Seaman, Uniontown, 3 and 2 and Fred Bray, Highland, 2 and 1.

Lappan eliminated Pat McDonough, of Schenley, 2 and 1 and Johnny Harper, one up. Pearce eliminated Fred Pannerot, 2 and 1 and George Stanger, of Highland, 4 and 2.

J. Leslie Hart, of New York, captain of the Colgate varsity golf team, scored a hole in one in the fifth flight consolation round when he dropped his mashie shot into No. 14, a 163-yard shot.

Playing in a foursome with Skip O'Neil, Joe Platt and Dick Wessel, Bob Graham, star Schenley golfer established a new amateur record for the public links course when he shot a fine 29-31—60 yesterday.

LONGUE VUE WINS

Although defeated by a 13 to 4 count by Westmoreland in yesterday's play, the Longue Vue team of the W. G. A. Team League, Section II, won the section title by a margin of two points. Westmoreland was second, Alcoma third, Country Club fourth, St. Clair fifth and South Hills sixth.

In yesterday's matches, Westmoreland defeated Longue Vue, Country Club and Alcoma tied, 9-9, and St. Clair walloped South Hills, 18 to 0.

J. S. Irwin and June Miller captured the big two-ball mixed foursome invitation tournament at the Edgewood Country Club yesterday, turning in a net 77. They had a gross 90 and a handicap of 13. More than 200 players, including some of the foremost stars of the district, competed.

RISKO VICTOR OVER BASQUE

DETROIT, June 20.—(AP.)—Johnny Risko, Cleveland baker boy, outpointed Paulino Uzcudun, heavyweight from the Basque country of Spain, in a 10-round bout here last night. Risko weighed 199¾; Paulino 195½.

It was Risko's second decision victory over Paulino but, unlike the first meeting three years ago, there was no doubt of the accuracy of Referee Al Day's verdict.

YANKS SECURE COAST STAR

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP.)—After several contradictory announcements, it finally has been settled that Meryl Hoag, star outfielder of the Sacramento Pacific Coast League club, will come to the New York Yankees. Definite word of the acquisition of Hoag was announced by the Yankees yesterday.

A'S DOWN TRIBE, YANKS WIN OVER TIGERS

ROBINS LOSE TO REDS AS CUBS GAIN

It is a matter of indisputable record that the Philadelphia Athletics are current champions of the baseball world, and their games of the past few days go a long way toward explaining why they hold that position.

The Athletics were in a bad spot for a while. Crippled by a series of injuries, they saw the Cleveland Indians take first place away from them and lose it again before the onslaught of the New York Yankees. They came home from a disastrous trip out West faced by the double threat from these teams. With Washington not far in the background and with a five-game series with Cleveland to start their home stay.

A'S WIN AGAIN

The chaps got began to display their championship caliber right there. They defeated the Indians 7 to 2 Wednesday and repeated the dose yesterday by a 4 to 2 count, sending Cleveland down into fourth place by the two defeats.

The Yankees' threat would not be shaken, although the New Yorkers had to bring in Babe Ruth's famous home run act to defeat the Detroit Tigers 5 to 4. After fanning in three attempts the Babe clouted his 22nd homer of the year in the seventh inning and provided the margin of victory.

Washington, holding its tie in games with the Yankees for second place, found its newly acquired players a great help in scoring a 3 to 1 victory over the Chicago White Sox. Al Crowder, formerly of St. Louis helm, the Sox to four hits. Another ex-Brown hit twice in three attempts while the great Shiers gave his old mates a taste of his baffling greatness by hitting three times in four trips to the plate.

Danny MacFayden was the one star in the fourth American League game. He held the Browns to three hits while Boston won its fourth straight game, 4 to 1.

CUBS GAIN GROUND

Only two National League contests escaped the weather in the West and the result of that pair was to bring the Chicago Cubs a game closer to the Brooklyn Robins, the league's floundering leaders. The Cubs opened a home run assault on Socks Seibold in the first three innings and scored all their runs for a 10 to 4 triumph. Hack Wilson hit his nineteenth four-bagger, tying Chuck Klein for league leadership, while Woody English and Kiki Cuyler also hit homers in those three big frames.

The Robins failed to offer much support to Adolfo Luque and the Cuban veteran was ousted from his post as pitching leader of the league with a 5-0 defeat at the hands of the cellar-occupying Cincinnati Reds. Brooklyn could get only seven hits off Ray Kolp.

HOUND PAYS LONG PRICE

Skipping under the wire ahead of the pack in the eighth race at the New Kensington greyhound races last night, Distant Cousin paid off at the rate of $16.20 for a $2 ticket for the best price of the program. Apollo Night will be celebrated at the track tonight.

At Bridgeville last night Mabel's Paddy won the Central Cafe Cup feature race on the program. It was the second victory of the meeting for Mabel's Paddy.

thing on their minds besides the gridiron game is shown again by the return of Mike Getto to the University of Pittsburgh.

In striking contrast to Red Grange, Red Cagle and a few others who made haste to throw down their books as soon as their playing careers ended, Getto has come back for additional studies.

THE FORMER CRACK lineman of the Panthers has returned to Pitt for a session of summer school, showing a laudable determination to add something to his education between football seasons. Getto is now assistant grid coach at the University of Kansas. He says he is delighted with his job and his associations, and the Kansans appear to be equally delighted with Mike, as it is understood he has just been voted a substantial boost in salary. During his post-graduate studies at Pitt, incidentally, Getto will have a chance to pick up some additional coaching knowledge from his old mentor, Jock Sutherland.

PRINCETON'S 150-POUND CREW

Including among the members of the 150-pound crew of Princeton University, which now is on the high seas bound for England to compete in the Henley regatta on the Thames River, July 2 is a Sewickley youth, Charles H. Moore. Moore, the No. 6 man in the Tiger boat, is indicated by the arrow and also shown in the inset. The Princeton crew recently won the Joseph Wright challenge cup in the American Henley at Philadelphia and is the first eight of that university ever to compete abroad.

PANKA KNOCKS OUT GROVES IN THIRD

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor

Tiny Groves, Detroit heavyweight formerly of Natrona, said upon his arrival here to fight George Panka, of Homestead, in the main bout of 10 rounds at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night, that he only hoped Panka would make a fight of it. Well, Panka did, but, sad to relate, Groves didn't.

One of the best turnouts the new arena has had saw Panka, the fighting bricklayer, swarm all over Groves from the opening gong until Referee Al Grayber finally called a halt to the thing in the third round after Groves had been down for counts of nine and seven in the second round and two counts of nine in the third. The bell prevented a knockout in the second round and Groves, who was chucking it then, had to go through the motions of "taking it" some more in the third.

ONE-SIDED BOUT

Panka, at 192¾ pounds, outweighed his opponent by 10¾ pounds, and, from his opening rush and pounding of the body, it wasn't a contest. Groves claimed a record of 15 knockouts in 20 battles and a string of army conquests besides. He looked like a crude novice against the rising young Slovak, who had him groggy and crimson from body welts and head bruises before the first round was over. Groves was only too willing to go down for each of the four long counts and made a bluff at being peeved when the referee humanely stopped the slaughter. The crowd, as well as Tiny, had had enough.

GALLAGHER VICTOR

Peaches Gallagher, of Swissvale, 129¾ pounds, fighting below his usual standard, was able to nose out U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, 132¾, in the eight-round semi-final. Mose Butch, of Oakland, 121¾, slugged Johnny Haggerty, of Lawrenceville, 126¾, around for six rounds in the second bout, and Al Becker, of Shreaden, 157¼, making his professional debut, walloped his way to a victory over Billy Brent, Negro, of the Hill, 153, in the six-round opener. Becker tired midway in his fight and was in trouble, but regained his stride to win handily.

Al Grayber and Jack Henderson alternated as referees. Joe Krailly and Lou Meininger were the judges and Harry Klaas did the announcing. Dr. M. R. Goldman was the commission physician at the ringside.

Between Rounds

Jimmy Belmont and Mickey Solomon have been matched for the main bout at Junction Park, New Brighton, next Thursday night. Nick Puta meets Eddie Jacobs, Bobby Bedford fights Tiger Joe Clark and Lou Ambers battles Boo Hardy in preliminaries.

The Meyers Bowl is working on a Buck McTiernan-Sam Boyer fight for July 7, to take the place of a re-opener now of Tony Abruzzo to meet after he eight o'clock show.

Plans to put through a White Davies-Midget Wagner bout for the world flyweight title at the Meyers Bowl this month have gone away, but the manager must take some steps of making the match for the early part of September.

Jimmy Belmont likely will be one of the principals in the eight-round semi-final to the Meyers Bowl next Monday night. Young Nihan and Johnny Werner will box the second bout and I. S. Tar pender and Joey Angelo the opener.

Two Women Stars Out of Singles

WIMBLEDON, England, June 20.—(AP.)—Two women tennis stars, Senorita De Alvarez, of Spain, and Mrs. Holcroft Watson, Great Britain's ranking No. 1 player, have decided not to compete in the singles championships starting at Wimbledon next week.

Mrs. Watson, suffering from throat trouble, has been advised by physicians not to enter the singles, but will team with Mrs. Godfrey in the doubles. Senorita De Alvarez has been troubled for some time with swollen tendons, but hopes to be well enough to play as Jean Borotra's partner in the mixed doubles.

ALL-AMERICA TRACK TEAM NEW PLAN

The selection of an all-America track team appearing in this newspaper next Sunday, not only will prove an innovation, but a very practical and permanent addition to the list of annual events in the world of college athletics.

For a great many years the heroes of college football have been glorified and a place on the all-America team has been the goal of every gridiron star. Babe Ruth has selected an all-America baseball team from the two major leagues for the past 10 years, but in track and field, despite the heroic efforts and record-smashing achievements of such great luminaries as Ralph Rose, Ted Meredith, Fred Kelly, Johnny Hayes, Charley Paddock and the galaxy of modern day stars, the performances of the athletes have gone unsung so far as all-America honors are concerned.

ROCKNE'S PLAN

Knute Rockne, heading the newly organized All-America Board of Track and Field, hopes to place the college track stars on a pedestal alongside the gridiron heroes.

Rockne is best known as a coach of champion football teams, but since his student days he has been active and important in all departments of college sport. For this reason and because of his personal fame he was considered the logical man to be chairman of the All-America Board of Track and Field, which is composed of 25 leading track coaches representing colleges in all parts of the United States. Committee membership is as follows:

TO RECEIVE DIPLOMAS

In selecting the All-America team, the board will recognize the 15 standard events in addition to selecting the All-America one-mile relay team. Handsomely engraved diplomas are to be presented the 15 athletes named.

With an explanatory story by the chairman, Knute Rockne, the team will appear exclusively in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Sunday. Watch for it.

OAKMONT BOYS QUALIFY

Caddies at the Oakmont Country Club this morning qualified for the annual William Randolph Hearst junior golf tournament to be staged over the Schenley Park course on July 7, eight boys from the Hulton club making the grade. Floyd Mann, June Wedmore, Joseph Yuksta, Charles Kush will form the Oakmont team, while Thomas Lake, Thomas Cardon, Fred Caves and Bill McLaughlin will compete individually. The scores of the qualifiers follow:

Floyd Mann 16 42, June Wedmore 17 46, Joseph Yuksta 15 46, Charles Kush 16 46, Thomas Cardon 16 46, Fred Caves 15 46, Bill McLaughlin 48. Those who failed to qualify in the nine-hole test follow:

Byron Harman 49, Frank Bonaratti 50, Fritz Cameron 50, Paul Hutter 50, Joe Tumatorilla 52, Joe Kubala 53, Sam Curti 54, Frank Maranto 54, Dave Milligan 55, John Grunse 55, Salvero Maculuso 56, Guildo Tonsini 56, Mike Palmiri 56, Whitey Trafford 59, Slim McManamy 59, Sam Mattaco, no card.

Caddie-master Paul E. (Toots) Erath, of the Edgewood Country Club, has set Thursday morning of next week for the preliminary test for his caddies.

The junior golf tournament is open to all amateurs 19 years of age and under not attending institutions of learning above preparatory school grades, which includes caddies 17 years of age and under. A high and preparatory school and club caddie team competition will be held in conjunction with it.

PARK TOURNEY AIDS NETMEN

The ever-increasing importance of public parks tennis is attested by the keen interest taken in the municipal branch of the sport of late by the United States Lawn Tennis Association, which realizes that if the Davis Cup is to be returned from France to the United States and kept here, recruits for Uncle Sam's net army must be drawn from every possible quarter and particularly from the vast multitude of youngsters who are unable to obtain the advantages of club play and must learn the game upon the public courts of the nation's parks.

It is the aim of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association to assist in the quest for future championship material by making of the revival of the Pittsburgh public parks tournament a strong and well-conducted event. Final arrangements are now under consideration for the complicated task of handling expeditiously the scores of contestants who will compete for the municipal men's and women's singles crowns in six Pittsburgh parks the week of July 14.

WEISS BEATS M'CARTHY

VETERAN SHOT LEADS FIELD

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 20.—(AP.)—Steve M. Crothers, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, led a field of 180 trapshooters at the end of the first 200 targets of the 500-Target State Championship Match of the Pennsylvania State Sportsmen's Association here yesterday. The former champion and perennial title contender shattered 184 consecutive targets, missed only the one hundred eighty-fifth and turned in a card of 199.

Walter Beaver, of Berwyn, was a close second with 198, while three other amateurs were tied with 197. They are John Riggs, of Conshohocken; P. A. Duke, of Bradford, and L. B. Worden, of Harrisburg.

Crothers finished the morning round of 100 with a perfect score, while Beaver emerged from the afternoon events with a card of 100. The Berwyn man missed one target each in the first and last of the four 25-target morning events.

H. M. Jones, of Homestead, Pa., scored a 192. V. L. Foster, of McKeesport, had a score of 195, and Paul Hornik, of Johnstown, a 194.

Buchman Named Pitt Track Manager

MUNICH, June 20.—(AP.)—The German-American invading soccer team was defeated yesterday, Munichen 1860, losing, 4 to 1, after being tied at 1-all at the half time.

TRADERS MAY STOP FINTEX

By TOM BIRKS

Soho Board of Trade and Fintex will be battling for the leadership of the Central League this evening when the teams clash in the feature game of the sandlot program at Moultrie Park.

Fintex is touted by many as likely to cop the bunting in the hectic race with Allegheny Collegians. Lincoln Civics and Soho but the Pickels aggregation will have to hurdle the Traders this evening to keep in the lead.

Reliance Life, with the old strangle hold on the leadership of the Commercial and Industrial League, will clash with Carnegie Steel this evening at Carrick Park.

The Steelers are due to flash a good game, and there is every reason to feel that in keeping with the upsets that have been recorded of late, what the Insurance boys may take the count.

Pleasant Valley, under the leadership of Johnny Dunsky, is fighting hard to creep up in the race for the City title. This evening the Smilers are due to clash with the Jimmy Smith club. The game will be played at Wilson Avenue.

St. Johns hooks up with Mike Jedinak's fence busting W. O. W. team. The game, at Woodman Field will be called at 6:30. North Side Civics and Stowe will tangle at Stowe Field.

SHOEMEN LOSE

The J. L. Thomas nine turned in a decisive 13-3 victory over Book Shoe in a City League fracas last evening. North Side Civics won over the Jimmy Smiths, 2 to 1.

In the West Penn circuit, Homewood defeated Wilmerding, 1 to 0; Verona downed Whitaker, 12 to 4, and Homestead Acres upset Universal 4 to 3.

Reliance Life socked the Dan Heeps, 10 to 2, in the Greater Pittsburgh circuit. Presbyterians defeated the Methodists, 6 to 3, in the Crafton-Ingram Church League.

In the Philadelphia Company League, Equitable Gas won over the Pittsburgh Railway nine, 10 to 6. The North Siders walloped Fineview, 11 to 4, in the North Side loop.

The Charleroi Robins defeated Fairhope 5 to 1 in a Monongahela Valley League game. McIlvain fanned eight and held the losers scoreless until the ninth inning.

Eddie Jacobs Loses In Delaware Tourney

WILMINGTON, Del., June 20.—(AP.)—Two New England girls, Miss Marjorie Morrill, Dedham, Mass., and Miss Dorothy Andrus, Stamford, Conn., will meet today in the final round of the Delaware state turf court tennis tournament of the women's singles championship.

In the men's division, Fritz Mercur, Bethlehem, Pa., Frank Shields, New York, Dolf Muehleisen, University of California, and J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., advanced to the semi-final round.

Shields defeated Bruce Barnes, University of Texas, 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, in the quarter finals. Mercur defeated Scott Rexinger, University of Chicago, 6-2, 6-1. Hall eliminated Eddie Jacobs, University of Pittsburgh, 6-4, 6-4, and Muehleisen beat R. W. Ryan, 6-1, 6-3.

Trenaman Stops Reese in First

"Well," he said, "I have the satisfaction of being the first to knock strokes from the Hoylake record of 301, which won for Walter Hagen."

Diegel smiled all the way through the last few holes and grinned cheerfully as he walked off the home green with a brawny policeman beside him thrusting the crowd aside.

"There are too many bunkers on that course for me," he said. "What riled me is being bunkered off that tee shot on the sixteenth, the best shot I hit all day. I'd liked to have won, but I hope to have better luck next time. I come nearer every year, anyway."

Diegel finished third in the British open last year.

White Sox Unable To Get Mulleavy

CHICAGO, June 20.—(AP.)—Young Gregory Mulleavy, Toledo American Association shortstop, would be wearing a Chicago White Sox uniform if the Toledo management could be induced to part with him.

The Sox hold an option on Mulleavy whose fielding has been brilliant and whose hitting average has hovered around .340, but cannot exercise it until later in the season. The Toledo club today was tied for third place, one game behind second position, and the Mud Hen management is loathe to let Mulleavy go, even though the Sox could use a good shortstop.

Reassuring Facts About Conditions

By B. C. FORBES

JOHN J. O'BRIEN president of the far-flung Standard Gas and Electric Company tells this column:

"Reports reaching us from our managers in various parts of the country indicate a recent improvement in general business conditions, and it is our belief that this trend will continue gradually upwards during the remainder of the year.

"While the output and earnings of the electric and gas industries have not gained as rapidly as last year, I believe that combined figures for the first five months of the year will show an increase over the similar period of 1929. At least this is true of the utility properties making up Standard Gas and Electric Company.

"The Standard Electric properties are showing marked increases in the sale of electric energy for domestic and commercial purposes. With some companies the gain in the residential use of electricity per meter this year has exceeded past records. Sales of household appliances are considerably above the first part of last year.

"Our construction program, aggregating some $65,000,000, is going forward on schedule and there is no disposition to curtail extensions to meet public demands."

Reassuring facts, are they not, in these days when a lot of people have contracted a bad case of nerves?

"Use of electricity has come to be accepted as an excellent business barometer. According to the power output in this country in recent months, business is gradually coming back to normal, although there are sections of the country which show severe declines. What I gain from an analysis of electric sales, however, is not discouraging. In view of what we encountered last fall, it is rather, the reverse.

"Sales of electricity for industrial power and for railways and traction lines have fallen off heavily since last October. On the other hand, sales to homes, offices, stores, factories, hotels, have maintained approximately their normal rate of increases. This apparently shows that people are going about their affairs as usual, that they have money to spend and are spending it.

"Analyzed by sections, electric sales have shown heaviest decrease in the Mountain and Great Lakes states, the southeast and New England. In the Middle Atlantic, Northwest, Pacific coast states, they are about normal.

"The electric utilities are showing their confidence in the basic soundness of America by spending $900,000,000 this year for new construction, to provide increased electric service for future years."

PRESIDENT Frederick P. Small, of the American Express Company, remarked to me:

"No, I haven't succumbed to the tidal wave of pessimism, but, on the contrary, I am quite hopeful that business will be picking up very shortly."

HYSTERIA is confined mainly to those who had been giving more attention to stock speculation than to their own business.

Nobody pretends that conditions are such as to cause throwing hats in the air. On the other hand, most thoughtful men of affairs feel tolerably certain that the severe downswing in commodity prices and in the prices of almost everything else must have spent its force and that the turning-point must be near.

EVEN Wall Street yesterday switched from selling to buying stocks. Much of what was lost the previous day was regained and the market closed in cheerful mood.

Rubber Exchange Extends Holiday

NEW YORK, June 20.—The board of governors of the Rubber Exchange of New York has ordered that Saturday, July 5, as well as July 4, be declared an exchange holiday.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, June 20.—Wheat was dull to 1/4 lower, opened 1/4 to 1/2 higher, and at 2:15 p. m. was 1/2 to 3/4 lower. Close 1/4 to 1/2 penny lower.

GLASS STOCK OFF LIST

Judge Elder W. Marshall today in Common Pleas Court signed an order that will terminate stock trading in shares of the Standard Plate Glass Company on the New York Stock Exchange.

The company is in the hands of receivers.

The order authorizes the receivers to terminate the employment of the Fidelity Title and Trust Company of Pittsburgh and the New York Trust Company of New York, as transfer agents, and the Bank of Pitsburgh, N. A. and the Chase National Bank of New York, as registrars of the stock.

This will automatically stop trading in the shares.

Sugar Market.

Refined sugar was steady at 4.60@4.70 for fine granulated. Withdrawals on old contracts continued of liberal proportions, but no new business was reported.

HOW'S BUSINESS?

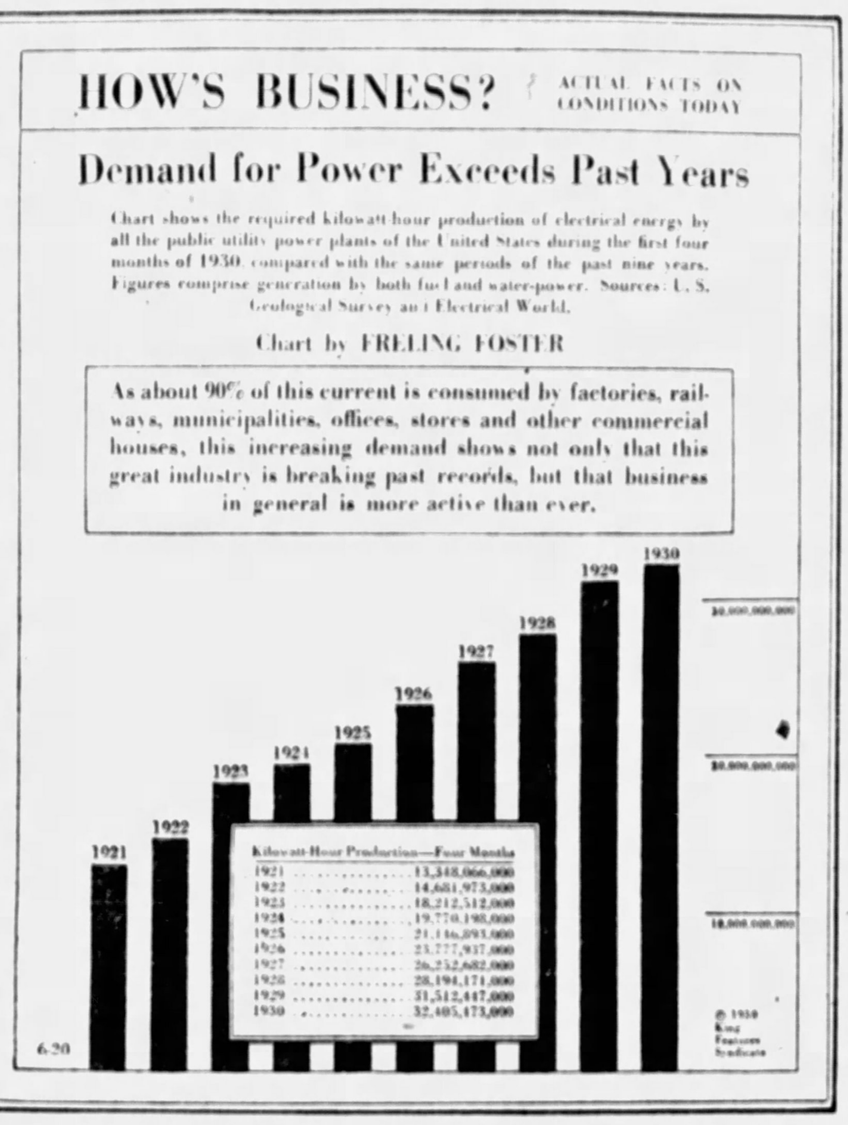
ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

Demand for Power Exceeds Past Years

Chart shows the required kilowatt-hour production of electrical energy by all the public utility power plants of the United States during the first four months of 1930, compared with the same periods of the past nine years. Figures comprise generation by both fuel and water-power. Sources: U. S. Geological Survey and Electrical World.

Chart by FRELING FOSTER

As about 90% of this current is consumed by factories, railways, municipalities, offices, stores and other commercial houses, this increasing demand shows not only that this great industry is breaking past records, but that business in general is more active than ever.



NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 20.—A wide list of railroad bonds advanced sharply today as the market for fixed income bearing securities responded to the low level of money rates.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Fluctuate — Local Stocks Decline

FRESH SELLING ERASES EARLY STOCK GAINS

Support Appears Shortly After Noon Following Rapid Drop in Prices

NEW YORK, June 20 (AP).—The swift upturn in share prices proved too good to be true and was largely wiped out in a new selling wave in today's market. The violence of the rebound yesterday only attracted renewed bear selling, which was unable opposed traders s their holdings.

The rec cent in the New York reserve bill rate immediately enlivened the demand for pledged bonds but had only a passing influence on stocks. The stock market opened with another abrupt upturn, perhaps more in response to the $211,000,000 cut in brokers' loans than to the other late day rally. gains were soon cancelled and prices dropped swiftly under aggressive se ing around midday. Soon after 11 o'clock, however, trading slackened and support appeared.

There was a growing feeling in brokerage circles that prices would be unlikely to go much lower at least would rule on the whole break through the levels of November 13 but commission house advices st remained cautious and their was no inclination to predict a rising market. Reassuring was the action of one large wire house in reducing its marginal requirements to approximately 25 per cent of market value.

Furthermore it was asserted that some investment trusts were fairly active buying stocks.

Wall street did not see how the lower rediscount rate would have much immediate influence as banks are largely out of debt and do not feel the need of borrowing at the Federal Reserve, but it was on the whole favorably regarded in its longer term implications. Call money held officially at 2½ per cent and short term time money was reduced to 2 to 4. It was rumored that the Federal Reserve had reduced its buying rate for shorter term acceptances to 2 per cent. The Reichsbank cut its discount rate from 4½ to 4 per cent.

SOME ERRATIC

Some of the high-priced stocks fluctuated erratically. Case moved up 7 points in the early trading, dropped 20 from the top, then rallied. Important shares generally gained 1 to 4 points at the opening, lost their gains and sold off 1 to 7, then rallied a point or two from the bottom.

Such shares as Consolidated Gas, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, Eastman Kodak, Coca Cola, Byers, Western Union, Johns Manville, Loews, Standard Gas and Bethlehem Steel lost 3 to 7 points around noonday. United States Steel sold off more than 5, then rallied substantially.

COPPER MARKET STEADIER

NEW YORK, June 20.—Copper buying was in good volume yesterday afternoon on domestic account and foreign sales of copper exporters and independent American producers sold abroad Thursday 10,500,000 lbs. of copper. In the forenoon today copper exporters sold 4,250,000 lbs. for export, but the domestic buying was quieter. Producers sold a fair tonnage Thursday in the domestic market.

That copper was breaking a buyer below 12 cents two days ago is apparent but this metal is out of the way and all the custom smelters as well as the producers are at 12 cents delivered. Demand is mainly for September metal.

Output of Plate Glass Up in May

Production of polished plate glass for the month of May 1930 was 12,871,414 square feet as compared with 11,429,728 square feet produced in the preceding month, and 12,781,975 square feet produced in May 1929 according to Plate Glass Manufacturers of America.

Plate Glass Plans $1,0000,000 Expansion

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company will spend $1,000,000 on an addition to the company's plant at Milwaukee. Work will start shortly.

The company also contemplates a large project at Monroe, Mich.

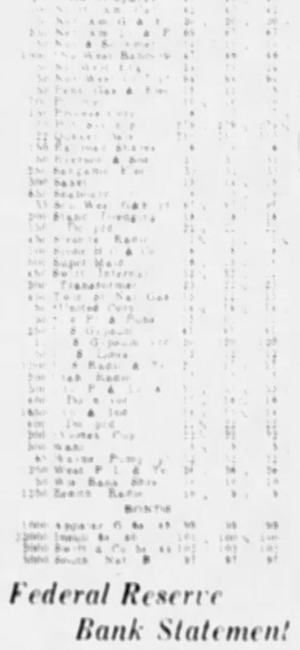
Federal Reserve Bank Statement

WASHINGTON, June 20 (AP).—Combined resources of the 12 Federal Reserve Banks at the close of Wednesday business were reported last night by the Federal Reserve board as follows:



Cleveland Reserve Bank Statement

CLEVELAND, June 20.—Following is the statement of the condition of the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland at the close of business Wednesday:

WALL STREET HEARS

That several investment trusts are now replacing lines of stocks sold out at higher levels although the head of at least one large trust experts prices to go lower.

That the Department of Commerce's current figures show that business is only about 8 per cent below normal as against 20 per cent below in the 1921-2 depression.

That important stock traders are still watching the commodity markets for clues to the possible trend in stocks.

Rubber Market.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Rubber futures opened steady. July 6.10, September 6.13, December 6.18, January 6.22, March 6.26, May 6.30. Spot smoked ribbed 11½.

National Fireproofing Operates at 80%

By GEORGE H SNYDER

THE NATIONAL FIREPROOFING CORPORATION is operating its plants at 80 per cent of capacity. In spite of a generally unsatisfactory rate of building operations the company has been able to maintain its sales in a large volume.

Improvement was shown recently in Chicago which has been one of the least satisfactory territories. A plant in that locality which has been idle most of this year is resuming production.

Orders now on the books and business in prospect indicate that production will continue at the present rate at least until September 1.

Makes Tile Products

THE COMPANY PRODUCES a complete line of hollow fireproof building tile, underground conduits, silo tile and other special clay products. It operates 22 plants located in Massachusettes, New Jersey, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Close to these plants the company has clay deposits to provide a supply of raw material for at least 60 years of operations. The annual production of clay products is over 1,000,000 tons a year.

Exceptionally good reception has been given to new building tile products recently placed on the market. The company is at present experimenting with other improved types of products, some of which may be placed on the market within a short time.

Earnings Gain

LAST YEAR WAS MARKED by a sharp improvement in earnings. Net profit was $1,368,829. After deducting preferred dividends this was equivalent to $10.03 a share on 89,226 shares of common stock. In 1928 net profit was $513,084 or $3.25 a share on 158,010 shares of $50 par 7 per cent non-cumulative preferred stock outstanding, at that time. The extent of the betterment in the organization's operations and earnings is apparent from the fact that net profit in 1927 was only $179,414 or $1.13 a share on the preferred stock.

Plant improvements made in recent years have placed the operating facilities in excellent shape. Officials of the company state that it will not be necessary to make any large expenditures on plants for some time to come.

Capital Structure Changed

NATIONAL FIREPROOFING materially simplified its capital structure last year by the formation of a new corporation to take over the operations of the old company. Stock of the new corporation of both classes was exchanged for that of the old share for share.

The old company had 158,010 shares of 7 per cent $50 par non-cumulative preferred stock outstanding. The new corporation replaced this with an equal number of shares of 6 per cent $50 par cumulative preferred stock which is convertible into common stock on a share for share basis until December 31, 1935. This eliminated the danger of legal difficulties over the right of the old preferred to unpaid dividends from earnings for prior years. While the new preferred carries a lower dividend rate it has cumulative and conversion features.

LOANS DECLINE $211,000,000

WASHINGTON June 20.—Loan on stocks and bonds to broker and dealers in reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City decreased $211,000,000 during the week ended June 18 to $3,787,000,000. This compares with $3,998,000,000 in the preceding week and with the high record of $4,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929.

NEW YORK June 20.—Daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended June 18 was $1,006,000,000 an increase of $12,000,000 over the previous week but a decrease of $275,000,000 from the like week of 1929.

Pennsy Refused Abandonment Plea

WASHINGTON June 20.—The Pennsylvania Railroad was refused permission today by the Interstate Commerce Commission to abandon a short branch line operated by one of its subsidiaries in Hamilton County, O.

While the company asserted the line in question, running from Blue Ash to Montgomery, was consistently unprofitable the commission concluded its service was still needed by sufficient population and industrial centers to require the railroad to maintain it.

Lake Erie Coal Loadings Higher

Bituminous coal loaded at Lake Erie ports in the week ended June 16 totaled 1,357,522 tons against 1,214,536 tons in the like 1929 week.

Loadings for the season to date amount to 10,922,966 tons against 10,827,106 in the like 1929 period and 7,937,169 in the 1928 period.

W. B. McLean Mfg. In Receivership

On petition of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company receivers were appointed today for the W. B. McLean Manufacturing Company of Pittsburgh manufacturers of store fixtures. The glass company listed a claim of $17,000. Judge Elder W. Marshall appointed L. J. McLean and A. M. Oliver as receivers.

French Foreign Trade Decreases

PARIS June 20.—French foreign trade for the first nine months of this year shows a deficit of 2,275,000,000 francs ($135,000,000 approximately) figures given out today by the customs department.

This is at a rate of eight billion francs annually in the excess of imports over exports.

Cotton Exchange Membership Off

NEW YORK June 20.—The New York Cotton Exchange membership of D. A. Hughes has been sold to A. W. Wachsman for $18 — last previous sale.

Cuban Raw Sugar Sold to Soviet

GREENOCK Scotland June 20.—Negotiations were completed yesterday for the sale of 133,000 tons of Cuban raw sugar at 1.56 cents to the Soviet government. The sugar will be sent to British refineries where it will be converted into white sugar and shipped direct to Russian ports.

Tate Greenock refineries will undertake part of the work and the first shipment will be sent from Greenock early in July. London and Liverpool refining districts will handle the larger part of the work.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Agnes Greene looked up at the blue and white china clock in the breakfast nook.

The time was one minute past eight.

Nora, her sister's maid, said, "More toast, Miss Agnes?"

"Call it Nora. I'll have to fly, as it is."

She finished the coffee, took a final nibble at the fragment of crisp bacon, and hurried to the front hall.

By the time her coat and hat were on and her bag under her arm she had 10 minutes to make the 8:15.

Agnes glanced up the stair.

She wasn't really envious and never jealous but she certainly wished she could stay in bed and have fruit and coffee brought up to her around nine the way her sister Mary did.

Sister Mary was married. Jack Collis made a very nice husband indeed. He owned the one big provision store in the growing suburb of Mapledale and he left the house at seven. Some day, perhaps, Agnes would find someone as nice as her sister's husband and then she could have a Nora bring up fruit and coffee to her in bed around nine.

But meanwhile—

She had lived in Mapledale only a fortnight. When her aunt died in the city, sister Mary and her nice husband had insisted that she come out and live with them.

It was lovely out there in the suburbs, only——

The train whistled.

That was it—the 8:15.

She had to make it every week-day morning.

Hates Train

In the city she used to sleep often until 8:15 and then grab a bite, hop the subway and be at her desk on time.

It was remarkable how, in just two weeks, one could get to hate a train so much—and especially the 8:15.

Now, there was the 5:15.

She closed her desk at 5, crossed over to the tube entrance, stopped and picked up a magazine or so, walked down and got on the train. In almost no time at all she was back in Mapledale at her sister's lovely home. It would be perfect if only she didn't have to keep thinking of that 8:15 next morning.

On this particular morning Dud Pellinger—and he was no "dud," take it from all who knew him—Dudley Pellinger was just hopping off his polo pony when Agnes Greene was getting out of bed.

Dud Pellinger lived in Upper Mapledale on one of the dozen big estates there. He was getting in a little practice for the coming Saturday afternoon game against the Delafords.

Dud turned his pony over to the stableman, hoppe up to his rooms for a shower and came down to a breakfast on the East terrace, served by a dignified man-servant.

Dud Pellinger had been living alone on the big estate for several years—when he was home. It had been his father's and his grandfather's home.

As he squeezed a bit of lemon on the shad roe—Dud was the sort of chap who favored small steaks, chops, shad roe and the like for breakfast—he said:

"Will you tell March to bring around the car—I'm going to take the eight-fifteen in."

Dud finished his breakfast, lighted a cigaret, glanced at the morning paper and paid no heed to the clock. It was very seldom that he went into the city by train. Now and then there were papers to go over, leases to sign and such things. Dud was thirty and did not believe in giving too much power-of-attorney to anyone. The Pellingers had kept and increased their fortune by attending to it themselves in all important matters.

At 8:10 the car was there.

Dud, with a brief case under his arm, hopped in.

Five minutes was plenty of time.

The big car purred down grade and stopped at the platform of the station just as the conductor was shouting his daily:

"Bow-n-ord!"

That was the day Dud liked to make connections.

The First Meeting

He swung on to the car as the train started. The car was crowded. He worked his way back to the next car and found a seat—evidently the last seat there. Dud's friends would have grinned and said, "Pellinger luck!"

Agnes Greene had already boarded the train, a car above that of the one Dud boarded. She worked her way back, looking for a seat.

When she got to Dud's car he got an eyeful of her. He thought he knew every girl in Mapledale worth knowing and worth looking at, but here was a new one and she was sure worth looking at.

Dud hopped up.

"Oh, no—thank you," Agnes said.

"Go ahead, I don't mind. I—er—sit all day."

"Swell little Irish brunette—not a dumb streak in her," was what he thought.

Dud had long been besieged by dumb girls who were almost flung at him by scheming mammas. He was fed up on them.

Agnes saw a tall chap, somewhat fagged for an office worker, unless he spent every spare moment out of doors. She liked his rather coarse tawny hair, his steady grey eyes and especially the kindly smile around his square chin. She also saw the brief case.

He's regular, probably some office clerk. I could like him," was what Agnes thought.

Through the day Agnes thought many times of the nice looking chap, not too young, who had given her the seat.

As for Dud, he had what he termed a tough day of it. A tiresome long luncheon at which business was discussed and a lot of delays. At his lawyer's office word was telephoned to meet Dud at the station. He was going to catch the 5:15.

Dud was really tired. He had been bothered with some old slow-pokes he called "fuddy-duddies" and he had to make a lot of important decisions. His collar was wilted and he felt that he needed a plunge in the big pool up at his place just as soon as he could make it.

Speak About Trains

Agnes coming down the car dropped into the first vacant seat.

"Will you sit next to the window," Dud asked. He had recognized her although she hadn't seemed to recognize him. She did, then.

"This is all right, thanks," she murmured.

They talked a little. Agnes liked to hear him talk. Dud sure liked her rich, young velvety voice.

"We have one advantage," Agnes was saying, "over the rich. When we have done a day's work we know how to enjoy making the five-fifteen and getting home for a rest."

"Oh yes, that's true enough."

"But don't you dread the eight-fifteen every morning."

"Er—on stormy mornings I dread it," he agreed.

They were surprised when Mapledale was reached.

He watched Agnes turn up Mapledale avenue. Then he went back to his car and was driven home where he had his plunge in the pool and after this he tried to go over some business papers and to listen to what his estate manager had to say about re-turfing the polo practice field.

"Probably there are twenty young men who live out here and work in an office in town," her sister said.

"He was especially nice," Agnes said, with honesty.

Dudley Pellinger took the eight-fifteen in town the next day. He mentioned something to his man about business and he carried the brief case with him. He had March drive him to Water street instead of Railroad avenue. He didn't want the cute little Irish brunette to see him in the car. She thought he was a hard-working chap who depended on the eight-fifteen. No use to let her think differently.

Surprise for Agnes

Dud found her all right and stood alongside her car seat to chat with her.

That night he met her as she came for the five-fifteen. He helped her aboard the car and they got a seat together.

Agnes asked him what line he was in.

Real estate. Miss Greene"—she had told him her name—and he said that his was Dudley. She thought that he had meant Mr. Dudley and called him that. "We specialize in private estates and investments."

All the next week Dudley Pellinger took the eight-fifteen in and the five-fifteen home, and each time he met Agnes.

Her brother-in-law couldn't seem to place any "Mr. Dudley."

When they finally rode out on the field Agnes started very hard at one blonde man who seemed to be a part of his pony.

He came tearing down the field after a while close to where they were parked. Agnes clutched her sister's arm.

"Why, that's Dudley!" she cried.

"That?" asked her brother-in-law, "that's Pellinger — Dudley Pellinger, he's got——"

And he pretended to tell her what.

Dud Pellinger caught sight of Agnes as he was resting between chukkers. As soon as the game was over, he rode up before they could back out of the parking space.

"I'm coming down to see you tonight, Agnes," he said.

"Really, Mister Dudley Pellinger, I don't think——"

Agnes promised.

Dud called on her. They took a ride in his car. He had a great deal to say. It was all about her blue eyes, and love, and things like that.

"All right, Dudley," Agnes whispered, as he held her in his arms, "all right. I promise. Anyone who loves me enough to get up morning after morning and catch that miserable old eight-fifteen just to see me, surely loves me plenty."

ELLA CINDERS

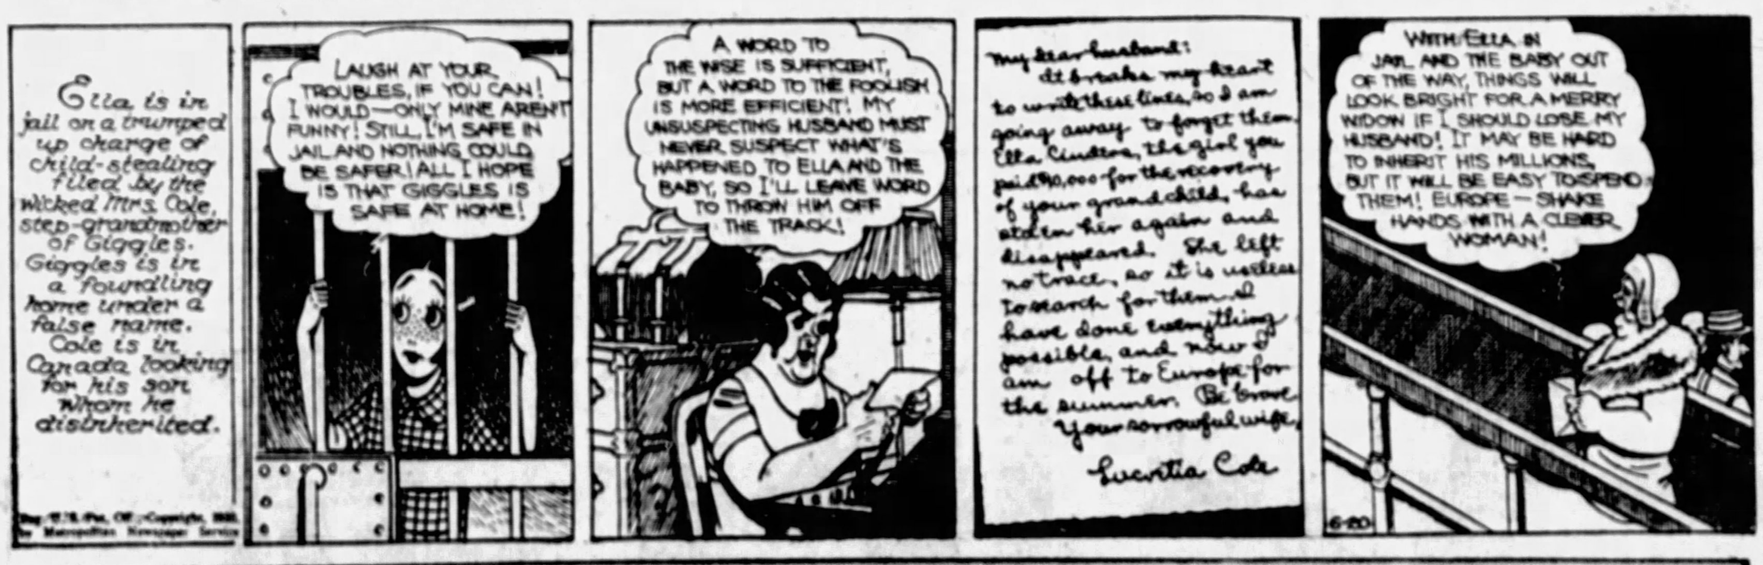
By Plumb and Conselman



Ella is in jail on a trumped up charge of child-stealing filed by the wicked Mrs. Cole, step-grandmother of Giggles. Giggles is in a foundling home under a false name. Cole is in Canada looking for his son whom he disinherited.
LAUGH AT YOUR TROUBLES, IF YOU CAN! I WOULD—ONLY MINE AREN'T FUNNY! STILL, I'M SAFE IN JAIL AND NOTHING COULD BE SAFER! ALL I HOPE IS THAT GIGGLES IS SAFE AT HOME!
A WORD TO THE WISE IS SUFFICIENT, BUT A WORD TO THE FOOLISH IS MORE EFFICIENT! MY UNSUSPECTING HUSBAND MUST NEVER SUSPECT WHAT'S HAPPENED TO ELLA AND THE BABY, SO I'LL LEAVE WORD TO THROW HIM OFF THE TRACK!
my dear husband:
it breaks my heart to write these lines, so I am going away to forget them. Ella Cinders, the girl you paid $50,000 for the recovery of your grandchild, has stolen her again and disappeared. She left no trace, so it is useless to search for them. I have done everything possible, and now I am off to Europe for the summer. Be brave.
Your sorrowful wife,
Lucretia Cole
WITH ELLA IN JAIL AND THE BABY OUT OF THE WAY, THINGS WILL LOOK BRIGHT FOR A MERRY WIDOW IF I SHOULD LOSE MY HUSBAND! IT MAY BE HARD TO INHERIT HIS MILLIONS, BUT IT WILL BE EASY TO SPEND THEM! EUROPE—SHAKE HANDS WITH A CLEVER WOMAN!

THIS AFTERNOON I WAS STANDING AT THE WINDOW WHEN A BIG RED CAR THAT LOOKED LIKE SOMETHING LEFT BEHIND BY A CIRCUS SKIDDED UP IN FRONT OF THIS HOUSE ON TWO WHEELS AND OUT STEPPED MISS PEGGY BUNGLE. THEN I SAW THAT OAKDALE WAS THE DRIVER.
WELL I JUST STOOD THERE WITH MY MOUTH OPEN WHILE THE ENTIRE NEIGHBORHOOD SAW HER GIGGLING AND WAVING GOOD-BYE TO HIM. WHEN SHE CAME UPSTAIRS SHE VERY CALMLY ADMITTED SHE WENT TO A MOVIE WITH THAT WRETCH TODAY.
OH WELL—
FOR AT LEAST A MINUTE I JUST LOOKED AT HER, AMAZED. I SAID, PEGGY DARLING, I THOUGHT YOU TOLD ME YOU WERE DONE WITH THAT MAN! YOU, GEORGE, REMEMBER WHEN SHE SAID THAT, RIGHT IN THIS ROOM. YOU ADMIT YOU HEARD HER SAY THAT, DON'T YOU?
WELL JO, AS YOU KNOW I'VE GOT A SIMPLY TERRIBLE MEMORY. IN OTHER WORDS I ALWAYS LIKE TO BE BROAD-MINDED ABOUT SUCH THINGS AND—
OH GEORGE BUNGLE, I'M IN NO HUMOR TO HEAR YOU SPOUTING ABC JT HOW, BROAD-MINDED YOU ARE. PEGGY HAS A LOT OF THAT BUNGLE BRAND OF BROAD-MINDEDNESS TOO. WELL, ANYBODY CAN HAVE ONE OF THOSE BROAD MINDS. ALL YOU NEED IS A SHORT MEMORY AND AN I-SHOULD-WORRY-ATTITUDE.

Commonsense Fireworks Ordinance Is Needed

There surely is enough intelligence in City Council to produce a common sense fireworks ordinance that will make it unnecessary to thresh the matter out anew every year.

Director of Public Safety James M. Clark has brought the subject up again. The measure now on the books is not rigid enough, he thinks. It permits the sale of fireworks by licensed dealers, and Director Clark maintains, with some show of reason, that so long as fireworks are permitted to be sold it is next to impossible to prevent their being discharged. The dealers, of course, are opposed to restrictions on their business.

Fireworks are certainly not a proper plaything for children, and the death of a Dormont High School student killed yesterday by the explosion of gunpowder with which he was trying to make a flare suggests it is not wise for any but experts to experiment with explosives.

The number of persons killed in Fourth of July fireworks accidents is greater than the number of American soldiers killed in the Revolutionary War. It has long been the consensus of opinion that promiscuous use of fireworks on the Fourth should be prohibited, that this dreadful slaughter of the innocents, not to speak of the enormous property damage from Fourth of July fires, may be halted.

At the same time it is to be recognized that pyrotechnic displays are beautiful and stirring and form a time-honored feature of patriotic celebrations. Furthermore, they can be conducted safely if experienced fireworks men take sole charge and the fireworks are put off in an isolated place.

There can be no objection to municipal pyrotechnic exhibitions in the parks. And it is possible, perhaps, to make some sort of arrangement whereby boards of trade or similar bodies may conduct fireworks displays. This would provide an outlet for at least part of the dealers' supplies. At the same time explosives should not be sold indiscriminately.

It is a problem that must be solved by common sense.

Electricity From Sea Water

A Frenchman Experiments.

France, with a vast colonial empire in Africa, much of it desert, is interested in experiments by Prof. George Claude to develop electricity at low cost from tropical sea water.

Prof. Claude, the Edison of France, has established a laboratory in Cuba. Recent reports say that he has been successful in deriving electric power from the ocean. His method is based on the fact that steam forms at low temperature in a vacuum. His sea water plant, it is said, already has turbines running in a vacuum on the difference between the warm water at the surface of the ocean and the cold water in the depths below.

As France has a belt of warm ocean water around many of its tropical possessions, some of the more imaginative members of its government think the experiment may have possibilities. Cheap electric power, solving the labor problem and making tropical industries feasible, are among the things they have in mind for the future. It is even predicted that ample supplies of electricity could be used to control climate, making the hot sections of Africa fit for settlement by whites.

Fantastic as this may sound, there are few scientists nowadays who will say that anything is impossible. Less than 150 years ago it was proved "scientifically" that a human being could not live if he moved at a speed of 30 miles an hour, because the air pressure would burst his lungs. And less than 50 years ago many savants demonstrated quite conclusively that airplanes never could be invented.

George Washington's Ad

It Sold the Land.

George Washington, in addition to being a great statesman, a great soldier and a great landowner, was also a first-rate advertising man, to judge by an advertisement written by him and recently found in old newspapers.

Washington held 20,000 acres on the banks of the Ohio and Kanawha rivers. He decided to subdivide and sell this tract. The Maryland Journal and Baltimore Advertiser of August 20, 1773, contains his ad—a long but comprehensive notice signed by himself.

It reads, in part:

"None can exceed these lands in luxuriance of soil or convenience of situation, abounding in fish and wildfowl, as also in most excellent meadows, many of which (by the bountiful hand of nature) are in their present state almost fit for the scythe. From every part of these lands water carriage is easy, to the great ease and convenience of settlers in transporting the produce of their lands to market. If the scheme of establishing a new government on the Ohio in the manner talked of should ever be effected these must be among the most valuable lands in it, not only on account of the goodness of the soil and the other advantages above enumerated, but from their contiguity to the seat of government."

Making allowances for the difference in style, Washington's ad compares favorably with the average real estate ad today. Its claims are true and advanced in a way to inspire confidence in the purchaser. That is the test of good advertising.

Incidentally, it sold the land, or most of it.

Doctors Make Mistakes

Who Does Not?

In Sumatra a Dutch physician, administering the wrong serum to many children, killed 13 and jeopardized the lives of 60 others, of whom 34 were in a serious condition.

In Hungary a doctor treating children for eye trouble used the wrong eye wash, causing blindness in 40 of the children. These regrettable happenings will be exaggerated and used by the ignorant in denunciation of medical science.

They will ignore the fact that every year thousands of children are saved from blindness by simple treatment at birth and the fact that every year other thousands and tens of thousands are saved from death by smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid and other diseases that medical science has conquered.

The City Beautiful

New York is the first city to establish municipal beauty parlors and garages of plastic surgery.

Four free clinics have been opened to the public. They are in charge of Dr. Greef, pronounced grief.

"Bugs" Baer

When Doc saw our face on the waiting list, he said, "I think I had better spell my name right."

"Bugs, we only have four clinics. With a face like that you had better tag all the bases."

"How about a little plastic surgery on this nose?" we wired the Doc. He sent us to the wholesale department.

Our ears make us look like a cup defender. We often thought of having them pierced for quoits.

The Doc took in three reefs in the ears. And even then we leave the ground in a light breeze.

But a municipal beauty parlor is a philanthropic institution in a city where the traffic will curl your hair.

Dr. Greef has perfected the business so far that he can now remove dimples from automobile fenders and eliminate the body squeaks in retired financiers.

He couldn't do much with our nose. It had a 40-year start on him.

The first job handled by Dr. Greef was an honest young man who had his face caught in his father's cash register. Doc removed seven nickels from his larynx.

You can now have you toupee kept on by the vacuum system or have your teeth filled on a subway contract.

That's the advantage of living in a big town. Most of our unemployed are on payrolls.

We hope the other big American cities follow New York's free beauty system because you never can tell just what will happen to plastic surgery after it gets caught in the rain.

If they cannot make you beautiful they can at least sew up the wrinkles.

SPACE AND TIME

By Archibald Henderson

How large is the universe? And how long has it existed? These are questions which have stimulated endless and laborious researches. To neither has a categorical and convincing answer been found.

Hubble thinks that space is not likely to extend to more than about a thousand times as far as the farthest nebulae visible in the largest telescope. The remotest object is presumed to be about 10 raised to the twelfth power, in astronomical units. And an astronomical unit is 93 million miles, or the distance from the earth to the sun. Recent investigations, on the basis of the general relativity theory, indicate that it would take a ray of light about 150,000 million years to travel entirely around the universe.

If all the matter in the universe were known and its mean density measured, it would be possible to determine the size of the universe. We have learned something of this vast problem in recent years. Our sun is a million times as big as the earth, and about 300,000 times as massive. Sears has estimated that there must be, in the universe, about 30,000,000,000 suns.

Besides these suns, there are the great spiral and extragalactic nebulae. By gravitational means, it has been computed that one of these nebulae contains enough batter to make a thousand million suns.

Moreover, Hubble has estimated that there are about 2,000,000 such nebulae visible in the great 100-inch telescope at Mt. Wilson. He further estimates that the whole universe is about a thousand million times as big as the part of space visible in this telescope. Hence, if we multiply 1,000,000,000 by 2,000,000, and this product by 1,000,000,000, we obtain the staggering figure of 2 followed by 24 ciphers.

It is likewise possible to arrive at some conclusion regarding the life-period of the universe. There are three approved methods of doing this. Two stars which revolve round each other are called binary stars. At birth, the orbits of binary stars are circular. These orbits are gradually distorted by the influence of passing stars. We can calculate the rate at which the orbital distortion takes place, and thus discover the age of the stars.

A second method is derived from a study of star clusters. Such clusters, of which there are many examples in the heavens, move in a regular, unbroken group through masses of lesser stars. The light stars naturally are knocked out of formation first; and as we can calculate the time it takes to knock out these lesser stars, we can deduce the ages of those that are left in.

The third method rests upon an abstruse dynamical theorem. It states, in essence, that after a sufficient time the energies of motion of the different types of stars approach equality with each other. The larger stars have a slow, majestic motion; the lighter stars make up for the smallness of their mass by a higher velocity of movement. Sears has shown that the stars near the sun have almost attained the state of equal energy of motion. It is possible to compute the time required to reach this state. This gives us a third method of determining the ages of the stars.

"It is gratifying and significant," says Jeans in "Eos," that all three lines of investigation lead to the same result: the stars are found to be some millions of millions of years old, perhaps from five to ten millions of millions."

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

The English tell lots of stories about American tourists, because there's a lot of American tourists over there all the time. The joke is always on the Americans in the English stories.

Well, here's one about English tourists in America. The young man that was just out of Eton was with his dad, and they come to look America over from the corner of Broadway and Fourteenth street. The young fellow had brought his amateur movie along, and he was having the time of his life.

But they got into a Communist riot in Union Square, and the cops noticed that the boy's dad was a foreigner, so they started beating him up.

The kid ran into a little store and yelled: "Oh, I say! The bloody constables are jolly well going for the Governor! They have got him under, and they're beating him with their truncheons!"

"But we ain't Communists here," says the storekeeper. "What do you want us to do about it?"

"Sell me some film for my pocket cinema, of course! What a ripping picture!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Should women work overtime?

Yes—I know. They ARE working overtime. And they always have worked overtime. But that was different. That was just marriage—unskilled labor, where any old hours go as long as he says he loves you. But Industry's another story. Industry's a paying job. Should women work overtime in industry?

Perhaps that doesn't seem a very important question to you—but it's causing plenty of rumpus in these United States. Thousands and thousands 'n' thousands of gentlemen who have never chowed a particle of concern if their particular Maria or Rachel toiled all day and trampled all night with a squalling infant, are now raising Cain at the thought of Working Gals doing a second more than their eight-hour stint.

"It's inhuman," they cry. "A delicate woman is not fit for such drudgery. It will wreck her constitution and imperil the future generations. She should not be expected nor allowed to so strain her strength. And it is the duty of every American man to protect her, even if she won't protect herself."

Accordingly thousands of American gentlemen have banded together and are endeavoring, in many states, to enact legislation which will forcibly protect foolish females from overtime labor. The Mastick Law, recently passed by Gov. Roosevelt of New York, is such a measure—and the boys protest that it is based on 100 per cent chivalry. But this the ladies indignantly deny.

"Chivalry, my eyes!" cries the National Woman's Party, or much nicer words to that effect, "it's nothing of the sort. It's just a piggy plan to grab jobs for men and steal them from women. Naturally no sane person wants to work any longer than she has to. But some of us have to—and we have just as good a right to do it as men. It's the unions—that's what it is—trying to cut out competition. They'd shut us out of ALL jobs if they could.

"Well, we'll show them. They are trying to put one over on us with politics. We can use politics, too. Our votes are as good as theirs. We'll make this a national issue. We'll fight it in every state——"

And so through the states rages the battle. And listening to the uproar, poor Widow Smith wonders how she's going to get Jimmy through high school if they cut down her piece work to 48 hours a week. And young Alice Jones worries at the thought of the college course that will have to go glimmering if they shut women out of night jobs entirely.

And how about you? What's your side of the fracas? Granted that a woman has any right to work outside her home, hasn't she as good a right to work overtime as a man? And if not, why not? Is it chivalry to keep her out — or plain piggishness? Let's have your vote.

Write your problems to Elsie Robinson and she will be glad to give a personal reply. Address communications to Miss Robinson in care of this newspaper.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

These may be catalogued as follows:

(1) A red-carrying pollen-grain might fertilize a red-carrying egg—result, a red-flowered plant.

(2) A red-carrying pollen-grain might fertilize a white-carrying egg—result, a pink-flowered plant.

(3) A white-carrying pollen-grain might fertilize a white-carrying egg—result a pink flowered plant.

(4) A white-carring pollen grain may fertilize a white-carrying egg—result, a white-flowered plant.

H. G. Wells

As we have seen, all theses possibilities happened. The second hybrid generation was mixed and contained red, pink and white-flowing plants. And so will any generation bred from pinks.

We can go further than this. By following a similar line of reasoning (the details of which we leave to the reader's ingenuity) we can prophesy that on crossing a pink with a red the first hybrid generation would include both pinks and reds, but no whites. Similarly on crossing a pink with a white we should get pinks and whites but no reds.

And this is what actually does happen when the experiment is tried. The gene hypothesis is thus tested and confirmed.

When red-producer and white-producer exist together in one plant the visible result is a blend of red and white. But this is only a resultant of two independent and antagonistic influences; the genes themselves neither blend nor contaminate one another.

When reduction brings the time for parting, each goes its solitary way, bearing no trace of having been associated for months or years with the other within the microscopic chambers of the cells. Moreover, it evidently makes no difference whether we use a red-flowered plant as our original male parent and a white for our female, or vice versa. In both cases the hybrids will be pink.

All that matters is the kind of genes in the resulting mixture.

A widespread and important complication of this scheme is the phenomenon known as dominance. In our example the joint effect of the two different kinds of gene, when both were present together, was intermediate between their effects when present in a pure state: pink is intermediate between white and red.

But that is not always the case.

One gene may be stronger, more effective than its correlative, and, indeed, such inequality of effect in the genes is the rule rather than the exception.

Suppose we cross a mouse of the Japanese "waltzing" type with one which is normal and comes from a perfectly normal stock.

The former has an inherited malformation of the inner ear which upsets its sense of direction and sets it spinning round, sometimes for hours on end, like a puppy trying to catch its tail.

The first hybrid generation of such a cross will show not a trace of this waltzing habit. It will consist of perfectly normal mice, progressing with irreproachable directness, their inner ears admirably formed.

Nevertheless, they are genetically mixed, just as are the pink Four-o'clocks. Every cell in their bodies contains one "waltzing" and one "normal" gene. But the latter overpowers the former. In the next generation, obtained by breeding the first together, it becomes manifest that we have been dealing with mixed, hybrid animals.

We get three kinds of mice. There are true-breeding waltzers and true-breeding normals, corresponding to the reds and whites of the second generation of the Four-o'clock cross, and, corresponding to the pinks, there are mice like these of the first hybrid generation—normal in behavior and anatomy, but nevertheless carrying the "waltzer" gene hidden in their chromosomes and bequeathing it to some of their offspring.

This case is obviously parallel to that of the Four-o'clock except that here the hybrids are not intermediate, but indistinguishable in their characters from one of their parents.

Manicure parlors in silver leaf. And now the electric safety razor. Those Englishmen with names like Nigel and Trevor who promenade the avenue at 5 o'clock. Shoe shop sign: "Spats and tan shoes are vulgar." The way my ears light up! Nothing makes a man look so cool as a polka dot tie.

Bert Lahr leaving an automat. Frank Mason, of the I. N. S. Aloof shops conducted by Social Registerites. The Chinese Chippendale furniture for porches. Men who wear golf togs to the office—and vanish at 1 o'clock. Japanese restaurants are never filled. That sickening grind before autos crash.

A private school of social etiquette. The midtown Wall street district. Brokers who go to Whyte's. A gypsy in a velveteen coat playing a concertina along the curb. Those families from Jersey who go to matinees and dine at Drake's. The polite elevator operators and starters in Salmon Tower.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

When writing to friends you like to feel that you can permit your pen or your typewriter to move along with a minimum of thought as to what you are writing.

You look upon letters to your friend as writing sprees.

Little care is given by you for the thought, appearance or construction.

You want to sound chummy, easy and chatty, free from semblance of effort in composition or contents.

It is peculiarly easy for you to be careless as to the many rules that should be followed in good writing.

You are not particularly careful in your speech, and when you write a friend you violate the rules of grammar with just as much nonchalance.

What is the result?

You are ambiguous and often misquoted, your letters are seen by strangers to you sometimes, and they are not charitable.

You have been chagrined by the knowledge that others besides the one to whom you addressed your words have read your poorly written notes.

You have been embarrassed and in certain instances can trace the loss of a dear friend to your habit of writing whatever comes into your head without consideration as to its appearance, subject or effect upon the reader.
